KLINE AND ARMSTRONG IN PEACE PACT

Today

Some of the News.
For Money, Yes.
That Polish Corridor.
London Votes in Fog.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WHAT IS the news? The Lavals have gone home, their ship delayed 12 hours because Mademoiselle Laval, dancing with handsome young Mayor Walker, made the ship miss the tide.

We may not have statesmen as able as the French, but we have handsomer dancers.

SANDINO, CALLED a bandit by us, a patriot by his fellow Nicaraguans, is in Mexico City prepared to start something else.

Our brave "Devil Dogs," alias Marines, found him as elusive as other brave Americans found Pancho Villa, a nuisance.

MONTANA HAS 18 inches of snow. Florida, California and all the Gulf Coast say "come and spend the winter in our sunshine, and cure whatever is the matter with you."

Dr. Richard Monahan, just arrived from Venice, says the Lido sunshine will cure arthritis and other things in a few days. California, Florida or Gulf Coast sunshine will do the same. Try it.

UNCLE SAM has collected tween 30 and 40 million dollars from gangsters that failed to pay income tax. Finding, prosecuting and collecting has been expensive, but there has been a considerable net profit.

In our kind of a civilization the national government can catch and convict men who owe the government money, and local governments cannot convict men who commit murder.

It pays to catch those that owe money.

YOU KNOW of the discussion on the Polish corridor in which Senator Borah, of Idaho, and Tytus Filipowicz figured. After the war Poland wanted easy access to the sea, and the Versailles treaty cut the Polish corridor out of German territory.

It is as though Canada wanted access to the Gulf of Mexico, and other nations cut a corridor through the United States territory, giving it to Canada.

SENATOR BORAH thinks that corridor should go back to the Germans.

The Polish Ambassador tells Senator Borah in diplomatic language that he doesn't know anything about Europe.

Senator Borah might reply:

"Possibly, but I know something about the United States. As the people of this country financed, largely, the victory with the Allies, and had more than enough to do with the Versailles treaty, I think I have a right to discuss it."

This news will surprise Borah more than the "corridor" opinions of the Polish ambassador.

LONDON WAS voting in a fog described as "thick as pea soup."

A Britisher, well informed, believes the national party which includes the Tories, with Ramsay MacDonald, former leader of the Laborites, and others, will get 400 out of the 600 odd seats in parliament.

LONDON STOCK exchange bets that nationalists will win, and stock exchanges usually bet accurately, although New York's stock exchange made a big mistake when it bet 3 to 1 on Hughes against Wilson. The day after Wilson was elected.

Betting on Lady Astor was even. It is difficult for Americans to believe that more than half of the thirty millions entitled to vote in Britain can vote TWICE, once from a business address, and once from their home.

ALL OF AMERICA visits New York, the biggest city, and all interested in music will regret to hear that Otto H. Kahn gives up his work as president and chairman of the Metropolitan Opera board. For 13 years he has managed the opera entirely, while politely accepting suggestions from dowagers and dodos.

Mr. Kahn has brought the best musicians and singers to the United States, making of this country the world's musical center, just as he and his friends farther downtown have made it the financial center.

He has thought more of musicians and singers than of the diamonds and pearls at which they sing, more of eager young students and old lovers of music in the uncomfortable top gallery than of the ladies and gentlemen terrapin-lined in the diamond circle.

Fortunately Mr. Kahn's successor, Paul D. Cravath, is an able man who takes music seriously and has been a member of the board of the Metropolitan for more than 20 years.

WITH THE BEST of intentions, kind-hearted souls sometimes offer foolish suggestions.

Women are urged to cut their expenditures, purchases in stores, etc., and "give the money to a fund for the unemployed."

Nothing could be much more unwise. The President and others have pointed out that the important thing today is to make BUSINESS BETTER BY INCREASED PURCHASES.

You wouldn't take bread from one hungry child to hand it to another.

When you stop spending in stores, you take work from those that manufacture goods for stores, help to close factories and put men on the streets, help

CAMPS, JOBS PROVIDED FOR NEEDY

Pay, Shelter, Food Assured Men Able to Work on Roads; Unit to Open Soon

HARRISBURG, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Relief camps for able-bodied men who are unemployed, to be financed from state funds, will be established in Pennsylvania in the near future, Gov. Pinchot said today. He declared:

"I am preparing to establish relief camps under canvas for road work to which any able-bodied citizen of Pennsylvania can go and find a job, including a place to sleep and three meals a day. Thus, so long as the money lasts, no man able to work need be forced to starve, or to accept charity without making a return."

FULL PAY AT FIRST

The Governor explained that his plan does not provide for all of the able-bodied men among the 900,000 unemployed in Pennsylvania, as it is expected that only a portion of this number will take advantage of the opportunity. He added:

"Money enough for regular wages can be found at first. So long as that can be done with the funds available, the going rate of wages, less maintenance, will be paid. But a point may be reached when this will no longer be possible. In that case relief will be given to the limit of the state's ability.

"These relief camps will be established in the regions where the need is most pressing. None of them is ready yet, but some will be ready soon.

WILL BUILD ROADS

"The relief camps will build good roads, and Pennsylvania needs and wants more good roads. They will not be managed like the (highway) department's ordinary work. Their

GUNMAN ROBS WOMEN IN SHOP

While hundreds of persons traversed Penn and Highland avenues late today, a robber entered the Lincoln Hosiery Shop, at 102 North Highland avenue, two doors away, held up Miss Margaret Dahm, of 5901 Penn avenue, and Mrs. Mabel Hugo, of 2235 Hawthorne street, Swissvale, and escaped with about $100.

Traffic police, stationed at the corner, attracted to the shop by screams of the women, could find no trace of the robber, who escaped in the crowd.

The victims told police the robber, described as youthful, closed the door behind him when he entered the shop. Drawing a revolver, he forced the two women into a rear room as he attempted to open the cash register. Failing, he summoned one. Cautioning them against outcry, he pocketed the money and escaped.

Bandits Bind, Rob Girl Store Manager

Compelling Pearl Barrett, manager of a P. H. Butler store at 1335 Sheffield street, North Side, to go into a rear room of the store, two bandits today escaped with $35 after binding their victim's arms and legs. She told police she was alone at the time. Both men were armed.

Poor Board Facing Grand Jury Probe

Investigators Named By Court Say Law Has Been Defied

A grand jury probe of the Allegheny County Poor Board loomed today as the Board of Visitors investigating its affairs recommended that "apparent law violations be referred to the District Attorney."

In addition the Visitors urged a taxpayer's suit be entered against the Poor Board demanding an accounting, and that all laws pertaining to the Poor Directors be codified and brought up to date.

Judge James H. Gray, in Quarter Sessions Court, accepting the report, named the three visitors, E. H. Wicks, G. M. McDonald and Paul E. Hutchinson to draft the taxpayers' bill.

LAW IGNORED

The visitors' report charges that the Poor Board ignored laws requiring them to obtain approval of the County Commissioners, grand jury and Quarter Sessions Court in real estate transactions and in construction of buildings; that they bought and sold property adjoining the Woodville Home as if they had been a private corporation.

A $500,000 bond issue was authorized in March, 1930, for new buildings, but $300,000, the report declares, was used to pay off notes in the Colonial Trust Company for money borrowed to pay current expenses.

LUXURY PIG PEN

An elaborate piggery was built at Woodville, the report states, with brick costing $80 a thousand when ordinary brick could be bought for $16.

MACDONALD CRUSHES FOES

Coalition Government Given Greatest Vote in History By Landslide in Britain

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Twenty-seven million British voters swept Ramsay MacDonald and his national government back into office in yesterday's voting with the greater parliamentary majority in Great Britain's history.

On the basis of almost complete returns, the coalition government had 541 votes in the House of Commons against 49 for the Labor opposition.

With the old Labor party wrecked, David Lloyd George and three others were all who remained of the old-line Liberals.

MACDONALD RETURNED

The Prime Minister himself won by nearly 6,000 votes in the Seaham Harbor constituency where the official Labor Party repudiated him a month ago. Running as the National Labor candidate, he defeated the regular Labor party's nominee and snowed under a Communist opponent.

MacDonald's victory was the outstanding personal achievement of the election and perhaps the most spectacular event of his strenuous career.

The party's amazing gains probably will throw a new set of problems into Mr. MacDonald's lap, and he indicated as much today when the early returns clearly showed the sweeping Conservative victory. His first statement was to the effect that the victory was to the national government and not to individual parties.

Arthur Henderson's Labor party was crushed, and "Uncle Arthur" himself was defeated in his own district. Before the election it was predicted that Labor might lose 100 seats at most. With half the returns in today the party

MORGAN, LAVAL WIN VICTORY

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—M. Laval is on his way to France satisfied with what he accomplished in this country.

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, who sponsored and urged M. Laval's visit to the United States, undoubtedly is well pleased with what M. Laval accomplished.

The studied ambiguity of the joint statement issued over the names of President Hoover and the French prime minister at the conclusion of their conversations, was perhaps to be expected.

M. Laval was probably too well contented with the success of his mission, to endanger the acceptance of its results in this country by revealing his well justified satisfaction.

France obtained the concession by the United States, so far as Mr. Hoover speaks for his country, in the absence from Washington of

Mayfair Cheers Victory As Workingmen Jeer

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Men in starched white shirtfronts and swallow-tailed coats, and pretty women in diamonds and satin gowns cheered themselves hoarse last night in Mayfair's hotels because of the Nationalist government's election victory.

A two-shilling taxi ride away there were workmen and unemployed and women in cotton stockings and denim dresses to watch in silent disappointment as posted figures spelled out the Labor party defeat. A choking, gray fog cast an eerie pall over them.

Shimmering streamers of gaily-colored paper and confetti showered over Mayfair's merrymakers as they danced and sang and drank toasts to the Nationalist successes. A middle-aged Englishman seized the baton from a jazz orchestra conductor and led a group through the words of "Land of Hope and Glory."

Back where the Labor group merged with fog a fiery-eyed workingman, a dirty muffler twisted about his neck, mounted a soap box and shouted:

"Are we downhearted?"

And the crowd chorused:

"No!"

"Good old Mac."

"Traitor!"

As the toasts were being hoisted in Mayfair, one gentleman reveler was heard to say:

Bring Your Mind Home From Europe, Mr. Hoover, Create Work Here, Says W. R. Hearst

President Hoover, speaking to the Methodist Ecumenical Congress at Atlanta, says:

"Unemployment walks before you as something much more real than a specter. It presents not only an economic difficulty, but an acute problem for human beings."

The President urges the Methodists to use their influence in overcoming present-day problems in economics.

Why does not the President use HIS influence to end unemployment and overcome present-day problems in economics?

It is hardly the business of the Methodist church to do these things.

It IS the business of the government.

Why does not the President use his influence in favor of the PROSPERITY LOAN?

Why does he not urge the United States Congress to make a loan of five billion dollars, and use the money for public construction, and so put the unemployed to work?

That kind of a practical proposal from the Executive would be far better than a lot of sonorous words which mean nothing and accomplish nothing.

Five billion dollars spent over the next three years by the government would solve the unemployment situation.

It would put money into circulation.

It would make the families of three or four million men comfortable and happy.

It would revive buying at the stores; and that buying would cause millions of dollars worth of goods to be ordered from the factories.

The factories would re-employ discharged hands.

Help would be hired in the busy shops and on the farms and in the mines.

White collar men would be employed to keep the books in the stores and factories and to add up the profits; for there would be profits then.

Engineers would plan the public works and architects would design the public buildings.

Contractors would undertake the jobs, and all of these branches of activity would require help and would hire help.

The help in every department would get money, and spend money; and prosperity would speedily be with us once again.

Then with prosperity back, the income of the government would be restored, and there would be no need of additional taxes to be piled upon the burdened backs of our already overtaxed people.

We have a deficit now, but we had a large surplus before the depression; and we can have a surplus again to pay off our bonds if Mr. Hoover will only stop talking and do something practical to restore prosperity.

Is it not better for our government to spend a few billions on America for the benefit of our own people than it is to institute moratoriums for Europe and eventually cancel billions of European debt payments—payments that we need to relieve the distress in our own country?

Is it not better to remove some of the taxation from our own people than to add to their burdens the war debts of other nations?

Can not our own government, which is so liberal with the American people's money to help foreign nations, spend some money to relieve our own unemployment and restore our own prosperity?

The President states the conditions which prevail here in America without apparently understanding the obligations which the situation entails.

He says to the Methodist congress:

Mr. President, unemployment walks before YOU as something more real than a specter.

It is the business of GOVERNMENT to take cognizance of these critical conditions.

UNITE TO AID MANSFIELD, LAWRENCE

Alliance Formed to Block McGovern Sweep; Split in Campaign Grows Bitter

By MARK SHIELDS

Mayor Charles H. Kline and County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Allegheny County's two strongest Republican leaders, have "buried the hatchet," made their peace and agreed to support State Senator W. D. Mansfield, Republican, and David L. Lawrence, Democrat, for County Commissionership in next Tuesday's election.

Bitter enemies in the primary campaign, when Armstrong's refusal to team with State Senator James J. Coyne, ally of the Mayor, as the "Regular Republican" commissioner candidate, is believed to have cost at least one, maybe both, of those principals the nomination, Kline and Armstrong reached their agreement yesterday.

Faced with the possibility, even the probability, of their arch-enemy, Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, carrying the election and sweeping his staunch supporter, former State Senator C. M. Barr, into office with him, the Republican leaders signed their peace treaty.

Lawrence, although a Democrat, is known as a "Coyne man," first and last, and would therefore be amiable to suggestions of the Mayor—and now that peace has been declared, probably those of Armstrong as well.

First news of the truce came today when it was learned that Alderman John P. Keracher, candidate in the Seventeenth, Armstrong's home ward, had been assured the Mayor's support against his rival, P. F. Riley, a follower of Coyne.

KEARCHER GETS NEWS

Kearcher called on the Mayor yesterday. He found Kline agreeable to his candidacy. He then asked, reliable reports have it:

"What about the County Commissioners?"

Kline answered:

"You see Armstrong about that. He and I are together."

Armstrong's chief political lieutenant, William F. Ziefel, chief clerk of the County Commissioners' office, today started campaign work from his home in Mt. Lebanon, instructing Armstrong followers to vote for Mansfield and Lawrence.

A Regular Republican meeting, scheduled for tomorrow night in the Seventeenth Ward with Armstrong as the speaker, has been cancelled—obviously to prevent the Commissioner from being placed in a position which would indicate he stands for "party regularity" and the party Commissioner slate of Mansfield and McGovern.

BITTER CAMPAIGN

Probably no campaign in Allegheny County has ever offered such extreme acrimony between two leading candidates on the Re-

COURT ASKED TO OUST ELECTION BOARD OF VOLPE DISTRICT

HUNT ON FOR 2 IN 'PHANTOM' CHARGES

Hearing on Petition Seeking Dismissal of Officials Set by Judge for Friday

Independent voters of Wilmerding, who began a concerted drive to break the hold of John Volpe on Turtle Creek Valley politics after the primary elections, seemed on the verge of success today with the expected arrest of alleged vote cheaters on perjury charges and the filing of a petition for the ousting of the election board of Volpe's home district.

Carl Gatto of 515 Greensburg pike, North Versailles Township and Nino Perinetti of Patton Township were being sought as an outgrowth of testimony they gave in the hearing Monday on the petition in which independents asked that the register's list of the Fourth District of Wilmerding be purged.

RESIDENCE DENIED

Independents charged 245 "phantoms" were enrolled. When Gatto and Perinetti, who testified for Joseph Capo, district register named in the petition, said they lived in the district, Attorney Mayer Sniderman, counsel for the opposing faction, produced witnesses who told the court neither man lived in Wilmerding.

George Munro, Independent chairman of the borough, appeared before Judge James H. Gray and filed a petition in which he asked removal of Carmine Trenga, judge of elections; Joseph Filia, alias Filea, majority inspector, and Louis Botti, minority inspector.

The three men composing the Election Board in Volpe's district were indicted after evidence of fraud was found in the district's ballot box and the vote of the district thrown out.

HEARING FRIDAY

The Independents suggested Edgar Donaldson, S. L. Smith and S. Howard Smith be named as judge and majority and minority inspector, respectively, in place of the indicted officers, all of whom have been described as Volpe followers. A hearing on the petition will be held Friday.

Judge James R. Macfarlane presided at the hearing on whether the Fourth District Register's list should be purged, has not indicated when he will announce his decision, nor has he taken any action on Sniderman's request that processes be issued for Patrolman Moody Champ, Joe Capo and John Tuker, all of Wilmerding, who were accused by two women with telling witnesses not to appear at the hearing.

When the court acted on the two petitions and when the cases against Gatto and Perinetti have been disposed of, the hectic fight of the independents to destroy Volpe's power in the valley before the general elections will have been completed.

MORGAN BACKS LAVAL VISIT

both houses of Congress, of the three major objectives of her international policy, concessions which have up to this moment consistently been refused by the United States.

CONCESSIONS WON

First—The right of France to political and military security before she is asked to give her assent to any plan of mutual disarmament by the nations of the world.

Second—The admission that France and our other war debtors among the European nations shall pay their debts to the United States only in proportion to their receipts on account of reparations from Germany.

Third—Our consent to enter the discussion of a further revision of the amounts Europe owes us—already so greatly reduced by voluntary remission through our war funding commission.

It should be remarked that the last point is coupled with a condition that the United States shall not be called upon to consider the reduction of the European debts until the nations of Europe "ON THEIR OWN INITIATIVE" ask for it. This is heralded as a triumph for the Stimsonian diplomacy and the Hoover administration.

FURTHER VICTORIES

The three outstanding points named do not tell the complete story of M. Laval's success. He has further obtained Mr. Hoover's agreement "not to do it again," should he feel tempted to declare a further moratorium.

The astute Laval has successfully insisted that any extension of the moratorium shall only be reached by, through and under the terms of the Young plan.

Under the Young plan, Germany is accorded the right, on giving three months' notice, to suspend payments of any portion of her CONDITIONAL obligations for not more than two years.

Of the $249,000,000 which France receives annually under the Young plan, two-thirds of it is an "unconditional obligation" of Germany, and under the Young plan is not "postponable." It is, therefore, not affected by the provision giving Germany the right to a two-year extension.

BETRAYAL CHARGED

France may well afford to contribute a minor fraction of her reparation claims against Germany to the cause of general economic recovery, because the substance of her claim, by the terms of the Young plan, is unconditional, that is to say, immune from the right of postponement.

The day of the convening of Congress draws near. The half-revealed facts cannot be withheld indefinitely from the American people. They are beginning to realize clearly that they have been betrayed by incompetent leadership, both political and financial.

The American people have loaned the money to Europe to wage its war. They have supplied to vanquished Germany the money to pay her reparations. The third step in this succession of fatuities which they are now bidden to take, is, to cancel their claim to the repayment of their war loans.

principal purpose will be to afford relief.

"Consequently, work in the relief camps will continue throughout the winter when ordinary road work is at an end. In order to provide work for as many as possible, hand labor will take the place of machinery to the greatest practicable degree."

The Governor said that this plan cannot take care of women and children and men unsuited for manual labor, saying that these must be cared for in other ways. The Governor said there will be nothing gained in sending in applications for placement in such camps until notice is given that they have been prepared for occupancy.

MOTOR FUND CASH

The money to finance these camps will come from the motor license fund, which is derived entirely from gasoline tax receipts and purchase of motor licenses and registrations.

At the close of business on September 30 this fund had a balance of $9,676,480 and at the close of business last night the balance was $7,144,700. The balance fluctuates from time to time with highway expenditures and receipts from sale of motor licenses and registrations.

No figure is available as to the amount which may be expended for the operation of these camps at this time because of the varying amount of the fund.

RUSSIA, JAPAN NEAR CLASH IN MANCHURIA

Soviet Troops Reported on Move to Aid Chinese as Foes Continue to Advance

International News Service.

PEIPING, Oct. 28.—Russian and Japanese troops drew closer together in the Far East today as Japan continued to defy the League of Nations by extending the limits of her Manchurian occupation.

One day has elapsed since the Japanese Consul at Tsitsihar in Northwestern Manchuria handed the Chinese authorities an ultimatum demanding that a bridge on the Taonan-Tsganki Railroad over the Nonni River be repaired within a week. If repairs are not made within that time, the ultimatum said, the Japanese Army "will take effective measures" to protect Japanese investments in it. The bridge was damaged a week ago.

At the same time, officials of the Japanese-owned South Manchuria railway charged that Chinese troops in Heilungkiang province loyal to Chang Hsueh-Liang were receiving support from Russian sources.

OPPOSE CHANG

Japanese military headquarters at Mukden have vigorously asserted that Chang Hsueh-Liang's power in Manchuria must be considered as definitely at an end, although the Nanking government has recognized Chang as governor of Manchuria.

Japanese dispatches received here stated 150 railroad cars are in readiness at Manchouli on the Sibero-Manchurian border to transport Soviet troops or supplies into northwestern Manchuria. Four cars loaded with Soviet field pieces and machine guns are en route from Manchouli to Tsitsihar, according to these reports.

Two hundred Japanese troops were said to be moving westward towards Chengkiatun and 3,000 to be entrenched in the Chinchow area.

Soviet, Chinese Pact Charged by Japan

TOKIO, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—China and Russia have reached an agreement for mutual protection of each other's interests in Manchuria, according to Japanese news agency reports received here today from Mukden.

The terms of the agreement call for Russia to preserve Manchurian territorial integrity and for China to protect Russia's interests in Manchuria, the Japanese dispatches said.

In the event of a Russo-Japanese war, the reported agreement provides that Chinese security should be sought in co-operation with Russia. The Chinese regard restoration of Chang Hsueh-Liang to power in Manchuria as a necessary preliminary, according to the Japanese news agency.

HOOVER MEETS WITH COUZENS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Railroads and taxes were discussed for more than half an hour today by President Hoover and Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan.

Upon leaving the President's office, the chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee declined to say whether his own views on the two subjects had been altered by the conference. He has proposed higher taxes on big incomes. Couzens said:

"I am still formulating some plans of my own. I just wanted to see how my views compared with those of President Hoover."

Yes, respected sir, and it is YOUR problem.

Conditions here at HOME are your problem; not conditions abroad.

The American people do not want charity; they want work.

The American people do not want a dole, whether it be a government dole or a dole collected from and distributed by benevolent private individuals.

They do not want the public dole which you oppose or the private dole which you favor.

They do not want ALMS.

They want WAGES.

They want to be paid for service rendered.

They want WORK.

They want the kind of work you promised to give them when you were running for office and which you forgot all about after you were elected to office.

Where are the great projects of Mississippi flood control and water storage which you talked about when you were a candidate?

Give the people this needed work and the country this benefit now.

Where are the East coast inland waterways projects, and the South coast waterways projects?

Where are the St. Lawrence River power projects in the North and the great dams to be built for water and power projects all over the Southwest?

Where is this construction?

Where is this employment?

Gone glimmering like the promises of Herbert Hoover, when a candidate for the presidency.

There is public work which needs to be done in every state of the union, much of it absolutely self-supporting and self-redeeming, like the Boulder Dam project; and all of it benefitting the nation incalculably, and giving work to millions of independent, sturdy Americans, who want work and NOT CHARITY.

Mr. President, the American people were glad to see you kiss Premier Laval good-bye, and will be happier still to see you bring your mind home from European entanglements, and attend to the problems of the United States of America.

You know what the problems are, Mr. President.

You have stated them beautifully and benevolently.

You have also assured us that "we must keep our physical achievements from hampering us, and our material possessions from controlling us;" which is not difficult for us to do, Mr. President, considering the reduced amount of our material possessions during the period of the present administration.

You have assured us, too, that "life does not consist in the abundance of things," which we agree is only too sadly true just now.

You have taught us that our "eternal purpose must be to keep the soul of the world alive and pregnant," which we are prepared to admit is sweetly so, if anybody knows what it means.

But, Mr. Hoover, the American people are tired of platitudes and beatitudes.

They want intelligent and constructive leadership and help from the government they put in office.

Stop being an international Pollyanna, Mr. Hoover, and be an American president.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

M'GREGOR RAPS M'GOVERN

Coroner W. J. McGregor, speaking at the noon meeting today at Republican headquarters in the William Penn Hotel, took a veiled rap at County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, Republican and Independent candidate, for re-election, who has asked support for his running mate, C. M. Barr, candidate on the Independent ticket.

McGregor said:

"The people have a right to expect a nominee on the Republican ticket to support all other nominees on that ticket."

The Coroner later paid tribute to the leadership of former Senator M. G. Leslie. He declared:

"I have served the county for 10 years and I do not want to serve under any leader who would demand less of me in the proper conduct of office than Leslie did. There are other county candidates, particularly Joseph N. Mackrell, register of wills, and S. J. Topley, clerk of courts.

"You don't hear any criticism of their conduct in office, and they too wear Leslie's label."

Other speakers were P. J. McArdle, councilmanic candidate, Judge Sylvester Snee, also a candidate for re-election. A. G. Brown, of Duquesne, presided at the meeting.

Parents Die in Fire Believing 7 Periled

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—William Bacenas and his wife died today of burns received when they rushed into the flaming kitchen of a neighbor's home seeking to save the seven Bacenas children who, it turned out, were not in the house.

Hoover-Laval Parley-Voo Leaves Tex Still Sore

By WEST PETERSON
International News Service.
(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Now that Premier Pierre Laval is on the high seas, it can all be told.

The "all" refers to what Texas Guinan, the night club queen, thinks of the recent Franco-American get-together in Washington. Tex said:

"Laval is the head man that gave me the great, big hand in the wrong place when my girls and I tried to enter Paris last spring.

"When I first heard the name it reminded me that I married one husband on the level and two on the Laval."

Tex mused:

"The President and the Premier were frank and earnest at the conference . . . But Laval is taking all the francs back with him.

"I wish I had been in New York when Laval arrived. I'm the one he ought to hold a peace parley with. I'm still sore at him.

"I understand they agreed to uphold the gold standard. Well, I'll stick to platinum, and I'll follow the directions on the bottle—get me?"

"Furthermore, Hoover doesn't speak any French, unless he learned it off the perfume bottles, and Laval doesn't talk English. What a fine parley-voo that must have been!

"Besides, we don't have to go outside this country to cure the depression. Just give us our light wines and beer and we'll watch the rest of the world go by."

MAYOR KLINE, ARMSTRONG BURY AX

publican ticket as exists between McGovern and Mansfield. This temper manifested itself in its most virulent form yesterday at the Council of Republican Women meeting in the William Penn, where Mansfield and McGovern both spoke. Each candidate for County Commissioner referred bitingly and slightingly to the other.

The Independents' first definite intimation that a pact to link Mansfield and Lawrence had been or was being formed, came yesterday when McGovern discovered that 240,000 sample ballots had been printed, with the other Commissioners' consent, showing how he could be "cut" by the Regular Republican voters in the coming election.

The ballot was, in effect, a Lawrence-Mansfield ticket. It was printed in the shop which does the official ballot printing, but the source of payment for the work has been concealed.

CHAIRMANSHIP AT STAKE

McGovern, of course, is openly for Barr as third man in the Commissioners' office, and success for such a ticket undoubtedly would mean the election of McGovern as chairman, the old friendship between Barr and Mansfield having withered in the fiery bitterness of the campaign. Mansfield has a natural ambition to be chairman, and many of the Regular Republicans of the county support that ambition.

Mansfield is criticised by some of his friends for falling out with Barr. They say his diplomacy has been faulty. It is their claim that, had he maintained his old friendship with Barr, he could eventually have split the former Senator and McGovern, even though the Independent ticket wins next Tuesday, and though McGovern might be the initial chairman of the board.

It is their contention that a man as suave and adroit as they believed Mansfield to be could have driven a wedge in time between Barr and McGovern, two men of positive temperaments. But that chance seems to have been dissipated.

OLD TIES RECALLED

Despite the ill feeling between Barr and Mansfield, and as evidence of the peculiar alliances of the campaign, there are going to be thousands of voters who will mark their ballots for Mansfield and Barr. Their past association has linked them together in the minds of masses of Independent Republicans. This preference for Barr over McGovern should not be serious enough, however, to jeopardize the success of McGovern, who will profit from the natural inclination in Allegheny County to vote the Republican ticket.

Mansfield was caustic yesterday in criticism of a Barr-McGovern Independent ticket. He branded as "silly" the assumption that he was as good as elected, and called for the support of every one of the 186,000 voters who had been for him in the primary. He demanded:

"Why try to tell the people to vote for McGovern and Barr? Why not say vote for Mansfield and Barr."

URGES REGULARITY

He made no such plea, sticking to the subject of regularity. The nearest Mansfield came to striking at Barr, whose election probably means McGovern as chairman of the board, came when he said:

"I have no desire to be a political boss or dictator, but I don't want to be put in a position where I will have no part in bringing about those things I represented and fought for in the primary and that the Republican party is standing for in this election."

In other words, he does not withdraw to be the minority man.

Mansfield reiterated his platform, a cleaning out of the County Building clique, practically the same platform which McGovern and Barr have adopted.

There was a noticeable tenseness in the air during the meeting, the Republican women appearing to recognize that the two heads of their ticket had as much in common as Al Smith and Bishop Cannon. Discussion after the meeting in political circles of men indicated no abating of the puzzles of the campaign, and no clarification of alliances.

SHERIDAN TO LIE WITH GREAT ARMY HEROES

All West Point Comrades to Stand in Tribute as 'Taps' Sound Farewell to Martyr

International News Service.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 28—West Point today said farewell to a 21-year-old boy who might have become a general, but died a hero on football's field of battle.

They were going to blow "taps" late this afternoon over a fresh scar in the sod of West Point Cemetery under which the body of Cadet Richard Brinsley Sheridan, Jr., would be buried beside other Army heroes.

Gen. Winfield Scott, who won the Mexican War, lies there. The remains of Gen. George Custer, slain by the tomahawks of the Sioux, are there. "Fighting Bob" Anderson, who defended Fort Sumter, sleeps in the West Point Cemetery. Now Cadet Sheridan, who died of injuries in the Yale-Army football game, will join that immortal trio, as fellow cadets chant the Army's song to its dead:

"Grip hands with us now though we see not."

MUFFLED DRUMS

Requiem mass was celebrated for Cadet Sheridan in the small Catholic chapel this morning, with cadets from his own company standing rigidly at attention as a guard of honor.

The flag-draped coffin was moved from the hospital to the chapel, and as he finished the mass, the Rev. J. A. Langton, Army chaplain, whispered over the body:

"Requiescat in pace."

Then the church retired to allow the Army to say farewell to its own in the traditional and time-honored fashion.

The mass was attended by all Catholic members of the corps of cadets, the limited space in the chapel preventing the entire corps from attending.

A short service will follow late this afternoon, and then will come the procession to the cemetery. The Military Academy band will lead the way, its muffled drums proclaiming that it is escorting a fallen hero to his grave. Then will come the caisson bearing the coffin. In conformance with Army custom, a black horse, with turned-in boots attached to the saddle stirrups, will follow the caisson.

MOTHER BRAVE

Mrs. Sheridan and her son, Gerald, who raced from Georgia to New Haven, when news of the boys' injuries were received, will follow the caisson. Mrs. Sheridan spent the night as the guest of Capt. and Mrs. L. C. Warner.

With amazing courage she has kept back the mother's tears that are crowding into her eyes. With a determination that has aroused the greatest admiration of the hard-bitten Army officers here at the point, she has kept her poise and accepted her loss with a quiet dignity. She is the mother of a soldier and she has acted like the mother of a soldier.

Her car will be followed by the members of her son's corps and then in full dress uniform will march the entire personnel of the United States Military Academy. Last of all will come the officers of the academy, a silent group of men, supreme in action but horribly impotent in the face of such tragedy.

Tellegen's Ex-Wife Weds Danish Count

NINA ROMANO

Bride Is Former Actress, Daughter Of Glass Maker

Announcement of the wedding, which took place here Saturday, was made yesterday by the bride's father, J. Dale Dilworth, president of the Salem Glass Works.

The Countess was the third wife of Tellegen. They were divorced in November, 1928, in Los Angeles.

The Countess is a granddaughter of former Gov. Dale, of Virginia, and a cousin of the Earl of Craven, of England. After being graduated from the Ward-Belmont School in Nashville she attended a dramatic school in New York and met Tellegen when she was accepted for a role in the stage version of Don Juan. She was known on the stage as Nina Romano.

Vivian Duncan to Pay Gertrude Astor $664

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A $664 judgment against Vivian Duncan, of the stage and screen, was awarded yesterday to Gertrude Astor, film actress who sued for $1,107 for back rent and damages to Miss Astor's Hollywood home.

Hinkler Completes N. Y.-Jamaica Hop

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Bert Hinkler, Australian flier, who once held the Australia-England flight record, landed here yesterday at the conclusion of a non-stop flight from New York. His time was 17 hours and 45 minutes.

Associates said he planned to continue to Natal, Brazil. It was believed he would decide at Natal whether he would carry out plans to make a flight by easy stages to Africa.

Two Held in Attack, Third Man Sought

East End police today are searching for a third man in connection with an attempted holdup of George Retetagos, 33, of 532 Hemlock street, at Frankstown avenue and Broad street, early today. Retetagos, with both eyes blackened and body bruises, is in the Pittsburgh Hospital. Joseph Ferrara, 30, of 6615 Shetland avenue, was arested after a chase of several blocks, and William Parenti, 21, of 369 Omega street, was later arrested at his home.

RUINS OF PLANE FOUND, HUNT FOR BODIES

Craft Believed Wrecked Two Years Ago Discovered in Hills Near Uniontown

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 28—Remnants of a fire-swept cabin plane were found today by three youths nearly a mile from the Washington Springs road in the mountains east of Uniontown.

The discovery led to the belief that one or more persons may have perished and an intensive search was started for bodies in the thick underbrush.

About two years ago, a woman residing in that part of the mountain reported that she saw a blazing plane fall. When a scout ship from Burgess Field, the government station near here, failed to locate the plane, the matter was dropped.

Frank Jeffries, Bob Bell and John Stiffler, of Uniontown, were walking through the mountains when they were attracted by a propeller which stood above the underbrush. This led to investigation which revealed the ruins of the craft, including a blackened motor, fragments of the fuselage and metal parts.

WOMAN SHOOTS MAN IN CHURCH

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 28—(AP.)—John Redmond, 50, and Mrs. Amelia Jones, 50, were wounded seriously today in a double shooting in the basement of the Elm Park Methodist Episcopal Church.

Redmond, who is employed by the church as a custodian, told police Mrs. Jones shot him and then turned the revolver on herself. To detectives, Mrs. Jones said that "Redmond ruined my life."

Police said the two had known each other for more than 30 years. Mrs. Jones, they said, is married to a soldier who lives in Washington.

'KIDNAPED' GIRL PHONES HOME

MONESSEN, Pa., Oct. 28.—As police broadened their search for Mary Laskota, 19, believed kidnaped by Joseph Valencia, 24, of Monongahela last Saturday, a telephone message was received at the girl's home this afternoon saying she is well and for the family not to worry. A neighbor answering the telephone in the Laskota home received the message, which she said she believed was from Valencia. Efforts to trace the call by police failed.

The call today was the first word received since Mary disappeared.

Belgian Rulers Visit Whitlock, Ill in Home

BRUSSELS, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Brand Whitlock, former American ambassador to Belgium, was convalescing slowly in his hotel today. He received a visit last Friday from King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, the only persons thus far admitted to his apartments.

Capone May Quit Fight on Prison Pending Appeal

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Al Capone, America's chief gangster, may capitulate to his adversary, the United States government, and willingly go to Leavenworth Penitentiary, his lawyers indicated today.

But this capitulation would be made only to avoid "wasting time," while his attorneys strive in the higher courts to win a reversal of the jury verdict finding the hoodlum boss guilty of defrauding the government out of his income tax.

The possibility that Capone may shortly ask to be taken to Leavenworth, where he is under sentence to serve a 10-year term, arose as a consequence of a ruling by the Circuit Court of Appeals, denying the gangster his liberty on bail.

GETS HOME COOKING

The ruling, handed down yesterday, means that Capone must remain in the County Jail here until his appeal from his conviction is ultimately disposed of, a matter of nearly two years if customary procedure is followed.

Capone's attorney, Michael Ahern, said he might go to Washington to apply to the Supreme Court for bail. If it were refused, Ahern indicated that he might ask to have the writ of supersedeas vacated, so Capone could be taken to Leavenworth to start serving his sentence, pending further legal action.

Meanwhile, Capone remained in a hospital ward cell on the fifth floor of the jail. He eats the jail's cornmeal mush or oatmeal with his morning coffee and stewed fruit, but has his luncheon sent in by his family.

Capone proved today that he is a real "literary guy" when for the first time since he went to jail, he called for books from the library of the institution. An attendant brought a stack of mystery thrillers.

GUARD GETS SIX MONTHS

Six months in the County Jail was the penalty levied today on Phil D'Andrea, Capone's bodyguard, for carrying a revolver while attending the gang leader's income tax trial.

At the behest of Defense Attorney Ahern, the court granted D'Andrea a two weeks' stay of execution because of the serious illness of the defendant's mother.

In sentencing D'Andrea, Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson took occasion to assail Capone as the leader of "an insurrection against the United States."

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The Graf Zeppelin returned to her home port here early today from her voyage to Pernambuco, Brazil. She made the trip in 99 hours, 45 minutes.

Shuns Capone Crown In Fear of Killers

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Chicago police, seeking to learn who will attempt to take up the reins of gang leadership in Chicago, now that Al Capone is locked up as an income tax dodger, questioned "Dago Lawrence" Mangano, listed by the Chicago Crime Commission as a "public enemy."

Mangano was prompt with a denial. Implying he would expect to be killed, he said:

"I don't want to be a king for a day."

Doctors Sure Nesbit Girl Will Recover

Physicians attending Nancy Elizabeth Nesbit at the Casualty Hospital, Washington, today expressed confidence that she would recover. Unconscious for more than 130 hours, Miss Nesbit regained consciousness several times yesterday but has not yet been able to speak.

Miss Nesbit was injured and her father, Harrison Nesbit, retired Pittsburgh banker, was killed when their automobile hit a parked truck while they were traveling to the races at Laurel, Md., last week from their home at Warrenton, Va.

VAUCLAIN SEES IMPROVEMENT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Public confidence, Samuel M. Vauclain, chairman of the Baldwin Locomotive Works board believes, has rallied to the support of the country's financial institutions, thus creating far better business conditions.

Speaking last night before a civic organization, he condemned "carrying money in our boots" and urged continued support of banks. He asserted "the American dollar stands supreme over all the other money of the world," and that business is on the upturn. He said:

"The situation is sounder than three months ago, more dependable than six months ago. The multitude has been aroused to protect American financial institutions."

SLEUTHS MISS 'LITTLE JOE'

After missing "Little Joe" Spinelli, wanted in two racket murders by 20 minutes here, City Detectives Frank Dodson and Thomas Mulvihill sped in an automobile for Youngstown early today on a tip that he was hiding in that district.

The two sleuths were said to have been trailing Spinelli on his visit to Pittsburgh several days ago to settle up his financial affairs.

Spinelli is wanted in connection with the slaying of his reputed partners in the bootleg supply racket, Jack Palmere and Sam (Toto) Amarosa. Palmere was shot to death in Wylie avenue. Amarosa was slain and his body burned in an oil soaked blanket in Patton Township.

JUDGE SOFFEL'S FATHER DIES

Jacob Soffel, 89, who left his sickroom to cast a ballot for the nomination of his daughter, Sara, as Judge of County Court, in the September primary election, died early today in his home at 16 Greenbush street, Mt. Washington. A veteran of the Civil War, serving in Company D, 107th Pennsylvania Volunteers, Mr. Soffel was one of the few surviving members of the Col. William Moody Post, Grand Army of the Republic. For 35 years he was a familiar figure in the Allegheny County Courthouse, where he served as interpreter and crier in Common Pleas Court No. 2.

Mr. Soffel was born in Adenbach, Germany, and came to the United States at the age of 18, locating on Mt. Washington, where he had since resided. He was Alderman of the old Thirty-second Ward for 25 years, and was a charter member of the Mt. Washington German Evangelical Church. He leaves his widow, Elizabeth J. Soffel; three daughters, Phoebe, Catherine and Judge Soffel; two grandsons, Dr. Joseph A. Soffel and Howard M. Soffel, and one great-grandson, Andrew Jacob Soffel.

Funeral services will be held at 8 p. m. Friday evening, and interment will be in West Liberty Cemetery Saturday.

3 CASTAWAYS ON GUNBOAT

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Three Americans steaming toward this port aboard the gunboat Sacramento today after their rescue from six months of shipwreck existence on a lonely Pacific isle, were trying to make up for enforced tobacco abstinence with constant smoking.

The castaways, clad only in loin cloths, were found by the gunboat yesterday afternoon on the beach of the Island of Cocos, 550 miles southwest of Panama. Their presence there was discovered Saturday by Julius Fleischman, son of a former Mayor of Cincinnati, who is cruising to the South Seas in the yacht Camargo. His party found the remains of the yawl West Wind, which wrecked last April, and a note signed by the three men which indicated they had been on the spot 48 hours before.

TRUNK SLAYER FIGHTS RETURN TO ARIZONA

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28—Armed with extradition papers for the return of Mrs. Ruth Judd to Arizona, there to stand trial for the "trunk murders," Sheriff J. R. McFadden, of Phoenix, arrived today only to find defense attorneys girding for a bitter battle aimed to delay the removal of the "tiger woman" to the scene of the crime.

Indicating that the defense in Phoenix for the slaying of her two friends, Hedwig Samuelson and Agnes Leroi, would be insanity, defense attorneys today called in alienists to examine Mrs. Judd.

County Attorney Lloyd Andrews, of Phoenix, countered by announcing that he, too, would have Mrs. Judd examined by other alienists if deemed necessary to refute her insanity plea.

PAPERS ATTACKED

Meanwhile, another barrier to the immediate removal of Mrs. Judd to Phoenix was raised by defense attorneys who claimed they had found a flaw in the extradition papers signed by Gov. James Rolph, Jr., of California.

Sheriff McFadden was determined, however, to speed up the proceedings. He said:

"I am going to take Mrs. Judd back to Arizona and we are going to hang her."

In the hospital ward of the county jail Mrs. Judd met the news of the issuance of extradition papers with an outbreak of grief. While jail attendants tried to calm her down, the confessed woman-slayer wept and shouted hysterically. She sobbed:

"Oh, isn't there something my lawyers can do? Hasn't it been proven that I'm sick with active tuberculosis?"

Judd's First Wife Narcotic Victim

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Examination of records here today disclosed that the first wife of Dr. William C. Judd, husband of Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, charged with the slaying of Miss Hedvig Samuelson and Mrs. Agnes Leroi, died in Phoenix in July, 1920.

A Phoenix physician, now dead, signed the death certificate, giving the cause of death as "narcotic poisoning."

181,605 TO GET MAIL JOBS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Postmaster General Brown today authorized the temporary employment, starting December 13, of 181,605 workers to handle Christmas mail.

Between 900 and 1,000 extra clerks and carriers will be given employment here during the holiday rush, according to Postmaster James B. Anderson, who said more person have applied than possibly can be utilized. Preference is given the unemployed married man.

Vets to Get Pensions But Governor Waits

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Confederate veterans will receive their pension checks November 1, as usual, but employes of the state government won't get their monthly stipend until Tennessee's treasury is fuller.

Comptroller Roy Wallace disclosed there is enough money to pay the pensions. He said the employes, including Gov. Henry H. Horton, would have to wait, and he gave no intimation of how long it would be.

Nobleman Gigolo Inherits Estate

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Baron Giorgio Mario Suriani, Italian nobleman who turned gigolo, has appeared to claim the $250,000 legacy which an attorney was informed had been bequeathed to him by an uncle in Europe.

The baron came to America 10 years ago and attracted attention when he offered to marry any woman with a $100,000 dowry.

BRITISH VOTES OVERWHELM LABORITES

MacDonald Coalition Group Continues in Power With Conservatives in Majority

had dropped [illegible] and the tide was still set against [illegible]

Without Mr. Henderson the party was [illegible] but several of its [illegible] spokesmen issued statements to the effect that the party would keep its powder dry and be ready for what the future might bring.

Mr. MacDonald, contrary to custom, left Seaham in the morning and flew down to London to take personal charge as Prime Minister. He expected to see the King [illegible] or tomorrow and he summoned the cabinet for a meeting [illegible] morning.

LLOYD GEORGE ELECTED

With the exception of Mr. Henderson all the party leaders were elected. David Lloyd George, whose Liberals polled a disappointing [illegible] came through with a substantial majority in his own Welsh district.

Stanley Baldwin, the Conservative chief, won without opposition, while outstanding figures victorious in [illegible] included Sir John Simon, National Liberal, who broke away from Lloyd George; J. H. Thomas, National Labor; Malcolm MacDonald, National Labor, the Premier's son; Sir Herbert Samuel, National Liberal; Sir Samuel Hoare, Conservative; Sir Austen Chamberlain, Conservative; Neville Chamberlain, Conservative, and Winston Churchill, Conservative.

Lady Nancy Astor, the American-born M. P., [illegible] a majority of 10,000 votes [illegible] as a Conservative. [illegible] other women were elected, including Miss Megan Lloyd George, but Margaret (Our Maggie) Bondfield, a cabinet minister in the Labor government, was defeated.

Sir Oswald Mosley, millionaire leader of the new party, was defeated along with Great Britain's only prohibitionist member of Parliament, Edwin Scrymgeour, and Edgar Wallace, one-a-day detective story writer.

Strenuous efforts to pass protective tariff legislation were regarded certain to follow the Conservative victory, if as appeared certain they themselves would have an outright majority in Parliament.

TARIFF ISSUE

Many of them made support of protectionism a feature of their campaigns, and a tariff also was advocated by Sir Herbert Samuel's group of National Liberals, who had won 35 seats at the end of the first day's count.

Stanley Baldwin and other Conservative leaders have been somewhat non-committal on this point, however, and have rested with backing Prime Minister MacDonald in his statement that nothing would be excluded in the attempt to restore prosperity in Great Britain.

MISS ISHBEL MacDONALD . . . . . STUMPING FOR HER FATHER, VICTORIOUS IN ELECTIONS

Return of Baldwin As Premier Forecast

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Complete reorganization of the British Cabinet loomed today in the wake of the British general election.

Laborite spokesmen have always predicted that a victory for the coalition would lead the Conservative party to oust J. Ramsay MacDonald as prime minister and install in his stead a man committed to Tory policies, including a protective tariff.

Rumors were current that Stanley Baldwin, head of the Conservative party, who was re-elected to Parliament without opposition, would be made prime minister, thus ensuring Britain of an out-and-out Conservative regime.

Many claimants to government posts were expected. Neville Chamberlain, who aided Baldwin in leading the Tory campaign and who had a place in the coalition cabinet, was expected to succeed Philip Snowden as chancellor of the exchequer. Unless the political forecasters are mistaken, Snowden will carry his vitriolic tongue into the House of Lords.

Sir John Simon, so-called "renegade" Liberal, is expected to get an important post, since he led his party to switch to support of the government, leaving David Lloyd George and a few of his close supporters standing out as sole Liberal opposition.

Leaving Seaham for London by airplane this morning, MacDonald declared:

"The nation is showing it is going to stand no humbug at all in putting its House in order."

La Guardia Plans Congress Revolt

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia (Rep.), last night told a campaign rally of his constituents that he planned to go down to Congress and "hold up the works" until the rules were changed "so that members of the House shall decide what bills they are to consider and not two or three bosses."

Girl Autoist Robbed Of $5,000 Jewelry

Edge Home to Aid Baird in Campaign

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Walter E. Edge, American Ambassador to France, was here today to help campaign for his friend, David Baird, Jr., Republican candidate for Governor of New Jersey.

Ambassador Edge denied he had come here from Paris to accept appointment as successor to the late Dwight W. Morrow as United States Senator.

Raskob, du Pont Give Democratic Funds

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Loans totaling $20,000 made by John J. Raskob, national chairman, and $12,500 from Pierre S. du Pont of New York comprised the bulk of the receipts of the Democratic National Committee between September 1 and October 21, the committee reported to the clerk of the House today.

BRITISH TARIFF TO HURT U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—The landslide proportions of the Conservatives' victory in yesterday's British elections deeply impressed Washington today. The news of it was received with mixed feelings.

While there was a feeling of satisfaction over Britain's pronounced swing to the Right as opposed to the Left represented by the radical elements of the Labor party, there was at the same time some apprehension over the policies, particularly tariff, which the new government probably will proceed to put into effect without delay.

Britain is one of America's best customers, and any British protective policy is bound to affect American trade to considerable extent. That England and her colonies will now proceed to erect tariff barriers to protect home industries, and to stimulate trade within the empire no one here has any doubt.

Voters Serenade Lady Nancy Astor

PLYMOUTH, England, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—The voters of the Sutton division of Plymouth who for the sixth time have returned Viscountess Astor to Westminster as their representative in the House of Commons serenaded the American-born peeress today for hours after the last votes were in.

Hunting Outfit Taken From Garage

The thief who entered the garage of Henry Shultz, in the rear of his home, 3137 Willet road, Brentwood, apparently wanted to prepare for the rabbit hunting season, which opens Monday. The garage door was jimmied last night and two pairs of hunting boots and a hunter's coats with a license pinned to the back were stolen, police reported.

Dreiser Charges Mine Terrorism

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A proposal that he sponsor a Congressional inquiry into labor conditions in the mines of Harlan County, Kentucky, is under consideration by Senator Borah.

The appeal was made by Theodore Dreiser, chairman of the national committee for defense of political prisoners, who charged a "reign of terror" existed.

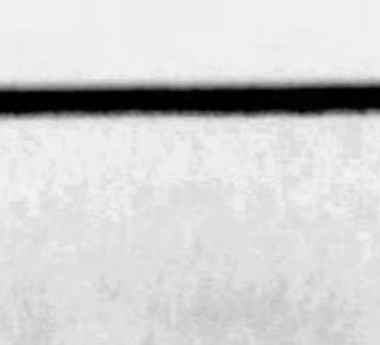
THE ROLLATOR

That's the way a man thinks. In selecting an electric refrigerator, about all he wants to know is, "How well does it work?" And Norge, with its simple, powerful, almost everlasting Rollator has a strong appeal to a man's reason.

He would probably leave important details, such as fine finish, shelf arrangement, easily cleaned interior with every corner rounded, and others, to his wife. But the more he studies the Rollator, the cold making mechanism, the more certain he would be that Norge was his choice of electric refrigerator. Unless you can afford to experiment, see the Norge before you buy an electric refrigerator.

Norge is manufactured by Norge Corporation, Detroit, Division of Borg-Warner Corporation, one of the world's largest makers of automotive parts, including free wheeling.



The Watervoir, of crystal glass, keeps a gallon of chilled water on tap . . . easy to use, fill and clean. It is extra equipment . . . available for all models.

TWO TRAPPED IN EXTORTION

MEADVILLE, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Two young men, charged with an attempt to extort $1,000 from a Meadville merchant, were held in $2,000 bond each last night for court.

Police said A. I. Eldred, shoe merchant, found a note under the door of his store in which he was told to drop the money from his automobile on Monday night along the Meadville-Titusville highway. If he did not comply destruction of his establishment was threatened.

Eldred carried out the instructions, with the exception that he took 12 policemen along and threw a decoy package instead of a bundle of money from his machine.

Shortly after the merchant had tossed out the package another automobile came along and stopped. A man got out, the package was picked up and the machine started off, with policemen on motorcycles in pursuit. The car was overtaken and Charles Walton and Albe Smith, both about 21, of East Mead Township, were arrested.

Musicians Warned In Theater Strike

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Announcement by William Goldman, general manager of the Stanley-Warner theaters, that he had engaged 50 union musicians for two theaters, was met with a statement by Adolph Hirschberg, head of the musicians' union, that any man accepting work would be expelled.

The union musicians left their work on September 12 after the Stanley-Warner Company had ordered the number of musicians reduced. Since then the two theaters dispensed with stage shows.

to diminish the number of clerks employed.

Capper's Weekly, owned by Senator Capper, of Kansas, reaching several millions that live on farms, is always interesting.

For instance, Senator Capper suggests that Mahatma Gandhi, afraid to come to America, less he be "laughed at," might "stick around Wall street. Nobody laughing there these days."

Senator Capper also reminds you of nature's marvelous fertility, as follows: Twenty-four years ago, the Canadian government bought a few bisons from a Montana Indian. Canada's bison herd now numbers 6,000 more than the allotted pasture land will take care of. Fifteen hundred young bisons must be slaughtered and eaten this year. No better meat than the hump of a young bison.

Laval, Premier of France, wanted to see President Hoover, came here and saw him.

He wanted to see the top of former Gov. Smith's Empire State Building, went up with Mr. Smith and saw it, a building 200 feet taller than the Eiffel tower in Paris, which is only a skeleton frame. Then he boarded his ship and went home, after spending five days in the United States.

You need not wonder that the French dictate to the other nations of Europe.

The British might be in a stronger position if they devoted less time to football, racing, tennis, cricket, golf, grouse shooting and more to thinking.

Lord Bryce, the great British scholar, said:

"My friends in Paris send to me the most brilliant and intellectually earnest young Frenchmen. I am ashamed to say that I cannot send their equals to my friends in Paris."

Americans might think about that.

We cannot forever rely on the fact that we have so much money and so many natural resources that we don't know what to do with them.

Boston Orchestra To Play Here Friday

The orchestra season will open Friday evening at Syria Mosque with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under Serge Koussevitzky, appearing after an absence of two years. The Richard Strauss work, "Ein Heldenleben," seldom heard owing to the great number of players required, will be the major item on the program. Other numbers are Handel's Concerto Grosso for string orchestra, two Nocturnes by Debussy, "Nuages" and "Fetes," and the Choreographic poem, "La Valse," by Ravel.

Ex-Wife of Belasco Scion Weds Broker

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Andre de Coppet, broker, who was joint owner of the speed airplane formerly flown by James Goodwin Hall, and Mrs. Muriel Belasco, former wife of a nephew of the late David Belasco, were married Monday at the home of friends near Philadelphia, it was announced today.

De Coppet owned with Hall the plane which crashed on Staten Island September 21, killing Peter J. Brady, banker and labor leader, who was a passenger, and a woman on whose home the wreck fell.

Cabbie Held After Freak Accident

An odd accident in Sixth street sent Carl Rose, 25, of 410 Morewood avenue to Allegheny General Hospital for treatment last night and resulted in Harry Goel, 31, of Ward street, a cab driver being arrested on a reckless driving charge. Rose was walking on the pavement when the cab passed close to the curb. The cab door swung open and struck a "no parking" sign, knocking it against Rose's right arm. He suffered severe bruises.

KOMIC CLUB'S PARTIES ON SATURDAY

Members and Friends, Many Costumed, to Celebrate Halloween in Theaters

Goblins and spooks are stalking about in preparation for the big Halloween celebration. Next to Christmas, Halloween is perhaps the most popular of all holidays. It is a time to "dress up" and have fun. And is there anyone who doesn't like to "dress up?" It is a phase of childhood that we never leave behind us.

Did you ever notice that when you are made up to represent a character you [illegible] tend to be that character? If you are dressed as a clown you go about as a clown would. If you are wearing mother's dress you imitate mother's walk and so on. "Dressing up" makes an actor out of you.

Now then, at all the Warner Theaters Saturday morning there will be Halloween Parties of the Warner Theaters - Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Clubs and their friends. It is expected that many boys and girls will wear their Halloween costumes to the party. Someone will be watching with a view to selecting talent for the Junior Komic Club stage presentations that are to be staged later. Many a great actor got his start by appearing in children's plays.

OPEN MEETINGS

Meetings of the Junior Komic Clubs are open to all children under sixteen whether members or not. Non-members may enjoy the entertainment but are not eligible to compete for prizes and participate in the special privileges of the club. A child may join at any meeting by registering with the manager of the neighborhood theater and receiving a card and club button.

Children who joined up to and including Saturday, October 24, hold attendance cards which are stamped at every meeting. A card bearing four out of five stamps entitles the holder to attend the free show at the Stanley Theater Sunday afternoon, November 15. Next month another big show will be staged and cards will be distributed soon.

1,800 ATTEND

By the way, the Mt. Oliver Harris has made unusual preparations for next Saturday's meeting of the Junior Komic Club. Last Saturday all attendance records were broken—1,800 boys and girls had a merry time at the show. Don't overlook this week's special program.

Getting back to the subject of Halloween, here is just a thought. We can have plenty of fun without destroying property and causing distress. Remember the club pledge:

"Loyalty to my country, obedience to my parents, love for my fellow playmates.

"I will be honest and truthful in school, on the playgrounds—wherever I may be.

"I will respect my elders and help the aged.

"I will do my best to spread good cheer."

A blank application coupon for membership in the Club is published on this page. Fill it in and mail to the Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and receive your button and membership card.

Cemetery Golfers Denounced By Ohio Official

ELYRIA, O., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Graveyard golfers have earned the wrath of City Service Director J. N. Eidt.

Eidt declared he did not intend to stand for apparent attempts to convert Brookdale Cemetery into a golf course and that anyone hereafter reported using graves as bunkers and headstones as hazards would be prosecuted.

A foursome appropriately dressed for golf, he learned, has been "playing" the cemetery.

KERR TO SEEK BOND BUYER

City bonds totaling $570,000 that went begging for buyers yesterday may be disposed of within a few days, Controller James P. Kerr said today.

The bonds were to be used for acquisition of property for the widening of streets in the South Side and West End districts, and for other improvements.

When the time came for opening of bids in Mayor Kline's office at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, it was discovered there were no bidders.

Dr. Kerr said later:

"Although the bonds have gone begging for bidders I am sure we can dispose of them within a few days. I have two or three prospects I believe who will pick them up. It seems to me that a lot of this copy written on the city hall probes might have had something to do with the failure to sell the bonds."

Kerr said it would not be necessary for the city to readvertise if the bonds were sold in the manner he proposed.

West View to Hold Republican Rally

Fire Company No. 1, of West View Borough, will hold a mass meeting for regular Republican candidates Saturday night in the West View Junior High School, Perry highway.

Dr. D. A. Atkinson, Burgess of West View, will be general chairman. He is assisted by William Martsolf, president of the Fire Company, and C. C. Stanger, secretary-treasurer.

Vigilantes to Trail Stealers of Dogs

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Disappearance of many valuable dogs here recently has led to plans for the formation of an anti-dog thief association reminiscent of the vigilante committees of the old West.

Mrs. George Bearden, the organizer, points out that "Many stolen dogs are as great a loss as horses were in other days."

Witness in Murder Case Cut in Jail

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Allen Bissett, 30, a prisoner in the Ohio County Jail, was seriously stabbed during the recreation hour last night, and Sheriff Ambrose Habig said that Jerry Crowder, 28, awaiting trial on a charge of slaying Albert Bryan, 30, was his assailant. Bissett was rushed to a hospital.

The wounded man was to have been one of the state's chief witnesses against Crowder.

GRIDIRON TO MOVIES :-: Many Ex-Football Stars Land in Hollywood :-: AMUSEMENTS :-: Notes and News About Stage and Screen

Joel McCrea, Regis Toomey And John Mack Brown Ex-College Kickers

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.

A former All-American quarterback at Alabama, Johnny Mack Brown is perhaps the outstanding pigskin star now appearing before the camera.

But there are many others. Charles Starrett, for instance, played end at Dartmouth while Director Alan Dwan once was quarterback for Notre Dame.

Other ex-college players who now smear their faces with grease-paint are [illegible] Allen, one-time quarterback at St. Thomas; Regis Toomey, member of the freshman squad at Pittsburgh and later student manager of the varsity team; Joel McCrea, backfield man on Pomona squad; John Wayne, tackle on first string for University of Southern California, and [illegible] Moulan, University [illegible] flash (all-state halfback in high school days).

Directors who once painted cleats in the pigskin are Dave Butler, lineman [illegible]; Mel Brown, backfield at University of Illinois; Ed Sedgwick, center at Texas [illegible], and Brown, lineman for [illegible], and Norman McLeod, [illegible] on University of Washington squad.

And believe it or not, Claire Maynard, new Fox starlet, once played quarterback on a girl's football team in the East.

MORE GOSSIP

Dorothy Sebastian has a letter from Alice Terry relating that Rex Ingram is playing the lead in his own picture. It is a story of the Foreign Legion and Rex is filming it in Algiers. . . . A new fad in Hollywood is to give [illegible] parties. Paul Bern recently entertained 100 guests at the opening of "Precedent" and now Ernst Lubitsch is outdoing him by being host to 150 at the Los Angeles opening of Laura Hope Crews in "The Silver Cord." The reason no doubt is the presence of Ona Munson in the cast. . . . Billie Dove's brother Charles Bohny will be married this week to Mary Ashcraft. He is a cameraman at Caddo. . . . You can see Laura La Plante almost any evening at the Roosevelt Hotel blossom room. . . . Johnny Weissmuller and his wife Bobbe Arnst likewise are regular visitors. Bobbe will entertain at the Roosevelt later in the season. . . . [illegible] Johnson dances there now and she is one of the smoothest ballroom performers I have seen. . . . Clark Gable will have another try at deer hunting this time in Utah. . . . Patsy Ruth Miller is out of the hospital. . . . Pola Negri and Director Paul Stein must have made up, as she threw a party for him on the night the picture was completed. . . . The young man Sydney Foxe has been going around with is Jeane Delesco, an artist. . . . What efficiency man said "Shooting stops Saturday and firing starts Monday"?

IN THE NEWS

Doug, Jr.'s next picture will be a race track story called "The Rear of the Crowd." Howard Hawks is the author and will handle the megaphone. An adaptation is being made by Seton I. Miller. It isn't likely that the production will get under way before December as Doug doesn't finish his current picture until November 11.

Meanwhile Joan Crawford is getting a vacation. She tells me she would like to go out of town for a rest, but doesn't want to leave without Doug. Joan was out to the party Lawrence Tibbett gave last Friday. She's still very much upset over the separation rumors.

Two Held in Plot On Warburton Suit

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Jacob Grodman, 22, and David Braunstein, 38, were held in bail of $2,500 each for Special Sessions Court on charges of trying to coerce Jack Marcus, hotel proprietor, into inducing Mary Brown Warburton to settle for $20,000 a suit said to have been filed against her in Pittsburgh by Mrs. Ted Healy, wife of the musical revue star. The charge was changed from attempted extortion.

Police said Miss Warburton is believed to be a relative of the late John Wanamaker.

He's a Genius

Sewickley Is Thrilled By Play

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Now we have Sewickley among producing centers, for last night "Too Much Money," by Thetta Quay Franks, a former resident of the exclusive borough, was presented in the Edgeworth Club by the Sewickley Valley Hospital Cot Club, under which name a talented group of amateur players combine artistic efforts with charitable aims.

George Seibel.

"Too Much Money" is a mystery play. Somebody is murdered and everybody is suspected. For three acts of suspense the audience has to guess and wait for the dogged detective to drag a confession out of the murderer.

Mrs. Franks has built up an exceedingly plausible plot and has painted several characters, especially the detective and an acidulous aunt, with amusing touches.

PLAYERS DID WELL

There was a large cast and they did well. The staginess of the amateur, who has two hands too many, and knows the audience is looking at him, was never in evidence. Mr. Rose as the detective and Mrs. Jacoby as Penelope Worthington, Mrs. Arrott as Sally Dale and Mr. Taylor as an Irish footman, Mrs. Todd as the acidulous aunt and Mr. Chaplin as the juvenile hero, were all at ease and "got across" effectively, while Mr. Gundelfinger as the villain left the only regret that he was killed too soon.

FINELY STAGED

Few stage sets in the professional theater are designed and built as beautifully as the living-room which was the work of Charles Lee Collins.

The play was directed by Charles Richardson and George William Smith in truly professional style. As for the props, the lighting, and all the other points—few professional productions fare as well.

But "the play's the thing," and the applause which called Mrs. Franks before the curtain must convince her that she has something with possibilities.

Countess Nicola Married in Reno

RENO, Nev., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Countess Florenza K. Schembri Nevalle De Zaruba Nicola, well known in New York, San Francisco and Pittsburgh musical circles, was married here Monday night to Charles S. Chandler, Ely, Nev., and San Francisco attorney. The countess was divorced recently.

Man Going Blind Gives Fortune To Cripples

DETROIT, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—An elderly real estate owner, who is gradually going blind, has turned his entire fortune of $200,000 over to the Detroit Board of Education for the benefit of crippled school children.

Louis Remberg, the donor, urged that his benefaction not be made public, and declined to discuss it.

From the corporation counsel's office, however, it was learned that half the income is to go to Remberg during his lifetime and half is to be used to furnish crippled school children with better educational and health facilities. After his death, the income and principal are to be paid out for the benefit of crippled children within 25 years.

Comedy by Kaufmann Players Tuesday

"A Pair of Spectacles" will be presented by the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Players at the Theresa L. Kaufmann Theater Tuesday evening. It is a three-act comedy taken from the French by Sydney Grundy. Louis Isaacs, director of the Settlement Players, has called rehearsals for every evening this week. Anne Phyllis Hanick plays the leading part, that of a young and beautiful matron married to an older man. Hyman Bennett and Harry Ziff play two brothers who figure prominently in the story.

Stanley to Show Film One Day Earlier

"Platinum Blonde," with Jean Harlow, Robert Williams and Loretta Young and Walter Catlett, opens in the Stanley tomorrow instead of Friday. The Thursday opening is for this week only.

Schools Given New Borrowing Powers

HARRISBURG, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—School districts may issue temporary obligations payable within one year out of current revenues to meet current expenses, without regard to existing indebtedness or the general borrowing capacity of the districts, Deputy Attorney General Harris C. Arnold ruled in an opinion for W. M. Denison, deputy superintendent of public instruction.

The request for the opinion was filed by Denison for the School Board of Latrobe Borough.

Back Again

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Mme. Schumann-Heink, who will sing the comedy role of Katisha in "The Mikado" in the Alvin next week, is one operatic star who doesn't deny she's a veteran. She boasts about it. She tasted success first when burdened with struggles and babies. For singing at a benefit, she got 30 marks, plus critical recognition that indexed her as a contralto so effectively that opera in Hamburg—Berlin next—called her. She was a grand mother and now she's a grandmother, singing her first Gilbert and Sullivan role in this country.

Jack Benny is something like Will Rogers. Will began in vaudeville with a rope, Benny with a violin. When Will found the audience liked his gags he discarded the rope. In the same way, Benny gradually came to holding his violin in his hand and letting his tongue amuse the folks. Drifting to Hollywood for variety, he was captured for the fillums, and made a hit in the "Hollywood Revue." Now he is a member of the clowning dept., Carroll "Vanities," coming to the Nixon next week.

This will be followed by "The Big House," Tuesday; "Professor Tim" (matinee) and "John Ferguson" Wednesday. Thursday and Friday attractions, in Carnegie Music Hall, will be "The White-headed Boy" and "Juno and the Paycock," respectively.

Newspaperman Stuff

One of the reporters for the N. Y. Times was ordered to hang around a political club in Greenpernt, to see what he could pick up concerning the Seabury investigation. For the benefit of provincial readers, Mr. Seabury is investigating politicians who get rich suddenly.

The scribe was there the night the lights were dimmed in Edison's honor. When the mazdas were switched on again, the reporter was minus his watch!

A Form of Criticism

"Whatever became of the old gag about the movie magnate who said: 'I can tell you in two words—Im-Possible?' "

"It dies standing up in Jed Harris' new show, 'Wonder Boy.' "

Gag

It was at the funeral of a vaudevillian. Friends were paying him honeyed phrases over his casket. One of them eulogized:

"He was one of the finest men that ever walked on a stage!"

"You said it," interrupted a critic who knew him well, "and if he hasn't got up to steal a bow yet—then I'm sure he's dead."

Bronx Cheer?

In the Bronx the posters announce the fact that George Jessel is to appear at the Franklin Theater. They read:

COMING!
GEORGE JESSEL
in person
"An American Tragedy"

Broadway Praise

Lew Brown, the songsmith, offers a few samples of compliments as they are heard along Broadway.

"He never picks up a check—but oh, how he can wear clothes!"

"He once did five years in jail, but can he play a ukelele!"

"He may beat up his mother—but what laughs at a party, some host!"

How Embarrassing

Marc Lachman, one of the better exploiters, was wedded recently to a lovely dancer named Melva Cornell. Marc likes to stay up and loaf with the boys and the bride no like. So Marc took her to see the new play, "Lean Harvest," in which the husband cries:

"Somebody must make the money around this house!"

Marc had heard about the play but hadn't seen it until he took his wife with him to Give Her An Idea. After Act II he said:

"You see what happens?" barked Mrs. Lachman. "Come on home!"

By Way of Report

The absent-minded professor has been the butt of many a quip, but it remained for Connecticut to elect him Governor. His Excellency (Wilbur L. Cross, formerly dean at Yale Graduate School) was due to address the Hartford K. of C. on Columbus Day and forgot to show up!

The day after Edison's passing he issued a proclamation suggesting that all lights be dimmed at the time of the funeral, which was in the MIDDLE OF THE AFTERNOON!

You Adore Her

She was in the ensemble of several shows along the Grandest Canyon. Three months after she married the lad she loved devotedly, he wearied of her and started to cheat. Then he left her to shift for herself.

That was hardly two years ago. Today she enchants millions of movie-goers with her beauty and she is rich.

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for the simile dictionary: P. G. Wodehouse: He was the sort of a man who would have tried to cheer up Napoleon by talking about the winter sports at Moscow . . . Anon: As New Yorkish as the pushcart face in the back seat of a Rolls-Royce . . . H. I. Phillips: As innocent as a Tammany official about what goes on in his club . . . Harry Grayson: Sharkey keeps coming back like an election day repeater. Bugs Baer: Everything will straighten out like the sword swallower who ate a crowbar . . . Also—He was just as much at home as the Philharmonic Orchestra would be at a barn dance . . . Pathfinder: As helpless as a Robot without a wall plug . . . A. Schwartz: Overstuffed as a columnist's wastebasket.

Haw!

Ballyhoo, the new humor mag, has the most amusing rejection slip. It reads, in part:

"We thank you from the bottom of our heart for giving us the opportunity of perusing your damnably clever contribution. After a careful reading (well, the first few paragraphs, anyway) we regret to say that we find it lousy. However, remember rejection does not imply lack of merit. It merely implies lack of merit."

China Flood In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The great Chinese flood, as seen from the air by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife as they flew over the devastated regions along the overflowing Yangtse River, is presented in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Most of the pictures were made by Lindbergh himself, and some of them by Mrs. Lindbergh.

Destruction wrought in the Hankow district, China, and in towns and villages, with water up to the rooftops, is shown. Inhabitants who had not already succumbed are seen floating about in crude makeshift boats, hoping against hope to be rescued.

VIVIDLY DESCRIBED

Pictures made from Col. Lindbergh's airplane are supplemented by official pictures of the disaster made by the United States Navy. The Globe Trotter gives a graphic description of the scenes.

Al Capone, king of the Chicago gangsters, characterized as Public Enemy No. 1, is seen as he flees from his automobile into the Federal Court in Chicago to receive his sentence of 11 years. United States Attorney Johnson, who prosecuted Capone, points out to the youth of the land that crime does not pay.

Gar Wood thrills 100,000 as he speeds up the Harlem River, New York, in an attempt to lower the record of 110 miles an hour held by Kaye Don, for the sake of charity. He risks his life and boat by dashing through driftwood and other obstructions to attain a speed of 104 miles an hour.

GREATEST BRIDGE OPENS

There are pictures of the opening of the world's greatest bridge—the George Washington span, crossing the Hudson River from New York to New Jersey. The exercises were participated in by Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, and Gov. Larson, of New Jersey. Scenes of and from the bridge are unparalleled.

The welcome given to France's Premier, Laval, and his daughter, Josette, in New York and Washington, make a highly interesting picture.

Bank at Ardmore Closes Its Doors

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The Merion Title and Trust Company of Ardmore, with branches in Narberth and Cynwyd, today placed its affairs in the hands of the State Banking Department.

On July 29, this year, the bank listed deposits of $7,300,000, and assets of $11,478,000. The business of the Ardmore Title and Trust Company was merged with that of the Merion Title and Trust Company last December.

Lecture to Explain Russ 5-Year Plan

An illustrated lecture showing the development of the five-year plan in Russia will be presented tomorrow night by Sender Garlin, co-editor of the Labor Defense, in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement. The lecture is held under the auspices of the Pittsburgh district of the International Labor Defense. Garlin has just returned to this country after four months in Soviet Russia and Germany.

Lecturer Depicts Berlin, 1931, Scenes

Pictures taken in Berlin were presented last night by E. M. Newman in his "Traveltalk" in Carnegie Music Hall. Speaking on Berlin, 1931, Newman illustrated his lecture with scenes in the beer gardens and views of the new Pergamon Museum. Views and descriptions of the palace and gardens at Potsdam were included in the lecture.

Beamish Ill, Delay Vote Device Re-Test

'TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

People Must Learn to Make Their Own Decisions

Has a married lady with a tiny child a right to go back to school—take up her books again, and her old dream of "making" college?

Or will she be doing her home and the big boy and junior an injustice, if she does?

Mrs. S. N. G. wants to go. Ever since she was a youngster, she's dreamed of the day when she could go to college. For a while it seemed as if she must give it all up . . . but things are breaking now so that she can . . . If she won't be doing something selfish and wrong.

What do you think. Should she take her chance, and go ahead? Or is her place "in the home?"

CIRCUMSTANCES IMPROVE

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I have often read your advice, and your comments on life and character, and because I think you tell people straight from the shoulder what's what, I am coming to you with my problem. I have almost decided it for myself, yet I still have doubts about whether I'm doing right or not. So I am asking for your opinion.

"I am a married woman of 21, and have a daughter who is a few months past two years. My husband makes a comfortable living, and we have a girl in the house who takes care of the baby and does the cleaning. I do the cooking for my husband and myself, and the girl cooks for herself and the baby.

"Of course, we weren't always as comfortable as we are now. The first year was pretty hard, furnishing a home on a meager salary, and getting adjusted. The second was, too, as I was tied down with the baby, and did all my work myself. But now things are going fine.

NEVER GAVE UP HOPE

"My problem is that I want to return to school. I want to go to college but, in order to do this, I must first go back to high. I graduated, but have only had two years of academic work, the other two having been commercial studies. Now, knowing the facts, I ask you whether or not I ought to go back to school as I want? Would I be doing an injustice to my husband, my child and my home, if I did? And will I be belittling myself in the eyes of my friends and relatives, by going back to high?

"I have never quite forsaken the hope that some day I would be able to return to school and take up the profession that has been my ambition since childhood. I think that day has arrived. Won't you please help me to see whether or not it really has? What is your advice?

"MRS. S. N. G."

What is my advice? Go ahead, sister! Get all the education you can. Fit yourself to earn your living. You may have to do it some day. And every woman should know how . . . because none of us ever know when death or misfortune may strike, and sweep away all that we once thought was so solid and secure. If that day ever comes to you, that education, which you're hesitating about going after, will help you to take care of yourself and of that little daughter of yours. It will save you from fear and want, and be the means of giving her an education some day.

MAKE OWN DECISIONS

Stop worrying about what your friends will think of your going back to high school. What they think doesn't matter. It is your life, youngster, and you'll have to step out and live it for yourself if you're ever going to amount to a row of pins. You'll have to learn to make your own decisions, and lean on your own backbone.

And how about your husband? Your baby? What will they think? I'll gamble they'll admire your grit! You'll be doing them no injustice by going out and learning to be a fine, wiser, more interesting wife and mother . . . Providing you don't neglect them while you're doing it.

However, I'll wager that about 7,958 mad mammas and peeved papas will disagree with me. So here's their chance to register Stern Disapproval.

Hurl your stuff, neighbors. I'm ready!

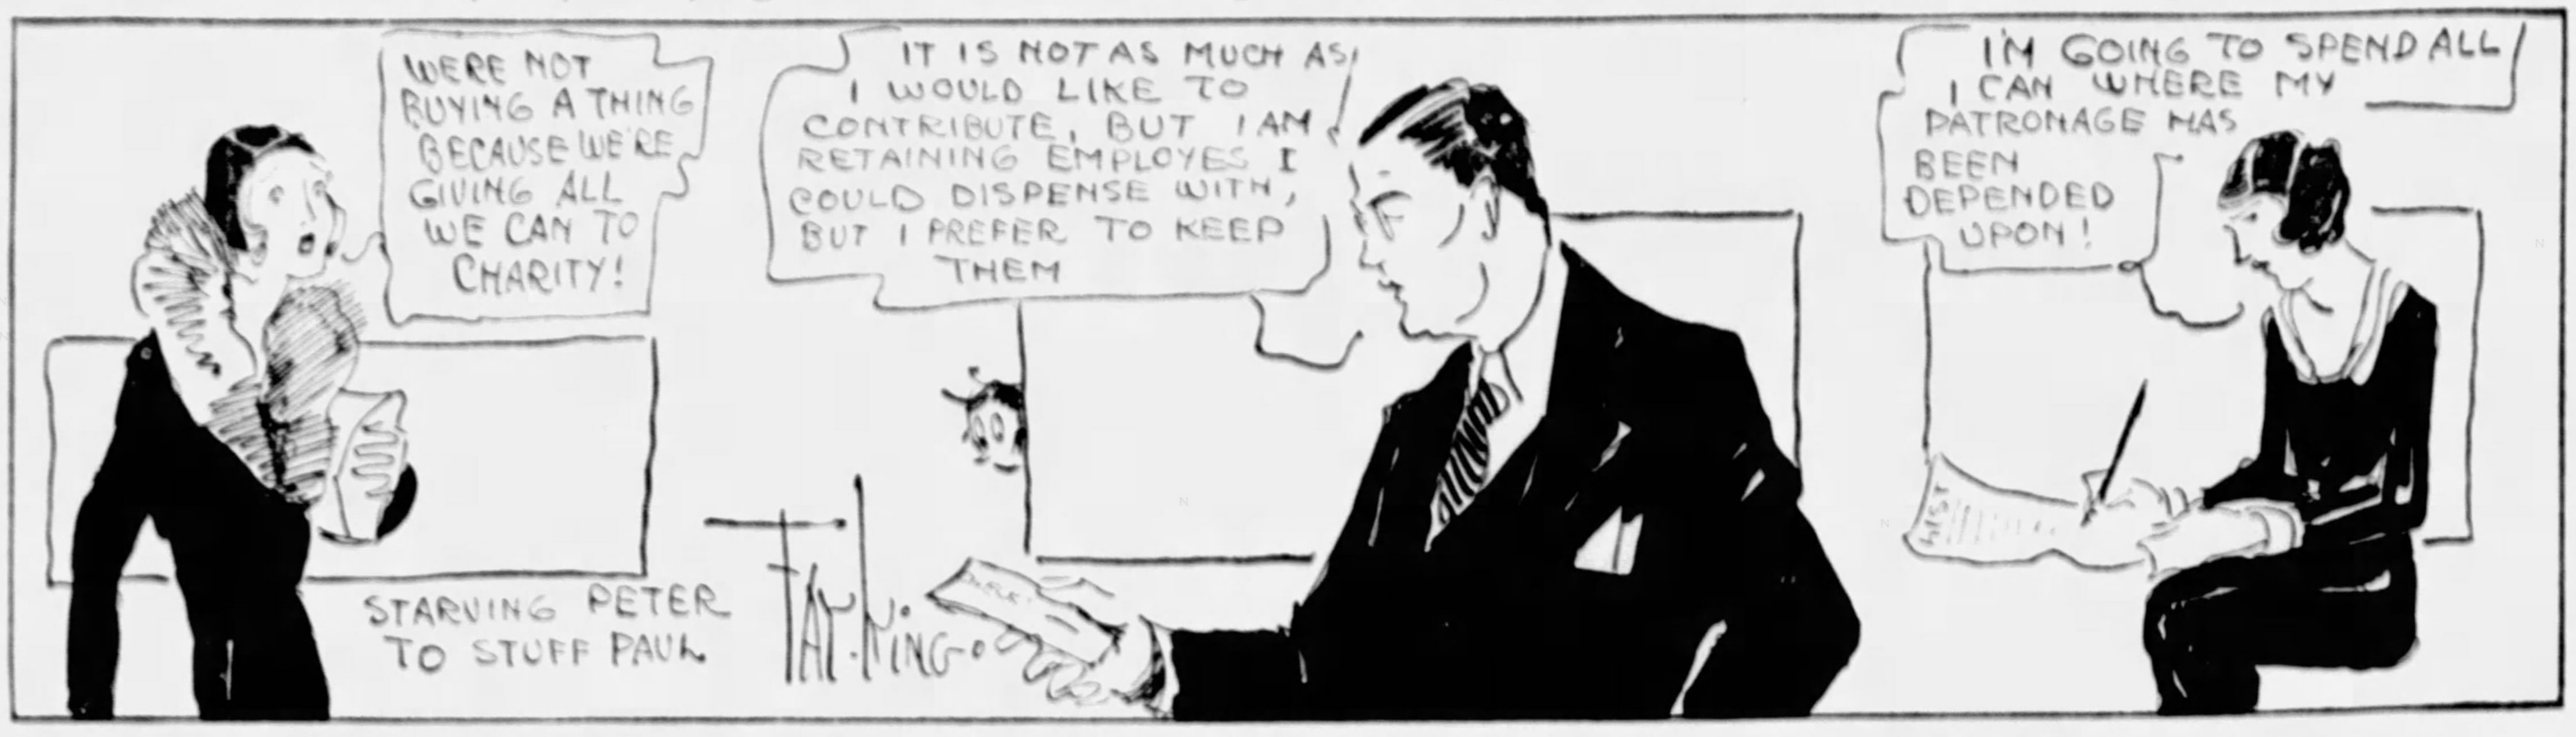
'Prosperity' Buying Will Suffer Through Economy to Aid Charity—Fay King



WERE NOT BUYING A THING BECAUSE WE'RE GIVING ALL WE CAN TO CHARITY!
IT IS NOT AS MUCH AS I WOULD LIKE TO CONTRIBUTE, BUT I AM RETAINING EMPLOYES I COULD DISPENSE WITH, BUT I PREFER TO KEEP THEM
I'M GOING TO SPEND ALL I CAN WHERE MY PATRONAGE HAS BEEN DEPENDED UPON!
STARVING PETER TO STUFF PAUL
FAY KING
LIST

By FAY KING

Millions are going to be collected for charities.

Now many persons cannot afford to give as much as they would like to, or feel that they ought to, and at the same time have money left to spend and support business conditions.

Therefore, buying, which more than anything else will help restore prosperity, is going to suffer through economy to help charity.

To my mind the one who spends as much as he can possibly afford for purchasing, or who provides work for as many as he possibly can, is doing as much, if not more, than one who economizes in these things and contributes to charity.

In depriving an employe or worker of salary you undermine morals that charity can never restore.

Dicky Becomes Angry Over Mother's Actions

Lillian caught my eyes and held them as Dicky voiced his irritation at his mother's announcement concerning our baby daughter's name. In hers there was a humorous comprehending twinkle which subtly soothed my own self-esteem, absurdly ruffled by my mother-in-law's lofty ignoring of both Dicky and me in her edict, for essentially that was what her words were.

"I'll tell you in a second," she said in answer to Dicky's final demand. She took the cloth of his sleeve in her fingers and pretended to examine it critically.

"No, you're not all wet, my Dicky-bird," she said judicially. "In fact, your feathers are quite dry. But they need preening a bit. There! there!" She pretended to stroke his sleeve, then changed to a brisk tone. "For the love of Mohammed, and the rest of the prophets!" she declaimed, "haven't you lived with your mother long enough to get used to her little ways."

"Oh! I don't mind for myself," Dicky said, a bit shamefacedly, albeit stubbornly, "but it was like a slap in the face to Madge, the way the mater ignored her. Never said anything to indicate the baby had a mother and father among those present or even among the living. 'She is to be called Faith!' Just like that! I don't care if she is old, she ought to be taught something about common, decent courtesy."

I made a little movement of protest, but Lillian threw me a quick signal of caution, and I closed my lips tightly over the words trembling upon them.

Dicky grinned reluctantly at her absurdity and I saw with relief that Lillian had been able to exorcise his choler. I knew now that his mother would never guess his resentment and through my joy because the name my father had wished for our baby was now safely hers, there ran a selfish little feeling of gratification at Dicky's willingness to jeopardize everything by censuring his mother for what he considered a slight to me.

"Let's go out on the veranda and forget all our troubles in the moonlight," Lillian suggested. "Even if your mother is a bit arbitrary, the dear old Chief has had his way about the name, and that blessed child is not going to be named Harriet nor Margaret nor Lillian. For which mercies we ought to be putting up joyous paeans. No, Dicky-bird, there isn't the slightest use of your displaying signs of restlessness. Not one of 'em would have suited that precious bit of porcelain upstairs. Come along. We're only in the way here."

She dodged involuntarily as Hank, drawing Marion after him in a new galloping variation of a fox trot, almost collided with her. As he stopped abruptly, he almost toppled himself and his partner to the floor.

"Oh! sorry!" he said in panic.

"Did we hurt you, Mother? Marion queried anxiously.

"You didn't even graze me," her mother answered, laughing, "but we are going to be discreet old people and get out of the way of the stampede."

"Mums!" Marion protested. "Do not go. We'll be more careful!"

"But, darling, we really prefer the moonlight and starlight from the veranda. And we'll only take up one corner. There'll be plenty of room for you when you get tired dancing."

She turned away with me toward the veranda, and we heard Hank say scornfully: "When we get tired! Gee!"

When we were safely out of hearing, Lillian released the laugh which she had been restraining heroically.

"And that lad at Christmas time was pale to the gills because he thought he'd have to stay downstairs and dance," she said. "Do you remember?"

"Very well, indeed," I answered. "And I shouldn't be surprised if this craze for dancing doesn't date back to that time. Ronald and his chums were here then, you know, all good dancers——"

"And Old Man Inferiority Complex was working overtime," she commented. "I see your point. They sulked in their tents at Christmas and resolved to burst from the cocoon at the first opportunity."

He drew me down beside him in one of the double armchairs scattered on the veranda, slipped an arm around me, and settled my head comfortably against his shoulder.

"And his cigar never went out," Harry Underwood commented admiringly. "Come here, woman! and see if I'm as skillful as this lad who could give the modern neckers cards and spades and come out ahead of the game."

Lillian settled into the curve of his inviting arm with an amused affectionate little chuckle, and for a long time we sat, the men smoking, all of us silently reveling in the perfect moonlight evening. Then from just inside the window sounded a tense boyish voice.

"Why do you have to go away just as we have come home, Marion? I suppose it's that Brixton fellow."

Household Hints

It sometimes happens that onions, walnuts, and other pickles made at home are unpalatable through mould making its appearance on the vinegar.

As a preventive, and also an improvement in the taste or flavor, scrape or cut up a little horseradish and put it in the bottle or jar containing the pickles.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Facts About a Puzzling Skin Rash

Recently a reader asked for information concerning a disease called "psoriasis." Probably many of you never even head the name.

Dr. Copeland

Never to have heard of psoriasis is good luck, because it is a disagreeable disease. It is one of the most distressing and annoying of the skin troubles.

It is a chronic inflammation of the skin. The skin is covered with reddish, dry, rounded patches.

The disease may occur at any age, but is most common in early adult life. At first it begins as a small, reddish, pin-point pimple. The pimple increases in size and soon reaches the size of a dime or even a silver dollar. These patches are dry and round, distinctly defined, somewhat elevated, and are covered by shiny, silvery scales.

As a rule, this skin defect is found on the back surface of the elbows and knees and on the scalp. The chest and other parts of the body may become involved.

As a rule, there is no discomfort, although there may be a slight itching. The patient has no other symptom than the disfiguring appearance of the skin.

My reader asked me whether I thought improper diet caused this condition. This is a difficult question to answer. It may have its effect but as yet the definite cause of psoriasis has not been discovered.

It is believed to be caused by a parasite or germ of some sort. The disease occurs just as frequently in robust individuals as in those who are weak and debilitated. The diet is thought to play some part, but it is not the actual cause.

Psoriasis is easily recognized, although it is sometimes confused with eczema. It differs from eczema because, instead of involving the front portions of the arms and legs, as eczema does, it is found on the back part. In psoriasis, there is slight itching, while in eczema there is marked itching. The skin eruption in eczema is usually covered with yellowish scales and is moist in appearance, while in psoriasis the patches are silvery-colored and always dry.

Your doctor may place you upon a special diet. This will be followed according to directions.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Personal Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Recently a cousin of mine was married, and instead of issuing printed invitations, the bride's mother called on each guest and asked them personally. Is this considered good form and is it correct?

2. The bride also wore a pale blue hat and dress at an 8 o'clock wedding in the evening. Was this proper?

WORRIED.

The answer to both of these questions is "yes," since apparently the wedding was a small and informal one. As a matter of fact, I think that the bride's mother's calling on each of the relatives and friends to be invited to the wedding was an especially charming and gracious thing for her to do. This gave a very personal flavor to the invitation, and I admire her doing it. In this rushed modern life, it is a joy indeed to have someone do this kind of thing.

And for the informal evening wedding the bride did quite right in wearing what apparently is her favorite shade. What she wears at her own wedding is for the bride to decide, and, if she wears what is appropriate for the degree of formality or informality that she wishes to suggest and maintain, she does the right thing.

The Bride-to-Be at a Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a small piece of lemon is served with fish, is it proper to squeeze the juice on the fish?

2. What should a bride-to-be say at a shower given in her honor when she thanks her guests?

C.

1. Yes.

2. Something like this: "It was so kind of Mrs. Andrew to plan such a beautiful party for me, and to invite such charming guests to come to make me happy and to tell me of their wishes for my future happiness. I have had one of the most delightful times of my life, and I cannot begin to tell you how much I thank our hostess—and you—every one of you."

As each gift is opened, the guest of honor thanks the giver, and then the day following she should write a note to each one to tell of her appreciation and gratitude.

Informal Wedding Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At a home wedding is it proper to wear a hat and gloves without a wrap? The wedding to which I refer is an informal one and everyone will be asked to leave their coats in the car, as there will be no room for wraps in the house.

M.

Yes, this will be proper.

Contract Bridge -:-

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

The Opening Demand Bid

Any opening bid of three of a suit demands partner's response. Novices may fear starting contracting so high, but adherence to their rules soon will assure them that there can be no danger in such bidding. At any time they feel dubious about having sufficient strength to force a response from partners they should utilize the semi-demand opening bid of two, reserving the three bid for hands that unquestionably assure game if partner can furnish one quick trick plus three trumps, or four trumps without the quick trick.

An opening bid of three of any suit may be made upon three types of hands:

1. A single biddable suit worth an almost sure game, with slam hopes.

Bid 3-spades—

♠ A-K-Q-7-5-3
♣ A-Q-6
♦ K-Q-7

2. A two-suiter probably good for game at the suit the better supported by partner:

♥ A-Q-J-10-7
♦ A-8-6

♠ K-Q-J-6-3-2
♣ K-Q-J-10-6-4

3. Two or three short biddable suits containing at least 5 quick tricks (counting only A, A-K, or K-Q of a suit, and omitting added values for A-Q or K-X), worth not less than 7 probable tricks at either two or more makes:

Bid 3-spades—

♠ A-K-8-6
♥ A-K-J-7
♦ K-Q-J-9

Never make an opening bid of three unless willing to play your hand for game at one of four declarations: your first suit shown (or perhaps your only long suit); a second suit that you will show to partner; 3-no trumps; a biddable suit shown you by partner.

Unless you are quite adept in hand valuation the most practical method of determining whether or not a hand comes up to demand strength is to count the tricks that your own cards probably must lose. Try that with the two hands given next.

♣ A-Q-J-6-3-2
♦ A-Q-J-8-5-4

♣ A-J-10-6-3-2
♦ A-J-10-8-5-4

Facing a trickless dummy the first of above hands shows one heart, one club and one diamond loser; total 3 tricks. The second hand shows one heart, two clubs and two diamonds that may be lost; a total of 5 tricks. Probably you will go game on the first hand if dummy has one of the three honors missing (ace of hearts, or either minor suit king), and there are about 72 chances in 100 for him to hold at least one of them. There are only 1 in 5 chances for him to hold 3 of the 5 missing honors in the second hand. Bid the first three, but bid only two on the last hand.

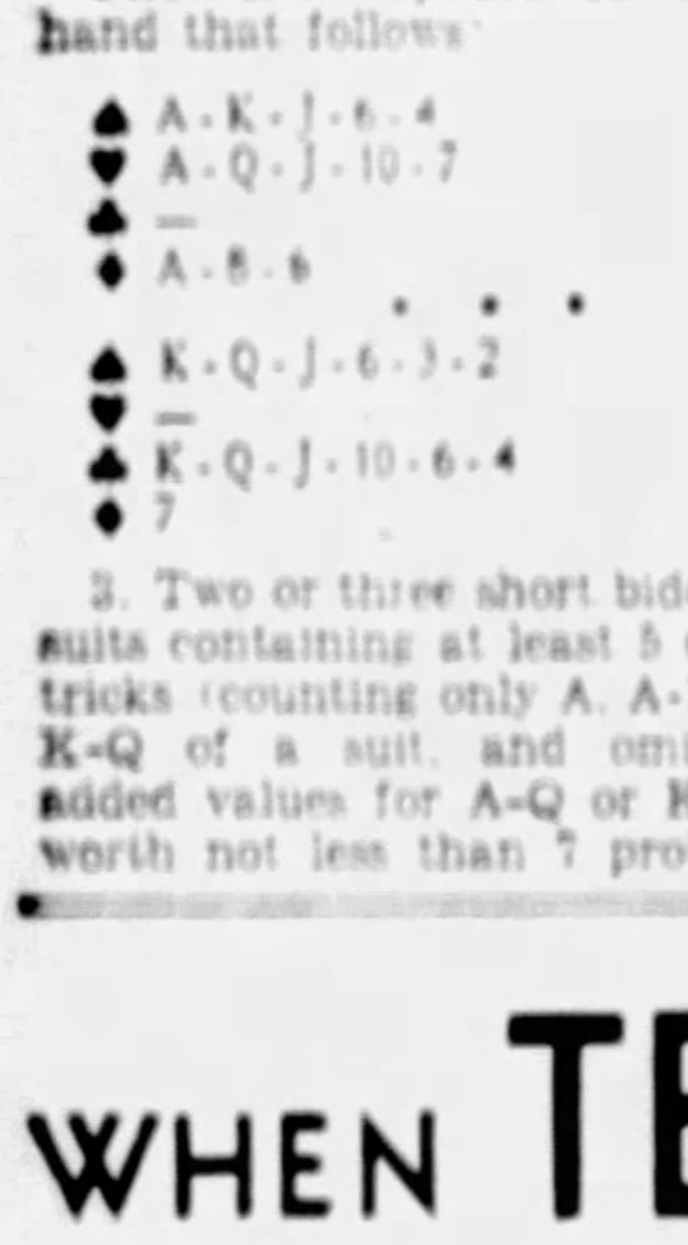
WHEN TEETHING makes HIM FUSSY



Teething time brings its troubles! For so often teeth cut through the tender gums in hot weather, when there is danger of digestive upsets anyway.

One of the most important things you can do to make a teething baby comfortable, is to see that waste matter is carried off promptly and regularly.

For this, there's nothing like Castoria. It is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It acts so gently, you can give it to young infants to relieve colic pains. Yet it is always effective—keeps older children well regulated.

When your baby is fretful and feverish with teething or a stomach disturbance, give a cleansing dose of Castoria to make him comfortable and happy. Children like the taste of genuine Castoria—never object to taking it. Be sure you get it with the name Chas. H. Fletcher on the package.

Mussolini Visit To Pope Expected

ROME, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—The eagerly awaited meeting between Pope Pius and Premier Mussolini, sealing the recent accord that ended the Italo-Vatican controversy, will occur within the next few days, it was learned yesterday.

As an immediate consequence of Mussolini's declaration at Naples on Sunday, the pontiff has notified Il Duce he will be glad to receive him between October 28 and November 4. The Pope will present to the Premier a heavy ring, with a crown of diamonds set in a cluster of rubies to commemorate the visit.

Judge Reverses U. S. 'Alky' Permit Ban

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Federal Judge Dickinson overruled the government in its revocation of a permit to the Burlington Industrial Alcohol Company, of Burlington, N. J., and ordered restored the concern's right to use 2,100,000 gallons of alcohol yearly for denaturing purposes.

The decision culminated a long series of hearings before the Prohibition Department, which charged the company permitted the diversion of more than 300,000 gallons of alcohol to bootleggers in 1929 and 1930. The permit was revoked last July by Samuel O. Wynne, supervisor of permits for this district.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Just when the social season seems to be getting dull, up pop the most exciting and interesting things to tell you about. This afternoon at 4:30 o'clock the board of managers of the Children's Hospital is entertaining for the delegates to the Pennsylvania State Nurses' Association convention at a tea in the hospital. All the hospitals affiliated with the Children's Hospital will be represented, of course, and it is of interest to know that the hospital now stands in the first grade of hospitals and is entitled to receive graduate nurses from any hospital in the United States.

Mrs. Herbert DuPuy and Mrs. William J. Holland will pour. In the receiving line will be Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh, Mrs. Stewart Johnston, Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mrs. William Henry Siviter, Mrs. James B. Drew, Mrs. J. D. Murray, Mrs. W. W. Blackburn and Dr. Thomas S. Arbuthnot, president of the hospital.

Mrs. J. C. Pryor of Boston is visiting her father and mother, the W. H. Siviters, and later the Siviters will accompany their daughter to Boston to join Capt. J. C. Pryor.

Cot Club Play

Dinner parties galore preceded the Sewickley Valley Cot Club's presentation of "Too Much Money" last night in the Edgeworth Club and dancing followed.

There was one dinner, a birthday dinner, in honor of the author, Thetta Quay Franks, together with her husband, Robert A. Franks, the junior Robert A. Frankses and the Jerome Frankses, all of New York.

An event attracting many social leaders will be the opening of the symphony season on Friday night with the appearance of the Boston Symphony. The president of the Pittsburgh Orchestra Association, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., will be among the boxholders.

Oakmont Woman's Club Sees Films of Africa

Motion pictures which she had taken in Africa were shown yesterday by Mrs. W. M. Callear before the Oakmont Woman's Club at its meeting in the Presbyterian Church. An accompanying talk was given by Mrs. William T. Watson. Mrs. Callear's daughter and a program of appropriate songs was furnished by Mrs. William Wilson College, Mrs. Walter M. Cree, Mrs. Edward P. Riehl and Mrs. Earl Rufus Loomis, with Miss Alberta Yeaglin at the piano. Mrs. Watson and the musicians wore costumes brought home by Mrs. Callear.

Under auspices of its committee for the blind, the club will have a sale for the blind on Friday and Saturday of next week at Pilgram's Store, Oakmont avenue. Mrs. Emmanuel Woodings is chairman. A playground benefit bridge is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. H. McGraw, Hulton road.

Navy Chaplain to Speak At Noon Club Gathering

Church Scene Of Connor Wedding

Mrs. John Connor, of Crafton, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary Blanche Connor, to Joseph Allen Comfort, son of Mrs. Mary L. Comfort, of Stanton avenue, which was solemnized this morning in St. Philip's Church, Crafton avenue.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, John Robert Connor, wore a gown of eggshell transparent velvet with a matching hat and carried a sheaf of calla lilies. Her maid of honor, Miss Mary E. Croyle, of Mayport, Pa., chose a gown of brown transparent velvet with a matching hat and carried bronze chrysanthemums. Mrs. John Robert Connor, sister-in-law of the bride, as matron of honor, wore green transparent velvet with a hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of sweetheart roses. Michael Francis De Rose, Jr., served as best man and the ushers included William A. Comfort, Howard E. Barry and George J. McIntyre.

The Dormont Council of Republican Women will have its first regular meeting of the season on Friday at the home of Mrs. G. B. Roberts, Voelkel avenue, Dormont. A representative from the state highway department will show stereopticon views explaining the progress made in beautifying the highways. Aids are to be Mrs. F. J. Mai, Mrs. W. H. Best and Mrs. William Neel.

Mrs. Rohrer Entertains PenWomen, Music Group

Mrs. F. F. Rohrer, of Churchill road, entertained the League of American Pen Women and the manuscript section of the Tuesday Musical Club at a buffet luncheon yesterday. During the afternoon there was a program which included compositions by Marianne Genet, among them a new one, the words of which are by Bella Flaccus; a talk concerning the State Federation of Music Clubs convention, by Ruth Stephens Porter, a poem by Nellie Risher Roberts, piano compositions by Helen Roessing and Janet Spaugh and some of Mrs. Rohrer's songs by Gertrude Goedell Hespenheide.

Miss Harriet Wolff Weds Strough Gates

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Wolff, of Second avenue, Hazelwood, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Harriet Wolff, to Strough Gates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Gates, also of Hazelwood, which was solemnized on Saturday, October 17. Mr. and Mrs. Gates are at home in Hazelwood.

JEWISH COUNCIL HEARS ANITA BLOCK

Criticism Not Destructive But Positive, Creative Force, Guild Reader Says

It is a fallacy that criticism is a destructive force; it is a positive, creative, constructive force, Anita Block, play reader for the Theater Guild, told the Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women, yesterday in her address on "The Theater as a Criticism of Life." With this idea as her thesis, Mrs. Block went on to discuss in her characteristically absorbing and comprehensive fashion several dramas which are criticisms of life—Galsworthy's "Justice," which actually affected legislation in England; "The Good Hope," the Heijermans tragedy, which resulted in legislation making it impossible for Dutch fishing vessels to go out without being government-inspected, and Ibsen's "The Doll's House."

Coming down to modern times, Mrs. Block spoke of the plays of Soviet Russia, saying they are tremendously constructive in their criticism. She cited specifically "Katja-salon," by Katejew, which is directed against grafting among those in authority. Paul Green's play, "The House of Connelly," showing the conflict between the new South and the futile, sterile aristocracy of the old South, was another work discussed by Mrs. Block as she went on to show that drama is not mere entertainment, but that its chief function has been, from the time of the ancient Greeks down to the present, that of "holding the mirror up to nature," not negatively, but positively and constructively.

O'Neill's New Play

She touched on "Mourning Becomes Electra," the new Eugene O'Neil play which begins at 5 o'clock. It is O'Neil's maturest, most deeply-felt work and his greatest contribution to American drama and it deserves to stand with the great plays of all times, she said.

Before the meeting, which was in the Y. M. and W. H. A., Mrs. Charles L. Reizeinstein, a member of the board, entertained Mrs. Block, Mrs. Leo Half, Council president; several other members of Council and the club editors of the newspapers at luncheon in her home. The appointments were most original, everything, even to the food, being arranged in blocks, in compliment to the honor guest's name. Children's blocks were the "vases" that held garden flowers and the places were marked with alphabet blocks bearing the names of the guests.

A steering committee has been elected by the new Allegheny County Stay-in-School Committee and will meet next Tuesday morning. On it are Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, chairman; Dr. Ben G. Graham, Dr. E. N. Clopper, Dr. Anthony M. Goldberger, Charles F. Lewis and Mrs. John M. Phillips.

M. E. Missionary Society To Meet in Bellevue

The annual meeting of the Allegheny District Women's Home Missionary Society of the Pittsburgh Conference of the Methodist church will be held in the Bellevue Church, Thursday, begining at 10:30 o'clock. The morning session will be devoted to the departmental reports and election of officers.

Since the society will stress the children's work this year, Mrs. Herbert Spencer will give a demonstration of missionary instruction for the elementary grades.

An evening session under the leadership of Mrs. H. S. Metcalfe, will be held for the Queen Esther Circles. Dr. John Benjamin Magee, pastor of the church, will speak.

WALKING FROCKS REVIVE LOST PASTIME OF THE PROMENADE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Walking dresses are well in the running this season. The apparently lost pastime of the promenade is being revived and whether the lovely street frocks are a cause or a symptom it is not for us to discover. Enough it is to discover the nicest of street frocks and present them in a drawing so that women can get an idea of what is being shown by the houses that set the style for the world in this sort of frock.

Wool of course is about the most popular fabric and is used in its various weaves, with the corduroy weave being a tremendous favorite. Despite the apparent simplicty of these frocks, there is a vast amount of fine workmanship and detail about them and fine furs are smartly used to complete the scheme, although the model must never be overburdened with fur trimming. Harmony and restraint must of necessity be the keynote of the really fine frock meant mostly for outdoor town wear.

BOTH FROCKS sketched are leaders. The first, a Premet model, uses bright blue wool corduroy with gray astrakan. The jumper obtains a smart silhouette through the outstanding peplum with its stiff side godets of astrakan. Double surface seams are a detail of interest on both jumper and skirt. The other model is a coat frock in light-weight black woolen with a fancy weave and is by Redfern. The upright collar ties together in front with a bow of ermine and there is a small melon muff of the same fur. The spiral piecings at the top of the skirt and in godets in front, having started at the left hip and crossed diagonally in back.

5TH WARD FIGHT PLANNED BY DEMOCRATS

Strong Drive for Votes To Be Made in District Torn By G. O. P. Factions

Democratic headquarters were opened today in the Fifth Ward at Pythian Temple, Center avenue, with M. B. Donnelly, ward chairman, in charge. The Democrats are seeking to make inroads in this ward, recently torn by Republican factional strife.

The whole battery of Democratic candidates, supplemented by Mrs. Carroll Miller, a Pittsburgh woman with a nation-wide reputation in the Democratic party, will speak at a mass meeting tomorrow night in the English room of the Fort Pitt Hotel.

David L. Lawrence, who appears to be the only Democratic candidate making a serious race for County Commissioner, told a meeting in McCandless School, Tenth Ward, last night, that he would, if elected, assist in the "sweeping readjustments downward in the cost of government, which are inescapable. He said:

"I stand for a reduction in taxes consistent with the proper conduct of the business of the county. Regardless of who is elected to the board of Commissioners, Allegheny County's budget will be cut, not only this year, but for succeeding years. But, like all operations, the job must be done sanely and with common sense."

Lawrence set forth the qualifications of a county commissioner, asserting the job was one demanding common sense, and should not be sought as a "stepping stone to more desirable public offices."

COMMUNISTS LIST RALLIES

For the last week of the campaign the Communist party has plans for a full schedule of meetings, beginning tonight with an assembly at 8 p. m. in Conroy school, Fulton and Page streets, North Side. E. P. Cush, candidate for County Commissioner; Ben Careathers, Council nominee, and Rebecca Grecht, organization secretary of the party, will speak.

Thursday night in a meeting at Watt School, Fifth Ward, Fred Kearns and Max Jenkins, candidates for Council, and E. H. Careathers, candidate for alderman, will speak. Friday night in Fifth Avenue High School Cush, Jenkins, Ben Careathers, William Patterson, of the League of Struggle for Negro Rights, and Carl Price, district organizer of the Communist party, will be the speakers.

Open air meetings will be held tonight at Kirkpatrick street and Wylie avenue; Thursday, Burr and Dobson streets; Friday, Roberts and Center and Francis and Wylie, and Saturday, Milwaukee and Herron and Franklin and Sedgwick.

CLUB NOTES

Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, of Glen Arden drive, is entertaining the executive board of the National Better Magazines Council at her home this afternoon.

Homewood Club Seniors To Be Juniors' Guests

Seniors of the Homewood Women's Club have been invited by the juniors to their meeting next Monday night when Miss Helen Crawley will speak on "Disarmament Now." On Monday afternoon the seniors heard James H. Dale, of the Homewood-Brushton Y. M. C. A., speak of its work. Mrs. Chester B. Story spoke in behalf of the Professional Players and the delegates to the State Federation convention made their reports. There was the annual ingathering for the Needlework Guild.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

THIS YARN concerns two women in their early thirties who are married to two gentlemen of a similar age. These two couples are intimate friends, and they have been seeing each other every day or so for several years.

One husband is a prominent physician who numbers many theatrical celebrities among his patients. The other husband is a well-known songwriter who will probably pass out of the picture when he sees this story here. But the tale is too good to keep and maybe the gals deserve this little expose anyhow.

While their husbands were working, the two women had luncheon at the Ritz one afternoon and were introduced to two young men whose names appear in the Social Register. Both boys are handsome—and their money is far greater than their brains. It was a new thrill to the two women, however, and the party that afternoon wound up in a little speakeasy in the Fifties.

Within a month, there were several such afternoons. The two wives and the boys were drifting into a dangerous stage of the game. And the husbands, trusting their wives implicitly, never had the slightest idea of what their darlings were doing on those lonesome afternoons.

The society boys begged the women to join them for dinner one night in a home they maintained in Connecticut.

"Come on up with us," they pleaded. "We'll have loads of laughs and things. Phone your husbands and tell them you're going to visit a sick girl friend. Tell them anything, what say, girls? Adventure is calling."

The two women talked it over. They were talking it over, however, on three drinks. And that's a bad time to make any decisions.

"Let's go," urged one little wifie. "After all, if we go together, our husbands will never get wise. We'll phone and tell them we won't be home for dinner because we're visiting someone. We'll be home at 11 o'clock, anyhow. Why not go?

In the end, they went. They phoned their lies to their respective hubbies and piled into the boys' cars. Two bottles of speakeasy brandy went along for company.

The house in Connecticut was much farther than the boys had said. Both women had been drinking too much. So had the boys. One of the women grew ill. A terrific storm came up and lightning struck a tree in front of the house. It was all very lovely.

When it was time to start back to town, one of the boys brought in the sad news that the car was out of commission. The women grew frightened and demanded that another car be hired at once. Whereupon the boys notified the girls that the nearest phone was 10 miles away and that, since such a violent storm was raging, they would simply have to make the best of it.

Around 3 in the morning—the car having repaired itself as if by a miracle—the four of them started back to town. One woman was hysterical with fear. The other one sat and pondered the situation.

"My heavens! shuddered the first. "What will we tell our husbands. Mine will divorce me. I know he will. What will we do? What can we say?"

The second one finally snapped her fingers.

"I've got it," she exclaimed. "Our husbands both know Broadway and they're regular guys. Here's what we'll have to do.

"You tell your husband that I've been carrying on a secret affair with another man for several months. Say you went along with me today to meet the other man because I urged you to. Swear your husband to secrecy and act as you have never acted before.

"I'll do the exact same thing. Except, of course, that in my story you will be the bad woman in the case. Each one likes the other too much to spill the bad news. The thing will work. I just know it will."

And it did. When the women arrived home that night, each found her husband almost frantic. Each one told her noble story of how she had protected the other woman. And each husband, being a wise guy of Broadway, and knowing everything there is to be known, believed his wife.

Today, the husbands love their wives more than ever because of the great sacrifice they think that each one made. And neither man will speak to the other about the incident because they like each other to much to hurt either man.

"Poor fellow," says one husband when he is alone with his wife. "I feel so sorry for him."

"There, there," she comforts him. "It's all for the best that he shouldn't know. Isn't it dearest?"

Coolidge Repairs Old Vermont Homestead

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Oct. 28—(AP)—Calvin Coolidge hasn't said anything one way or the other, but his neighbors expect him to spend more and more of his time with them in the future. They base this belief on the repair work Harley V. Wood, of Bridegwater, has just completed at the old family homestead here.

Farmhouse, barn and sheds have all undergone painstaking repairs, under the scrutiny of the former President. Wood said that every plank and timber requiring attention has been replaced.

CLAIRTON ROAD PARADE SET

In addition to representatives of the Pittsburgh, Homestead and Clairton Chambers of Commerce, numerous other civic organizations will be represented in the celebration marking the dedication of the new Clairton-Pittsburgh boulevard Friday afternoon. An automobile parade is to start from Hays at 2 o'clock to Clairton, where the road will be officially opened. A program of speechmaking will follow in Clairton Park.

S. J. Wilson, president of the Clairton Chamber of Commerce, said that the McKeesport Automobile Club will have a delegation in the parade and that many other civic organizations would participate.

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX CLOTHES
BACK TO THE PRICES OF FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

GET INTO YOUR NEW

Fighting Clothes

—AS AMERICA'S BEST MADE CLOTHES GO FORWARD TO HIGHER QUALITY PEAKS—AND PRICES GO BACK TO 15 YEARS AGO

There is nothing that puts fight and courage into a man more than good clothes

So give away your old clothes. They've gone as far as they need to

For prices—Hart Schaffner & Marx prices, at least—have been suddenly, sharply jammed back to the prices of 15 years ago! Radical? Sure! And in the same bold stroke, the quality of the clothes (already good) has been stepped up: you are now able to buy more honest-to-goodness value than you've bought for fifteen years

More than once in our own fifty years we've had to choose between catering to a flash-price market and banking on America's refusing to stay licked or even look licked for any length of time. Always we have believed that America would buy the highest quality at the lowest price. We have always won out. We shall win out this time

Throw away—or give away—your old, shiny clothes. You can't afford to be seen in them now—with prices back where you want them. Get into the new suits that will give you nerve and backbone and confidence—and save you money in the purchase. Trust your own good appearance. Trust the clothes that make it good. Trust the trustworthy Trumpeter label

We'll help you make the rest of '31 and all 1932 what you want the next year to be

WARRIORS STUDY RADIO :-: Tech-Notre Dame Forecast on Air :-: EMIL HOYAUX

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor

SPECULATION OF ANOTHER war has United States generals, adjutant generals and colonels assiduously studying the use of radio that was made in the World War and means of improving this method of communication under shell fire. They chuckle when they think of their now antiquated equipment of 1918, of how many times the telescopic bamboo support of the antenna of their trench sets were shot down by the Germans and how enemy operators sat on their keys to jam the signals. . . . Discussing the probabilities for the next war, Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulouis said today that it will be no uncommon thing for war birds to talk with forces on the ground with even gunfire and the control of shells in flight directed by radio . . . War transmitters will operate on short wave lengths with automatic frequency changes included . . . these sets will automatically change the wave length periodically so that enemy forces will only get a part of any message and if garbled will be virtually impossible to decipher.

Question a Day:

What is the World Radio Reception Club? I noticed it mentioned once in your column.—Dorothy D., Crafton, Pa.

Answer—It is an organization of DXers. Two of the most active members are Aileen Jobes, the feminine DX champion of Pittsburgh, and Joseph Stokes, vice president, who lives at 7318 Woodlawn avenue.

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Economic reasons, spies report, have caused the archdukes of the radio to put a check rein on the activities of their special event broadcaster, William Burke Miller.

Sounder economy, it seems to us, would cause them to give Miller more rein. An enterprising, ingenious fellow this Miller, who, scanning the horizon like a hawk, scents big news before it breaks, manages to snare it for the microphones. Since he has been on the job he has done more to create good will for radio than all the crooning baritones this side of the moon.

Not much of the spectacular and the glamorous that have splashed across page one has eluded this slight, frail figure who once garnered the Pulitzer prize for reportorial enterprise by crawling through a Kentucky cave and bringing temporary succor to the hapless Floyd Collins. He has brought his flare for reportorial enterprises into the broadcasting fields. The archdukes of radio ought, if anything, to expand his resources.

It is the unusual today that brings the majority of listeners to their loudspeakers. Broadcasters can't afford to neglect the unusual. They depend upon it to enlarge their public, already pretty much fed up with the ballyhoo in press and on microphones of crooners—ballyhoo designed to build up the crooners and enable radio executives to sell them to commercial sponsors for fabulous fees.

Radio executives could lighten the load of the ballyhoo by permitting their Millers to do their stuff unhampered. Giving to the budgets of their Millers even a minute portion of the fees they collect from the sponsors of the crooners would work wonders in keeping the favor of the radio public.

As a matter of fact, the radio public has been spoiled. It not only wants something for nothing, but it wants the best.

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

3 out of 4 gargle uselessly while sore throats get worse and colds hang on

Don't waste dollars on antiseptics that must be used full strength. We've discovered a new antiseptic that, even when diluted with two parts of water, kills germs in 10 seconds.

GARGLE, gargle — go the nation's garglers. 3 out of 4 have the wrong idea. Using antiseptics that can't kill germs when mixed with water. Why shouldn't colds get worse? Why shouldn't throats stay sore? Stop gargling long enough to get some Pepsodent Antiseptic. You can dilute it several times — like most people do — and it still kills germs — positively.

A radical new antiseptic discovery

Now there's a revolutionary antiseptic on the market—Pepsodent Antiseptic. Its formula is a radical advance. It climaxes the best antiseptic study of 50 years.

A germ-killing agent is employed unlike those now in use. It makes Pepsodent Antiseptic from 3 to 11 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics, depending on which one you use.

Kills germs in 10 seconds diluted with 2 parts of water

That is the startling news in this new discovery. Think! You can mix Pepsodent Antiseptic with 1 or even 2 parts of water, to suit your taste, and it still kills germs in less than 10 seconds. That's where most other leading mouth antiseptics fail. Yet in spite of all that power, Pepsodent Antiseptic is utterly safe when used full strength. What a weapon this new antiseptic is in your fight against colds!

New security against bad breath (Halitosis*)

And please remember when you use Pepsodent Antiseptic for colds you are doing double duty by also fighting bad breath. For Pepsodent Antiseptic checks bad breath 1 to 2 hours longer! That's Pepsodent Antiseptic's record in fighting this widespread social offense due to unhygienic mouth conditions. Immediately after use—95% of germs on mouth surfaces are destroyed. Two hours later the number of germs remains reduced by 80%. That is far longer acting than other leading mouth antiseptics.

$3 worth for $1—regardless of size

To kill germs—most mouth antiseptics must be used full strength. So to mix such antiseptics with water is a waste of money. Pepsodent Antiseptic, contrariwise, can be mixed with twice its own volume of water. Thus Pepsodent Antiseptic goes 3 times as far—saves you $2 for every $1 you spend. Pepsodent Antiseptic comes in 3 sizes: 3 ounces for 25 cents—7 ounces for 50 cents—16 ounces for $1. The larger the size the cheaper per ounce.

Combating colds and checking bad breath are only two uses for this remarkable antiseptic. There are scores of other uses. Some are listed on this page. Learn to rely on Pepsodent Antiseptic whenever a safe, effective germ-killing agent is required. Keep it in the home. Take it with you when you travel.

Again we say: Quit being good to germs. They've laughed at you long enough. Play safe. Buy an antiseptic that really kills germs when diluted. Remember: You can fool yourself but you can't fool a cold.

BAD BREATH
(Halitosis*)
Pepsodent Antiseptic does double duty when combating colds and throat irritations. For at the same time it checks bad breath. Remember P. A. is 3 to 11 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics . . . and it kills germs when diluted.

Some of the 50 different uses for this modern antiseptic

Throat Irritations
Voice Hoarseness
Bad Breath
Cold Sores
Canker Sores
Mouth Irritations
After Extractions
After Shaving
Minor Cuts
Blisters
Loose Dandruff
Checks Under-Arm Perspiration
Tired, Aching Feet

New Standard Dictionary Definition:

COMIC SECTION FOLKS PARADE MONDAY

Mummers' Fete, Postponed, Will Feature Characters In Sun-Telegraph Weekly

The idea of changing the East North Side Halloween celebration from Saturday night until next Monday night has been greeted with general approval not only by the retail merchants, but also by residents.

Business will go on as usual Saturday night in the district and added time is given for the big program mapped out for Monday night by the Business Men's Association of the East North Side.

Popular interest centers on the comic costume parade, in which old and young are invited to participate. There will be $150 in cash prizes to be given away for the best mummers that represent the popular comics in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph Comic Weekly.

Of course there will be hundreds of other costumes in the parade, but the prizes will be awarded only to the Popeyes, the Skippies, the Tillie the Toilers, the Tim Tylers, the Katzenjammer Kids, Dumb Doras, Dollies and Bobbies and the many others in the Comic Weekly.

And what a parade they will make—colorful, merry and funny. Yes, the whole East North Side is waiting for it—thousands will participate in the frolic. There will be many, many other merry-making activities, including a street dance with plenty of good music.

BOWMAN, HOTEL MAGNATE, DIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—John McEntee Bowman, president of the Bowman-Biltmore Hotels and internationally known sportsman, died here early today in the Post Graduate Hospital. He was operated on October 12 for gallstones.

Bowman, who headed one of the largest groups of hotels in the world, was 55. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Clarice Patterson Bowman, and two children, John Jr., and Clarisse.

The son of John and Anne McEntee Bowman, the hotel magnate was born in Toronto. He came to New York in 1892. He was then 17 and determined to enter the hotel business.

For a time, he found no opening. To prevent starvation, he was forced to do anything he could get. After some years he obtained employment at the famous old Holland House. There his work attracted the attention of Gustav Baumann, the proprietor, and soon he became Baumann's secretary.

Drys Granted Writs Closing 2 Places

A temporary injunction was granted in Federal Court against a cabaret and barroom, Oakmont-Pitcairn and Beatty roads, Patton Township, on a bill of complaint filed by the prohibition authorities, alleging violations of the dry law on the premises. William Ford was named proprietor.

A temporary injunction was also granted against a saloon in rear of a building, Freeport road and Bartch street, Creighton. In the bill of complaint, Vincent Janosky was named proprietor. Final hearings will be held December 22.

Williams Acquitted Of Murder Charge

Eugene Williams, alias "Yoyo," aged 28, Negro, of 2014 DeRuad street, was acquitted by a jury in Criminal Court today on a murder charge in the shooting to death, September 20, of Ella B. Meyers, 23, Negro, of 303 Kirkpatrick street. He was remanded to jail by Visiting Judge C. M. Culver until a charge of involuntary manslaughter is disposed of.

Blames Torture By Girls For Forgeries

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A man charged with advertising for young women with dramatic talent and then using them to pass bad checks was convicted of forgery yesterday.

The man, Clare Meyers, said in his defense that two of the women forced him into forgery. He testified that they burned his feet with cigarets and placed pieces of ignited paper between his toes until he signed the checks.

BOY, 12, ADMITS KILLING MAN

ASOTIN, Wash., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Harmonica in hand, Hubert Niccolls, 12-year-old killer, enjoyed himself today as his trial for the slaying of Sheriff Wormell neared the end.

Almost all the testimony for and against the frail boy, who admitted robbing a store and shooting down the aged officer, was in the record. Hubert pleaded insanity and testified:

"I saw some tobacco through the window and I wanted it. So I broke the pane and went in. I was filling a sack with tobacco and gum when I heard the door rattle."

Then followed a calm admission of the slaying.

2,000 HOMES FACE LOSS OF WATER; BILLS UNPAID

SERVICE SHUT OFF IN DRIVE FOR RENTS

Landlords Blamed as Move To Force Payment Strips Many Homes of Supply

Service of 1,500 to 2,000 delinquent water users in the southern portion of the city was being cut off today by employes of the South Pittsburgh Water Company, working on lists of delinquents furnished by the city of Pittsburgh.

The territory affected embraces the Sixteenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-eighth, Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth and Thirty-first wards. Non-payment of the 1929 water charges was alleged.

Today the company's force is working in Knoxville.

It was explained that the water company has been paid for the water by the city, but that the owners or tenants have not reimbursed the city.

The city holds the owner of the property responsible for the water bill.

In many instances, tenants were unaware that their landlords had failed to pay the water rent until the shutoff man was on the job, while in others, the water charges, it had been stipulated in the leases, were to be paid by the tenants.

J. M. McKibbin, in charge of the collection of delinquent water rents, said the destitute are not affected by the order. Where the delinquent taxable is in straightened circumstances, McKibbin said, an extension of time is given. In all cases five days' notice was given before the water was turned off.

Pound Cake Pittsburgh's Favorite, Expert Says

Pittsburghers are fond of pound cake, while Chicagoans like angel food best, according to Albert F. Gerhard, former head of the Dunwoody Institute of Baking, now in Pittsburgh to lecture to wholesale and retail bakers here. The layer cake enjoys its greatest popularity on the Pacific Coast, while sponge cake is in high favor throughout the Middle West, he said.

The American housewife is baking as many cakes as ever, although bakers supply 90 per cent of the bread for the family larder, Gerhard declared. Eighty-five per cent of the cakes and pastry consumed in the United States are baked in the home, he said.

Women bakers' products are superior to those of men, and of the latter, the Germans and French are the best, he said, and remarked:

"Pittsburgh bakers only furnish about 15 per cent of the cakes and pastries consumed in their territory.

"Many a good cake is spoiled with poor icing. At the present rate of progress, Pittsburgh housewives will be baking their own cakes for the next 15 years."

WELFARE WORK TOLD IN PLEA FOR FUND

Chairman Stresses Value Of Juvenile Assistance; Wealth Viewpoints Cited

Work to be accomplished in Allegheny County by welfare agencies was described by William E. Quinby, chairman of the employe division of the Welfare and Emergency Association campaign, which opens next month, in a radio address last night. Many welfare organizations which will be aided by the campaign, he said, are engaged in a program of rebuilding and establishing families and individuals and endeavoring to guide boys and girls to avoid many possible problems of the future.

JUVENILE WELFARE

"This work with boys and girls yields the greatest returns of any community effort, and to shut it off would be as foolish as to close the public schools.

"Settlement houses also felt the great need for continuation of their activities as well as relief organizations, for to meet the situation we have not only to feed and clothe the hungry, but provide some method of wholesome activities for idle time.

"To raise the money in this emergency, it is imperative that we call for aid from those more fortunately situated, for all prosperity is relative. Many people are working full time on full wages or with reductions no greater than the decrease in the cost of living.

"The man whose income has shrunk to $3,000 a year feels poor, yet he is enormously wealthy to the man who has but $1,500 a year. To the man who has part-time work at reduced wages, the $1,500 men certainly seems pretty well off.

"None is so poor that he cannot afford to share what he has with the fellow who is in far worse shape than himself."

CRAFTON COMMITTEE

A welfare committee to continue the relief work in Crafton during the coming winter has been appointed, it was announced today. Its membership includes A. C. Witt, chairman; William Uts, secretary; George A. Taylor, treasurer; W. S. Guy, publicity; Mrs. C. E. Coslowsky, E. W. Rieger, P. Scott Schweinsberg, J. Howell Jeffreys and William A. England. The committee, appointed by the Burgess, will work with the police and fire department.

Man Hurt, Arrested When Auto Crashes

Emil Ginerd, 27, of 2602 Mission street, Hazelwood, escaped with only a sprained left ankle early today when his automobile overturned after running against a retaining wall in Second avenue near Lock No. 1. He was treated at Mercy Hospital and later arrested on charges of violating the automobile laws. Police said he had no driver nor owner cards.

Game Reported Plentiful As Hunting Season Nears

ALLEGHENY COUNTY'S HUNTERS CROWDING FOR LICENSES AT THE TREASURER'S OFFICE

Licenses Expected To Surpass Last Year

An army of hunters will take to the fields Monday, with the opening of the rabbit season. Last year's record of 700,000 licenses issued in Pennsylvania likely will be surpassed, partly because of unemployment, it is believed.

Edward E. Duff, Deputy County Treasurer, reported 19,000 licenses issued to date, and believes it will reach 20,000 by Monday. This will be a large increase over the preceding years, he said.

Over 3,000,000 rabits found their way into the larders of Pennsylvania housewives last year, and according to the report of the Board of Game Commissioners, the suply will be more plentiful this season.

Ralph A. Liphart, State Game Protector for Allegheny County, warned nimrods to take extra precaution as more than one quarter of a season's accidents both fatal and non-fatal, occur in November.

Church Continues Anniversary Fete

Further services in the golden jubilee anniversary of the Warren Methodist Episcopal Church, Center avenue and Watt street, will be held tonight. The Rev. Dr. T. S. Hill will speak at the services. Music will be presented by the Brown's Chapel A. M. E. choir.

The Rev. C. G. Brittain will speak tomorrow night, with music by the choir and quartet of the Fullerton Street Christian Tabernacle. Services will be continued through Monday of next week, closing with the golden jubilee wedding.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal.,
Oct. 28.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, we have observed Navy Day. We celebrated it this year by lopping off its appropriations. We'll wake up some morning with a war on our hands. Then the mad rush will be on to build ships, give the companies big bonuses to get 'em done quick, then we will have to go through that silk shirt buying period again. England is a pretty wise old bird. She relinquished her world's financial supremacy, but she didn't relinquish any ships. Shows which she thinks is the most valuable to a country.

FORCES DELAY ON 20-YEAR CONTRACT

Shows New Power Halting $100-Month Hangar Space Permit For Investigation

Action on leasing hangar space at the county airport has been deferred until the County Commissioners have time to make a further study of the matter.

Carl Forcier, manager of the airport, brought the lease up at the Commissioners' meeting yesterday, introducing J. R. Condon who has signed the lease. Condon said:

"I would like to get some decision on the lease and would like to know what is the hold-up in it."

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said:

"I am the hold-up. If I understand this lease it turns over all the taxpayers' rights in that $4,000,000 investment for a monthly compensation of about $100, giving the lessee the right for 20 years to operate a repair shop, sell gasoline, run a machine shop, a flying school and a passenger carrying service.

"I question the right of this board, in the evening of their service to the people, to enter into a long-time contract like this. Aviation is in the trail blazing stage. We might make a bad mistake and I don't think we want to, particularly at this time."

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong said:

"In view of the fact that Commissioner Babcock and myself are leaving here I would not be in favor of burdening the new board with anything."

So the lease was laid on the table for further consideration.

Search for Parents Of Abandoned Child

Police today were continuing their search for the parents of a new-born baby boy left in an automobile owned by Charles Villa, of 1002 Carrol street, Aliquippa, while the machine was parked in his garage yesterday. The infant is being cared for at the Sewickley Valley Hospital.

Villa heard a faint cry from the rear seat of his car as he drove from Aliquippa to Pittsburgh yesterday morning. He investigated and found the child wrapped in a sweater lying on a pillow in a paper box on the rear seat.

We've a Strong Navy as Long as Nothing Happens

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Mr. Hoover is right about the Navy. It's adequate if nothing happens.

Next year we will celebrate Navy Day by going for a walk.

All we have left is a picture of Farragut and a wild desire to succeed.

Once we joined the Navy to see the world. Now we've got to join the Smithsonian Institution to see the Navy.

The admirals and the captains are wearing their epaulets under their arms and using them for water wings.

We have great admiration for naval men ever since we met Commandant Spivvicks. The old boy lived on government property so long that when he died he willed it to his grandchildren.

Well, the Navy used to be a branch of the service, but now it's out on a limb.

Find Injured Bridge Worker In Pool After Six Hours

His back broken by a fall of more than 25 feet into a coffer at Steuben and Carson streets, Thomas McBride, 25, of 1303 Carson street, lay in a foot of water at the bottom of the pit for more than six hours before he was discovered early today. West End police and workmen raised him with the aid of ropes and removed him to the South Side Hospital. His condition was critical.

McBride, a member of the day crew on the construction job, is believed to have fallen into the pit just before the crew quit at 5:30 o'clock. He was discovered shortly after midnight by James Corrie, foreman of the night workmen. Corrie and his workmen, aided by a squad of police under Lieut. Bernard McArdle, lifted the injured man to the surface and rushed him to the hospital in the police patrol.

McBride is employed by the P. H. Cunningham Construction Company, engaged in sinking foundations for the land pier for the new West End-North Side Bridge. The coffer is being constructed for the pier near the intersection of South Main and Carson streets and Steuben and Carson streets.

COUNCIL DENIES RECREATION FUNDS

Director Told to Seek Use Of Schools in Keeping With Economy Program

Supt. W. C. Batchelor of the City Bureau of Recreation was instructed by Council yesterday to ask the Board of Education for co-operation in providing recreation for children in line with the city's economy program.

At the same time Council refused Superintendent Batchelor financial aid to keep a number of recreational centers open throughout the winter. Chairman W. Y. English of the Councilmanic Finance Committee said:

"We are now in the midst of a depression and we will have to cut down our activities. The thing for you to do, Mr. Batchelor, is to ask the School Board to let you have some of their buildings for night recreational work among the older children."

Batchelor said:

"I don't think they will do that."

Councilman Robert Garland interjected:

"We'll ask them, anyhow. They have a right to co-operate with us."

Batchelor then said:

"We are not coming in here to Council to protect our jobs. I don't want you to think that. We have the interests of the children at heart."

English then added:

"Now don't let's get personal about this."

BRIDAL PARTY IN FIRE RESCUE

A bride and bridegroom and four companions returning from a wedding celebration early today awoke three men in a burning house at 274 Bates street.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Brehm of St. Mary's, Pa., married here yesterday, were riding down the Boulevard of the Allies with their companions, when they saw the rear of the building in flames.

Members of the wedding party smashed windows and forced doors until they reached three men who were sleeping on the second floor.

The three men—John Bolton, 47; his brother, Henry Bolton, 38, and Thomas Riley, 47—hurried to the street. There they discovered that Pal, a 14-week-old police dog, was still in the house. John Bolton said he went back in and dragged Pal from beneath a bureau.

Firemen extinguished the fire, estimating the damage at $500.

TWO DINNERS TRIBUTES TO ROOSEVELT

Barr Stresses Late Leader's Independent Spirit; Two Talks Given By McGovern

The memory of President Theodore Roosevelt was honored by Pittsburghers who attended two dinners in his honor, last night, on the occasion of his birthday. The Roosevelt Civic League held a dinner in Valentino's restaurant, Grant street, and the Roosevelt Commemoration Association one in the William Penn Hotel.

Speaking at the league affair, former State Senator C. M. Barr compared the attitude of Republican nominees who "hold the G. O. P. agove all patriotism" with Roosevelt's uncompromising opposition to all that he considered evil.

Barr declared residents of Allegheny County should be proud of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern because he traveled with Roosevelt, and declared Roosevelt had absolute faith in McGovern.

McGovern, also a speaker, lauded the spirit and the activities of those who gather yearly on Roosevelt's birthday to honor the late President. Other speakers were Attorney Clyde Grubbs, Deputy Attorney General Ralph Frank, A. D. Brandon, Attorney Alex P. Lindsay, James O. Corbett, Clarence H. Nixon, Dr. Frank C. Ferrante and T. Ralph Barr. Donald D. Mangone, president of the Legion, presided.

More than 100 attended the eleventh annual dinner of the Roosevelt Association. Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of public schools, was the principal speaker, taking the place of William D. Gordon, state banking commissioner, who was unable to attend. Other speakers were McGovern; Mrs. George P. Bassett and Councilman John M. Phillips.

A bust of Roosevelt, sculptured more than 10 years ago by Frank Vittor, was publicity displayed for the first time at the dinner.

Caught in Store, Says He Slept There

Discovered by employes on the third floor of a downtown department store early today, Charles Jones, 26, a Negro, of Steubenville, O., was turned over to police, who detained him to investigate how he entered the store. Jones told police he went into the store at noon yesterday and fell asleep on the twelfth floor. He awakened at 1 a. m. and attempted to descend the stairs to the street without attracting attention, he told police.

—AND HERE IS HOW IT OPERATES ALMOST HUMANLY

Automatic Light Device Cuts Traffic Peril On Boulevard

A new traffic signal light device, operated by moving vehicles and thereby speeding up traffic and eliminating unnecessary delays, has been put into operation at the intersection of Seneca street and the Boulevard of the Allies.

It is the only device of its kind in the world and observers from this and other cities after watching its operation for several weeks during tests are ready to pronounce the new signal mechanism a success.

Left turns from the boulevard into Seneca street as well as other thoroughfares from the outbound lane of traffic have been extremely hazardous, but under the new system of automatic traffic control danger will be eliminated, according to engineers of the city Bureau of Traffic Planning.

Of approximately 300 accidents along the boulevard since November, 1929, 20 per cent have been the result of left turns from the outbound traffic lane, according to records of the Traffic Bureau. Eleven of these mishaps occurred at Seneca street, and two were fatal.

Outbound traffic keeps moving constantly under the new system. A treadle, laid across the inner traffic lane, where motorists are instructed by signs to halt their cars for left turns, operates the lights as soon as a break in the inbound traffic occurs. Another treadle in Seneca street works in the same manner, providing safety signals for right turns into the boulevard.

Inbound traffic crossing a third treadle about 100 yards from the intersection of Seneca street records the breaks, permitting the change of lights when the stream of vehicles is broken, or in specified time periods.

Should the lull occur in inbound traffic, a motorist has only to stop his car momentarily before the green light flashes the "go ahead" signal for a left turn into Seneca street, but should the city-bound traffic continue heavy for any length of time an automatic timing device sets the signals, so the motorist waiting for a left-turn signal need wait only a reasonable length of time. The same device regulates right turns from Seneca street.

If continued use of the device proves its general effectiveness, according to City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre, several more will be installed at dangerous intersections throughout the city. The device is patented under the name "Electro-Matic" and is manufactured by the Automatic Signal Corporation, New Haven, Conn.

COUNCIL SEEKS WATER 'LEAK' SUIT ACTION

Waldschmidt is Asked When Litigation Will Begin Over Herrs Island Loss

The city law department had on file today a demand from Council for information as to when the suit for collection for thousands of dollars worth of water "lost" from mains leading into Herrs Island was to be filed.

Council made the formal demand on City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt when Managing Engineer James H. Kennon asked the lawmakers for an appropriation of $1,033.58 to pay a pitometer survey on the island.

The survey was made under Kennon's direction last spring. At that time the loss was made known when the survey showed millions of gallons of water were being diverted from city mains into lines of manufacturing plants, according to Kennon. The Law Department made plans to force collection. The amount was estimated at $350,000.

Council ordered that Kennon's appropriation be affirmed and the pitometer company paid.

G-E RADIO wins again in tone-test

At the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, engineers hid a General Electric Radio but could not hide its superior tone!

Four leading makes of sets competed. All radios were hidden by screens. Each trade name was cloaked behind the alias of a number. No one knew what makes were competing.

Out of the 129 listeners, 64 picked G-E for its superior tone—almost as many as voted for all other radios combined! The other sets polled, respectively, 41, 16 and 8 votes.

Go to a G-E Radio dealer. Hear the General Electric Radio's greater faithfulness of reproduction! Hear it re-create original studio performances with nothing lost, nothing added, nothing distorted.

Stations come in at exact points on the dial. No overlapping. G-E brings in clearly many stations—far and near!

Go to your G-E Radio dealer now. Ask about the General Electric Certified Inspection Plan. See the many G-E models. There is a set to fit your home and pocketbook, for prices range from $37.50 for the G-E Midget to $345.00 for the Automatic Radio-Phonograph Combination—and every price includes a complete set of tubes!

HOSPITALS' AID URGED FOR NURSES

Convention Here Told of Jobless Problem; Fewer Students Held Solution

Hospitals were appealed to for assistance in decreasing the lack of employment for private duty nurses today by Miss Anna C. Gladwin, of Akron, president of the Ohio State Nurses' Association, before the Pennsylvania State Nurses' Association convention in the William Penn Hotel.

Miss Heatley

Miss Gladwin, speaking on a program that included a talk by Miss Mary A. Moran, president of the Delaware State Nurses' Association, declared hospital training schools should limit the number of students as a step towards reducing the over-supply of nurses. The private duty nurse averages $1,300 yearly income under present conditions, she added.

Miss Gertrude Louise Heatley, principal of the school of nursing of the South Side Hospital, was elected president at the annual election yesterday.

Complete election results announced today were: Vice presidents, Miss Eleanor Faunce, Lock Haven; Miss Jessie J. Turnbull, Pittsburgh, and Miss Susan Francis, Philadelphia; directors, Jean Coucher, Bethlehem; Esther J. Tinsley, Pittsburgh; Elizabeth Hartleb, Erie, and Elsie Shaw, Williamsport.

James Francis Burke and Dr. Paul V. McNutt, former national commander of the American Legion, now school of law dean at Indiana University, will be the principal banquet speakers tonight. Miss Esther J. Tinsley, state president, will preside.

BOMB SUSPECTS HELD OVER

Detectives today continued to question Serafina Pittenato, 27, of 61 Half street, Stowe Township, and Anthony DeAngelo, 22, of Pittock, Pa., arrested in connection with the attempted bombing of the Colonial Theater, Carson street, Monday, and the dynamiting of the home of Thomas J. Conley, McKees Rocks politician, July 9.

According to Detective Michael Tortorelli, the prisoners admitted they tossed a stench bomb into the South Side theater two days prior to the attempted bombing.

Arraigned in Central Police court today, the suspects were held over pending further investigation by the bomb and arson squad.

Robbers Loot 4 Troy Hill Homes

Four Troy Hill homes were robbed last night, according to reports to the police. From the home of J. Sepplick, 2161 Lowrie street, $5 and $100 worth of jewelry was taken; $2 from the home of Mrs. Mary Schirel, 2545 Lowrie street; $14 from the home of William Pitler, 2034 Eggers street, and $5 and $75 worth of jewelry from the Frank Abel home, 2032 Eggers street.

FARM SCHEME PAIR PAROLED

Warned not to engage in chicken farming or other "big business" during the two years of their parole, Visiting Judge Marion D. Patterson, of Blair County, sitting in Criminal Court here, placed Fred D. Kerr, now of Akron, O., and his wife, Laura E. Kerr, of Center avenue, on probation until 1933. They were convicted September 25 of false pretense and have been in jail about two and a half months.

It was charged they, doing business as F. D. Kerr, Inc., claimed to be making $20,000 a year maturing newly hatched chickens in 60 days under artificial light, so they could be sold as broilers. It was charged they induced G. A. Geyer, of the King Edward apartments, to invest $25,000 and J. H. Nilson, Crafton, to invest $5,000, through false representations of their profits. In pronouncing sentence the judge said:

"Neither of you have the business training necessary to carry on a business of the proportions you attempted. You had dreams of getting rich quickly. You must not attempt to do this again during the term of your parole, or ask others to invest their money with you."

Punchboard Sales Suspects Jailed

Warning them that Pittsburgh has "enough punchboards," Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, in Central Police Court, sent Max Penn, 32, and Al Sareet, 30, both of Brooklyn, N. Y., back to jail today pending an investigation. The two men were arrested yesterday in Smithfield street, in an automobile containing more than 1,000 punchboards.

HUNT GUNMAN AS VICTIM DIES

Homicide detectives today resumed search for the gunman who shot John Meyers, 45, who died yesterday in Municipal Hospital at Leech Farm from complications resulting from two wounds in his chest.

Detectives say Meyers was shot a month ago, when he surprised an intruder in his home, 739 Excelsior street. The man fired twice in answer to Meyers' order to surrender.

Both shots entered Meyers' chest. He was removed to the hospital when tuberculosis developed. Several men, arrested in connection with the shooting, were released recently.

COUNTY TO PAY M'GOVERN FEE

The county is going to pay a bill for legal services contracted by County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern.

He presented the bill of Thomas E. Whitten and Ralph H. Smith, who represented him in the town hall case here and in the Dauphin County Court. Their fee was $500.

It was approved with little comment from his two colleagues. Heretofore when McGovern has asked for legal advice he has paid for it out of his own pocket.

BANDITS KIDNAP, ROB LAWYER

Police today are searching for the two highwaymen who last night held up and robbed Attorney Jacob Shulgold, of 6334 Forward avenue. According to police two men entered the attorney's car while it was stopped in traffic at Neville and Bayard street and forced Shulgold to drive to Schenley Park, where they robbed him of $40. The thieves escaped in Shugold's car. The machine was recovered later by Shulgold near the scene of the robbery.

Charles Schnoper, a tailor, of 524 Beltzhoover avenue, reported to police last night that thieves had entered his shop during his absence and stole $20 from the cash drawer.

How Tartan Beat Irish. • Notre Dame's Reserves.
Wright Coming Back. Newest Fistic Champ.

PSYCHOLOGY AIDS IN SKIBO VICTORY

IN CONNECTION WITH the coming of Notre Dame to meet Carnegie Tech at the Stadium Saturday, the memorable battle of 1926, in which Capt. Lloyd Yoder and his Tartans stunned the gridiron world by upsetting the Irish, 19 to 0, is bound to be brought up. It has come to light recently that, contrary to the generally accepted idea that Carnegie surprised herself as greatly as anybody else by defeating her famous opponents, there was a firm conviction among certain Tartan men weeks before the game that the Skibos had a good chance to win.

Lloyd Yoder

Accordingly, a psychology entirely different from that usually employed was used. A campaign was started several weeks in advance of the game to convince the Plaid players that they were every bit as good as the opposition. This campaign was cleverly conceived and just as cleverly executed. Famous players of other days took to dropping in on practice during the afternoons.

A MEMBER OF the 1926 squad would be taken aside and talked to in this fashion: "Why boy, you've got everything to make you a great guard. I have watched you working in practice. Your co-ordination is marvelous." Or to another: "You're the greatest tackle I ever saw on this field and my memory goes back a long way."

Every member of the outfit was picked out in turn for praise or blatant flattery. It was built up slowly, until, just before the game, the Carnegie team thought it was unbeatable. As to the method of playing the game, it will be remembered that the Scots made absolutely no headway until Notre Dame's shock troops had been supplanted by the regulars. That was according to iron-clad instructions.

CARNEGIE HAD NO shock troops, but the varsity had been ordered just to play with Notre Dame's. Howard Harpster would order a buck twice and then punt, continuing this system until the Irish regulars were sent in. When Notre Dame's best pulled off their sweaters and came into action Capt. Yoder's instructions were to permit none of his players even to look at them. He was to call for an immediate time-out, go into a huddle and start the steam-up for the real fireworks.

Yoder followed his orders to the letter. Men who were in that huddle say he surpassed the dressing room efforts of many coaches, and when the Tartans turned around to face their foes they were at that mental and physical peak which a team usually reaches only once in its existence. They struck hard and fast, for almost an immediate touchdown, and held the upper hand throughout the remainder of the game.

MAX CAREY INTIMATES that Lew Fonseca won't be the only major league manager to get his name in the box scores. Max's playing days are over, of course, but he means to train like any other player in the spring with a view to stepping in and doing a pinch-baserunning job for his Brooklyn club now and then. He retains most of his old speed and skill on the sacks. It is expected that Max will reappoint Otto Miller as battery coach, but his intentions in the matter of retaining or dropping Ivan Olson and Jimmy Johnston are not known.

ONE OF THE first things that Carey did after being appointed Brooklyn manager was to make inquiries about Glenn Wright, whose ankles gave way last summer. He was delighted to learn there is a good prospect that Wright, whom he means to make captain again, will be back on the shortstop job in fine shape for 1932.

Glenn Wright

A bone specialist informed Glenn there was nothing wrong except that his ankles were uncommonly weak. The doctor prescribed a trick pair of shoes, built up on the outside so that Wright's weight will be carried on the inner side of the foot, calculated to strengthen his ankles to a point near normalcy.

TOO MUCH IS being made of Notre Dame's so-called advantage in the matter of reserve players, and of what some critics are pleased to call a handicap, under which an opposing eleven must meet "two or three Irish teams." Carnegie Tech beat Notre Dame twice without using an army. Last Saturday Notre Dame used only four more players than Pitt, 26 to 22.

Besides, what's to prevent opposing colleges from developing and having on their squads just as many players as the South Bend school? Of the nine institutions on the Irish schedule this year, all except Carnegie, Army, Navy and Drake have from two to four times as many students as Notre Dame. The South Bend reserves are superior to the average sub because they are given more chances to play.

AS CARNEGIE TECH showed in 1926 and 1928, there's a way to keep the Irish from sending in a second or a third team, if the latter practice is considered unfair or objectionable. That way is to beat or outplay the first team. Notre Dame can't take any chances on shifting its lineup unless the regulars have gained a lead. If the foe is good enough to hold the regulars or gain an edge on them, there won't be many changes. The Irish policy of using as many players as the state of the game permits is to be commended, rather than condemned, for more reasons than the mere fact that it has proved winning generalship through a string of 22 victories and a tie in the last 23 games.

BY THAT MEANS the regulars are saved from exhaustion that might lead to serious injury, substitutes are developed gradually and schooled to fill regular posts in the future, and a greater number of boys are given a chance to play varsity football and win monograms, in line with the idea that colleges ought to get as many boys as possible into athletics and avoid confining sports to a few.

Also, an opponent that is seen to be outclassed is thus spared a beating as severe or humiliating as it would otherwise receive. Overdoing this two-or-three-teams stuff causes it to sound like an alibi for a defeated team and thereby reflects unfairly upon the latter, when, as in the case of Pitt, the defeated team itself would not think of stooping to such tactics.

"I CAN'T EXPLAIN it, but Catholic University always hits its best stride against Duquesne's football teams. Maybe that's why we're looking forward to Friday night's game in Pittsburgh." The speaker was Lester (Ripper) Sheary, colorful Catholic U fullback, and last year voted his team's most valuable player.

Sheary is borne out by the records. Since opposing the Dukes, C. U. has not yet tasted victory, but in the role of underdog it has always impressed with a stout stand.

Lucien Brouillard

THE NEW WELTERWEIGHT ring champion, Lucien Brouillard, an amateur less than two years ago, is not only the youngest fighter to head that division, being only 20, but is also the first southpaw ever to win the 147-pound title. Though he works out of Worcester, the young French-Canadian's home is in Danielson, Conn. His main achievements before winning the crown from Young Jack Thompson were the defeat of Al Mello for the New England championship, the knocking out of Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, and a decision over Thompson himself in a non-title bout. Brouillard is of the rugged type, a throw-back from the old school, and one of the strongest men ever to represent the welter class.

GEHRIG GIVEN SECOND PLACE IN VOTE

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Robert Moses Grove, who turned in a record-breaking pitching year for the Philadelphia Athletics, has been selected as the American League's most valuable player for 1931.

The celebrated southpaw of the former world champions receives the distinction by vote of a committee of eight members of the Baseball Writers Association of America, announced today by William J. Slocum of New York, president.

RECEIVES 78 POINTS

Grove topped the list by a wide margin. He received 78 points out of a possible 80. Lou Gehrig, first baseman of the New York Yankees, finished second with 59; Al Simmons of the Athletics collected 51; Earl Averill, Cleveland outfielder, placed fourth with 43, and the great Babe Ruth, winner of the honor in 1923, was fifth with 40 points.

Mickey Cochrane received the last official award by the American League in 1928. In the 1931 list Cochrane finished in a tie for ninth and George Earnshaw, right-handed ace of the A's, was placed eleventh.

Not since Walter Johnson last won the honor in 1924 has a pitcher been selected as the most valuable performer. Grove wound up his greatest season with 31 victories and only four defeats for a record winning percentage of .886. He won two out of three starts against the Cardinals in the world series. By many observers he is regarded as the most consistently effective southpaw of all time.

FIRST ON SIX LISTS

Grove was placed first on six lists and second on the other two to acount for his high total. Gehrig and Simmons each received one first place ranking. Grove and Gehrig were the only players scoring points on each list. Simmons and Averill placed on seven each and Ruth on six.

The complete results:

Lefty Grove, Philadelphia, 78; Lou Gehrig, New York, 59; Al Simmons, Philadelphia, 51; Earl Averill, Cleveland, 43; Babe Ruth, New York, 40; Earl Webb, Boston, 27; Joe Cronin, Washington, 18; Oscar Melillo, St. Louis, 17; Sam West, Washington, 16; Mickey Cochrane, Philadelphia, 16; George Earnshaw, Philadelphia, 12; Wes Ferrell, Cleveland, 12; Fred Marberry, Washington, 11; Hal Rhyne, Boston, 10; Ben Chapman, New York, 7; Jonathan Stone, Detroit, 6; Charley Gehringer, Detroit, 4; Lu Blue, Chicago, 4; Ralph Kress, St. Louis, 3; Carl Reynolds, Chicago, 2; Walter Stewart, St. Louis, 2; Goose Goslin, St. Louis, 2; Danny MacFayden, Boston, 2; Tom Oliver, Boston, 2; Jimmy Foxx, Philadelphia, 1.

Honorable mention—Durham, Boston; Fothergill, Frasier, Cissell, Chicago; Morgan, Kamm, Vosmik, Luke Sewell, Cleveland; Alexander and R. Johnson, Detroit; Gomez, Combs, Joe Sewell and Dickey, New York; [illegible], Boston; Haas, McNair and Mahaffey, Philadelphia; Crowder, Spencer, Kuhel and Myer, Washington; St. Louis none.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE LONGEST RUN IN 18.2 BALKLINE BILLIARDS—What is reputed to be the longest run ever made in 18.2 balkline billiards was made by Willie Hoppe recently, at the Strand Billiard Academy, New York City. Hoppe started Friday afternoon, October 2, playing with Welker Cochran. He ran 200 from the spot that afternoon and ran another 200 from the spot that evening. On Saturday afternoon he again made 200 from the spot, running another 200 that evening. On Sunday his run was 98—making a total of 898 straight points.

PITT PREPARES FOR BATTLE WITH LIONS

By JESS CARVER

Carnegie Tech, busily engaged in preparing for another invasion of Notre Dame's Irish (?) football team, is wondering if just maybe, it will not be possible to do a bit of running outside the Irish ends here Saturday afternoon.

Armentrout

The Tartans began serious workout for the encounter with Hunk Anderson's well-drilled charges yesterday with a secret and lengthy workout in the Skibo Bowl. The scouts who watched the South Benders and Panthers in action last week all were on hand, and among various other things they told Coach Bobby Waddell was that Pitt, on numerous accasions, was able to get outside the Notre Dame terminals.

Carnegie always has been able to send halfbacks or quarterbacks or fullbacks scooting around other clubs' ends. They've had "outside" runners of the caliber of Donahue, Kerr, Moorhead and Eyth, of recent years, who were almost strictly outside gallopers. This year, Capt. Murray Armentrout, although not as fast as Eyth or Moorhead, or even Donahue, and George Kavel, are the best "outside" bets. Of the two, Armentrout possibly is the more dangerous, for Kavel, while he can swing wide, likes best to drive off the tackles, ramming his way through for shorter gains, and taking the chance of breaking into the clear on smacks at the tackles, rather than outside 'em.

ENDS NO BARGAINS

Notre Dame's ends, Kosky and Mahoney, of the first eleven, and Paul Host and Devore, of the second, are no slouches, but they do not appear to be as fast as they might and certainly have proved themselves better offensive wings than defensive. If Carnegie can get its interference to click, I wouldn't be at all surprised to see the Plaid pick up a neat mess of yardage by running wide on Saturday.

Of course, just to prove that I'm all wet as usual, the Irish terminals will be in there like champions; the Tech interference will get itself all messed up and every time Carnegie tries to go around end, it will mean a deficit in yardage.

The folks who turn out for this game Saturday are due for a thrill when you see this lad Melinkovich, Notre Dame's new fullback. Melinkovich, a sophomore, has plenty to learn, and is far from an all-America candidate as yet, but he goes about his work with a zest that is refreshing, to say the least. He slams into the line, rips off the tackles and how he loves to be on the defense. Does he crack 'em? Ho, ho! And HOW he cracks 'em.

The first time he speared the Pitt line last week, they gave him the old works in there and he picked himself up and delivered a loud squawk. Marchy Schwartz, good old Marchy, who takes it as it comes and never says a word, turned to him and barked:

"Say, Sophomore, quit yelping! You got to take it and you might as well keep still. What do you think we are doing in there?"

The Pitt defense against the forward pass, or the lack of such a defense, is being gone into very thoroughly this week. Pitt, playing Penn State at State College this week, expects to encounter a lot of forward passing, possibly as much as was tossed its way by Notre Dame last Saturday.

Unlike Carnegie, which was given a day off Monday, Coach Sutherland had his squad out for a drill and worked 'em again yesterday, and pretty hard, too. Jock gave his new backfield combination, made up of Luch, Hogan, Heller and Sebastian quite a workout. Reider hardly will be ready for duty against Penn State, unless absolutely necessary, and the first backfield neers to become ac-

IRISH DEPART TOMORROW

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 28.—The weather man sympathized with Hunk Anderson yesterday in dampness of spirits and sent a generous morning rain down on Cartier Practice field.

It was not enough, however, to hinder preparations in the Irish camp for Saturday's game with Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh, and the shock troops or second team sloshed their way through a scrimmage that reminded spectators of the Northwestern game at Chicago recently.

If Anderson is looking for reasons for gloom, he found them in yesterday's drill in which the reserves and ineligibles, garbed in suits resembling those of the Tartans, pushed the second string line down the field at will. Passes also caught the shock troop secondary napping time and again.

The Irish will entrain for Pittsburgh tomorrow night, after two more days of practice.

PERINA UNDER KNIFE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Carl Perina, the crashing Penn fullback, has an infection of the hand that calls for a lancing operation today. He expects, however, to be in shape for the Lafayette game.

W. VA. CHARITY TILT IN DOUBT

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Harry A. Stansbury, director of athletics at West Virginia University, said today he believed University officials were willing to consider a post-season charity football game for the Mountaineers, but that so far the games proposed do not meet the conditions the University would require.

Stansbury issued a formal statement saying the University had received four or five proposals from organizations, institutions and individuals, among them Owen D. Young, head of the Hoover Relief organization, for charity.

President John R. Turner has expressed disapproval of post-season contests.

Calling attention to President Turner's objections, Stansbury said that the president might waive his formal objections provided an opponent was one with which West Virginia has established athletic relations, or which the Mountaineers might approve for a place upon their regular schedule, and one which would likewise offer substantial profit for the charities named.

D. & E. UNDECIDED

ELKINS, W. Va., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Jennings Randolph, athletic director of Davis and Elkins College, today said no action had been taken by the institution to play a post-season charity football game in Chicago against a professional team.

Davis and Elkins also has been invited to play for charity's sake against Marshall College, West Virginia University and West Virginia Wesleyan.

AL LANG IN CITY

Al Lang, former Pittsburgh resident, who now makes his home at St. Petersburg, Fla., is in town for a visit. While mayor of St. Petersburg, Lang succeeded in getting the Boston Braves and New York Yankees to use that spot as a training ground. He attended the recent world series and expects to remain over to see some of the attractive football battles scheduled for the Stadium.

THE COACH'S VIEWPOINT

By Howard Harpster

Geneva College coach, and former all-America star at Carnegie Tech.

Last week-end was not a very profitable one for the local college teams so far as football victories were concerned, what with Pitt and Tech losing and Duquesne being held to a scoreless tie . . . However, all three teams made very creditable showings against foes who were admittedly stronger, and there seems to be just as much praise being given each of the squads as would have been theirs if they had won . . . Of course, everyone likes a winner, but oftentimes the losers win as much or more respect from the fans as their more fortunate rivals . . . Such seems to have been the case on Saturday, when Pitt made a fine showing against Notre Dame, and Tech held the stronger Purdue eleven to a 13-to-6 score, while Duquesne battled Western Maryland even the night before.

Howard Harpster

Pitt, playing a great game, stopped the Notre Dame running attack in the first half, only to fall victim to two beautifully-executed forward passes, each of which was good for a touchdown . . . The Panthers showed much strength in the first two quarters in advancing the ball and scored a touchdown early in the second period after a steady march through and around the Irish line . . . It was very evident when the Pitt team left the field for the between halves rest that the players were quite worn out, and, in the third quarter they weakened considerably, allowing Notre Dame to make much yardage through the line.

There is little doubt that Pitt was beaten because of two things, Notre Dame's passes and Pitt's lack of passes . . . Neither one of these reasons may be blamed upon the Pitt coach, Dr. Sutherland, for it wasn't because Pitt didn't use the right defense against passes, and it wasn't because the Panthers didn't possess a passing attack themselves . . . Sutherland had his team using a "diamond" defense in the backfield, which is the strongest defense existing against long passes . . . Two of the Irish passes for touchdowns were long throws and could have been covered had the Pitt backs been alert, but somebody wasn't on the job and the receivers caught them unmolested . . . The irony of the thing was that every one in the stadium knew the passes were coming.

By saying that Pitt's lack of passes helped to defeat it, I mean that when the Panther quarterback saw that his team was able to gain ground by running the ball he discarded the passing game entirely during the first half and resorted to power plays, not realizing that such an attack would sap the strength of his players and

COMISKEY RITES TOMORROW

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Large throngs, representing every branch of life, paid final tribute to baseball's Old Roman, Charles A. Comiskey, whose body lay in state at his South Side home yesterday.

Young and old, and a smattering of baseball's leaders were in the large crowds that streamed by the bier.

The body will lie in state until the funeral services tomorrow morning and all the leaders of the baseball world may be in attendance.

Pallbearers are to be all old freinds, Patrick Nash, Judge Henry Horner, William J. Leahy, Joe T. Berry, Jesse Matteson, Edward Fleming, John T. Harding and Urban Faber, veteran White Sox pitcher.

Messages of condolence came from all over the world. President Hoover wired his deepest sympathy.

CHEMES STOPS JOHNNY HIGH

The 126-pound district champion, Joey Chemes, of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, tallied the only kayo, although of a technical nature, of the amateur boxing program staged at St. John's Lyceum, South Side, last night, when he stopped Johnny High, of the Boys' Club, in the first round, High retiring when his coach, Johnny Brown, tossed a towel into the ring.

MacKenzie Verge, of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, lost his three-rounder with Leo Sweeney, of the Boys' Club, while Bob Kelley, of the Boys' Club, won a verdict over Leroy Bucknelli, Pittsburgh Lyceum. Mike Wolf, Pittsburgh Lyceum, copped from Johnny Gons, Boys' Club, in the other contest of three rounds.

Decision on W.-J.-Geneva Game Today

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 28.—The W. & J. athletic council, at its meeting this afternoon, will consider a formal request request received yesterday from the Washington community chest authorities that the Presidents meet Geneva College in a charity football game at Beaver Falls on Saturday, December 5.

Geneva already has agreed to play the game, and Acting President E. M. Meyer, of W. & J., and Coaches Amos and Henry have approved the plan.

BROWN BEATS HUAT

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Panama Al Brown, whose claim to the world bantamweight championship is recognized by the National Boxing Association, today clamored for wider recognition as a result of his 15-round victory over Eugene Huat, French champion, here last night before a crowd of 12,000, the largest boxing gathering in Montreal's history.

DUKES PLAN AIR ATTACK IN GAME FRIDAY

McChesneytown Tests Dan Burns Machine in Benefit Tilt Tonight

CATHOLIC U. TEAM ARRIVES TOMORROW

Joe Bach is depending on a heavy aerial onslaught to win the final night game of the season as the Dukes oppose Dutch Bergman's Catholic University gridders at Forbes Field Friday night.

He is devoting the entire afternoon today, the last daylight practice before the game, to tightening defenses against the forward and to perfect additional passing combinations. He will have several potential tossers and receivers to supplement the Devenney-to-De Luca combination.

WHELAN FAST

Dutch Bergman, who played with the great George Gipp, of Notre Dame, has an aerial warfare all his own. And it has been clicking much better than that of the Dukes. Johnny Oliver-to-Tom Whelan is the Cardinal order, and it is sometimes reversed, just as the Duquesne combination operates.

In addition to that, Coach Bergman has in Whelan, "The Holyoke Hurricane," one of the fastest ball-carriers in the game. Joe Bach, who scouted the Catholic University team last Friday night, says Whelan is the fastest man he has ever seen in the game.

BOASTS OF VICTORY

Dutch Bergman, whose cohorts are expected here tomorrow afternoon, openly boasts his men will take the Dukes and that they will make a Roman holiday of the business.

To say that the Dukes are worried, including Head Coach Elmer Layden, who is ill, is putting it mildly. They expect to take it on the chin, a fact which Coach Bach told his men in lecture yesterday, exhorting them to do better work.

It is about time for the Red and Blue gridders to click and Friday is the last opportunity to do it at night this season.

Fight Results

At San Francisco—Swede Berglund defeated Tommy (Kid) Murphy, 10 rounds; Leroy Haynes knocked out Joe King, 3 rounds; Frankie Simms knocked out Fred Reese, 1 round; Tommy King knocked out Manuel Avilee, 4 rounds.

GRIDDER SERIOUSLY ILL

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Francis Monaghan, 17, quarterback on the St. Clair High School football team, was reported to be in a serious condition in a hospital here yesterday from injuries received in a game against Girardville last Saturday.

JOHNNY SURDOCK

SURDOCK STAR SCHOOL BACK

By JULIUS LEVIN

One of the best triple-threat stars in scholastic football this season is Johnny Surdock, backfield ace of Coach McHenry's Miles Bryan High School eleven, of McKees Rocks. Here's a boy who can do anything required of a first-class football player.

Surdock, playing his final year for the McKees Rocks eleven, is enjoying a banner season on the gridiron, and as a result Miles Bryan High School has won four of the five games it has played so far.

A shifty runner, who has broken loose against all opponents played by McKees Rocks, Surdock does not confine his brilliance to ball-carrying alone. He does all the punting, throws most of the passes and calls the signals for McHenry's team.

Surdock was the whole show in the recent game with Carnegie. He was McKees Rocks' main weapon of attack and he tore off large gains consistently to put his mates in a scoring position.

As a field general there are very few gridders in the Greater Pittsburgh district who can compare with him. Miles Bryan High School will not win the championship this season, but the Rox eleven nevertheless has one of Western Pennsylvania's outstanding football stars in this elusive back.

School Notes

Record crowds are expected at Greensburg and Washington Saturday when undefeated elevens are involved in two games that will play a big part in the W. P. I. A. L. championship. Clairton will be the attraction at Greensburg and Wilkinsburg at Washington.

Mt. Lebanon High School's football team is enjoying one of its best seasons on the gridiron. The Mt. Lebanon eleven has scored five victories in six games, the only defeat being inflicted by McKees Rocks. Bridgeville, Crafton, Braddock, South Fayette and Scottdale were taken over. Carnegie is met next Friday.

Dick Tolize's Moline eleven is showing improvement with each game. Dick's team handed Braddock its first defeat of the season last Friday, 7-6, dropping Jim Hudson's machine from the lead in the Turtle Creek Valley.

Two Ralphs are shining for Scott High, of North Braddock, and Bill Campbell's Homestead eleven. Ralph Ferguson has been a star in the Scott backfield, while Ralph Stafura's work for Homestead likewise has left no room for complaint. Both boys stood out in the recent 12-12 tie played by the two clubs. Following the contest, both coaches, Reed and Campbell, left for South Bend to see the Pitt-Notre Dame game.

Midland, the leader in the Beaver Valley with six victories and no defeats, boasts one of the outstanding ends in the district in David Jakes, rugged Negro terminal. Jakes has played a prominent role in all victories scored by Lomond's powerful team.

Crafton, Coach Wenrich's eleven, after taking four straight on the chin, finally broke into the victory column by defeating Ben Avon, 18-0. It was Ben Avon's third defeat in four games.

Giles, fullback of Hank Day's Washington eleven, is about the smallest plunger in the district. Coach Day does not believe a good fullback has to be a giant.

Officials at Scott High, North Braddock, are looking for a record crowd at the benefit night game Friday with strong Vincent High, of Erie. The Lake City eleven for years has ranked with the strongest teams in Northwestern Pennsylvania. The proceeds of the game will be turned over to the North Braddock unemployment fund.

One of the shining lights for Arnold High this season has been Claire Nevergoll, who has been playing a sparkling game at right guard. Although Arnold has suffered three defeats in four games, it has not been the fault of Nevergoll, whose play all season has been of high order. Arnold will meet Leechburg Saturday at Leechburg.

HOCKEY LEAGUE SCHEDULE IS REVISED

WINDSOR, Oct. 28.—Announcement has been made by President C. S. King, of the International Hockey League, of date changes of nine games on the 1931-32 schedule.

The rearrangement was made necessary by a last-minute revision of the National Hockey League schedule, which resulted in the booking of the Detroit Falcons at Detroit Olympia on six Sunday nights which had previously been assigned to the Olympics by the International League.

The Detroit Olympics objected to the scheduled game with Windsor on Christmas Eve, December 24, pointing out it was the poorest night of the entire season for a crowd. Consequently the schedule was altered to book Cleveland at Detroit Olympic Friday, December 25.

Following are the rearranged dates:

London at Detroit, game of Sunday, January 10, changed to Sunday, December 6.

London at Detroit, Sunday, February 21, changed to Sunday, December 20.

Cleveland at Detroit, Sunday, January 17, changed to Friday, December 25.

Cleveland at Detroit, Sunday, March 13, changed to Sunday, March 6.

Windsor at Detroit, Thursday, December 24, changed to Sunday, January 24.

Windsor at Detroit, Sunday, February 28, changed to Thursday, March 10.

Buffalo at Detroit, Sunday, March 20, changed to Sunday, March 27.

Detroit at Syracuse, Sunday, March 6, changed to Pittsburgh at Syracuse.

Pittsburgh at Syracuse, Sunday, March 20, changed to Detroit at Syracuse.

NATIONAL OPENS NOV. 12

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—With its membership reduced to eight teams, the National Hockey League will open its long winter schedule in Toronto, Detroit and Montreal on November 12.

On the opening night the Chicago Blackhawks will swing into action against Toronto. The Rangers will provide the opposition for the world champion Canadiens and the Falcons will entertain the Star-Spangled New York Americans.

A. A. U. to Permit One-Piece Suits For Swimmers

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, controlling organization in swimming as well as track and field sports, proposes to eliminate officially its ban on one-piece suits for mermaids, according to changes in regulations to be acted by the annual convention in Kansas City, November 15, 16, 17.

Men would be permitted to wear tights only in competition, under the proposed new regulations, designed to produce faster times and enable American swimmers to compete on a more equal basis with foreign rivals.

MAHAFFEY WEDS

ANDERSON, S. C., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Leroy Mahaffey, Philadelphia Athletics' pitcher, and Thelma Louise Williams, of Anderson, were married late Monday at Belton. The bride's age was given as 19 and Mahaffey's as 28. Mahaffey's home is at Belton.

DEL VECCHIO LEADER IN GOLF FINAL

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Perry Del Vecchio, pro-greenkeeper at the Greensburg Country Club, former West Penn open king, was leading his assistant, Wayne Tobias, 3 up, at the end of the first 18 holes of their 36-hole conquest for the Tri-State P. G. A. match play championship at the Highland Country Club this afternoon.

Perry was only 1 over par with a tally of 35-37-72 in taking an early lead for the right to hold the first championship of the sort ever held in this district. Tobias' medal was 41-37-78. Going out this morning, Del Vecchio, apparently eager to finish off his younger and less experienced opponent, was 4 up at the turn, but two of his holes were won only through birdies, showing the stiff sort of competition he was being offered by Tobias.

Del Vecchio won the first hole with a birdie 3, the second with a par 4, the fifth with a par 5 and the seventh with a birdie 3 to gain his advantage at the turn. On the homeward trek, he went 5 up by sinking a birdie 3 on the tenth, lost the thirteenth when he needed a 5 to Tobias' par 4 and won it back again on the fourteenth with a birdie 3. Tobias won the fifteenth with a par 3 and the seventeenth with a birdie 3, dropping a 25-foot putt and they halved the eighteenth, leaving Perry 3 up as they started their scheduled second 18 holes this afternoon. Their cards:

TWO GRID LOOP GAMES CARDED FOR SUNDAY

By TOM BIRKS

With warfare in the West Penn Independent Grid Conference curtailed a week, fans will trek to Parnassus High field this evening to watch McChesneytown battle the Dan Burns club.

Since the Latrobe team dropped from the conference, owing to the lack of suitable home grounds, the upriver fans have been asking that McChesneytown be brought back. Cy McGinnis jumped at the chance to meet the classy Berkman gridders.

The Big Red machine, with its collegiate style of football, is expected to give the conference outfit many an anxious moment. The McChesneytown team that defeated Burns two seasons ago is intact, except for Bill Johnson.

McGinnis says the club has returned to the intricate play system partly abandoned when Clem Crowe joined the team. With Chappie Johnson, the halfback who ran 90 yards for a touchdown to defeat West View, Cy McGinnis, Bud Watkins and Jim McGinnis, the Aluminum town fans may anticipate many deceptive plays.

The Firemen are putting on this game as a benefit attraction and Stan Berkman wants to keep his team's winning streak intact. The contest will begin at 8:15 p. m. Two games are to be played in the conference Sunday: East Liverpool, with numerous changes, clashes with West View, and at McKeesport the Olympics meet the Rooneys.

McKeesport firemen and policemen will engage in a football game tomorrow night at Memorial Field, McKeesport, for the purpose of inflating an emergency fund for the poor and unemployed in their district. The game has created a great deal of interest in the Tube City.

NATIONAL CUP SOCCER GAME ON SUNDAY

With Morgan slated to meet Cecil in the national amateur cup competition Sunday and with first round games of the West Penn cup up for settlement, soccer fans have carded for them a banner program.

German Sport Club is slated to meet the Duquesne Republicans at Sullivan Field but there is talk of transferring this game to Duquesne.

The Morris play for the second time in two weeks at Leslie Park and there is no reason to feel the Rovers have a better chance of winning.

Jack Campbell has the Union Switch eleven in fine shape for Westinghouse and inasmuch as the latter easily defeated the Germans, Switch may have a battle on its hands.

The Cecil-Morgan tilt will create the greatest interest it is expected, although the Celtics tilt stacks up as a fine contest in that Curry will be playing at home.

Morgan will be minus the shooting power of Buff Donnelli's educated toe. The amateur ranks bar Buff so Brother Fred probably will start at center forward.

In all justice to Pitt and the fine showing it made I don't believe that the stories about Sutherland's team having to play two Notre Dame elevens or a double-header in one afternoon, are quite fair. . . . In a sense they carry with them a faint hint of alibis and crying and having talked with the Pitt coach following the game I know that neither he nor his team did either.

In the first place, it has been a topic of sports writers for years that Notre Dame has a large and well schooled squad, and any team that meets the Irish must realize that it isn't just 11 players it must defeat, but rather the Notre Dame team, which may consist, as it did on Saturday this fall, of 57 players. . . . Didn't Rockne always start a "shock troop team" and then substitute a whole new eleven at once?

In the second place, the Notre Dame regulars played all of the first three quarters except for the last five minutes of the second period against Pitt and when they were taken out after a few minutes of play in the last quarter the score was 25 to 6 and they were going stronger than ever.

The fact that Carnegie Tech defeated a Notre Dame team headed for a national title in 1926, 19 to 0, and used only 13 players in doing the job and in 1928 turned the trick again, by a 27-to-7 score, this time using only 16 players to Notre Dame's 84, makes such stories all the more unreasonable and tends to put Pitt in an unfavorable light by comparison.

My belief is that passes and passes alone defeated Pitt last Saturday, and since forward-passing still is part of the offense the scores made by such means are just as deserved as those by any other method. . . . Whether the Pitt backs would break up the three scoring passes if the teams were to meet again next Saturday is another question. . . . If they could, then those who placed 3-to-1 odds on Notre Dame might not be so smart.

TECH POLISHES END PLAYS

customed to Sebastian being in there, or vice versa.

On the line Johnny Meredith is working out at Jess Quatse's tackle position, with Cheesio Onder in at guard in place of the injured Hart Morris. Otherwise, the first team remains intact.

HAS HELLER ARRIVED?

Right now, Warren Heller looks to be Pitt's best triple threat man. I'm surprised that Jock doesn't develop him more along those lines. Against Notre Dame his ball toting was o. k., his defensive work excellent and his forward passing and quick-kicking A-1.

Heller gets off his quick kicks like a champion. He booted two pips over the heads of Irish safety men at South Bend. He's poison anytime he gets past that line of scrimmage, for he can run like a deer and he can drive hard enough to crack his way through most any line. He may be Pitt's next all-American halfback, who knows?

LIONS CRIPPLED

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Three varsity players were out of the Penn State lineup when the team took the field for practice and the substitute for one of them was injured in yesterday's session. Capt. Lasich was unable to take part because of an injury which developed after the Syracuse game last week. Curry, a guard, was still unable to play. Collins, regular halfback, was called home on account of his father's illness, and may not return in time for the Pitt game Saturday. Slusser was slightly hurt in scrimmage.

PAIR OF BOXING BILLS TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Two boxing shows are scheduled in Western Pennsylvania tonight at McKeesport and Uniontown. A double windup card features the McKeesport show brought ahead one night because of the police and firemen's football game there tomorrow night. Battling Gizzy of Donora meets Harry Forbes of Indianapolis, and his stablemate, Jimmy Thomas, tangles with Eddie Pucci of Ohio in the two 10-round bouts. Nick Susnell of Rochester, Pa., begins a comeback campaign against Jimmy Vaughn of St. Michael's in the second bout and Sharkey Lesko takes on George Schlie in the opener. Popular prices of 50 cents to $1 again will prevail.

Jimmy Thomas

The Uniontown show, to be held in the Gallatin Garden, originally was scheduled for last Wednesday, but was set back a week because of the indisposition of Matty Mario, of New York, who boxes Joey Spiegel, Uniontown southpaw welterweight, in the main bout. Mario has been in there with Jackie Fields and other topnotchers around the country and won over Jimmy Belmont in an appearance at Motor Square Garden quite a spell back.

Chuck Taggart and Ernie Sledge are in the eight-round semi-final and Don Asto meets Al Farrone and Chuck Zelnack opposes Mickey Hazuda in six-round preliminaries.

Sport Vignettes

A mad wag scribe says that what happened to Ohio State's Big Ten championship pretensions last Saturday was that Northwestern went Southeast with them. . . . "Big Gates in Chicago," shrieks a headline, referring, of course, to boxing receipts and not the doors of the jailhouse that welcomed Al Capone. . . . November 14, the date of the Pitt-Army game here, also is the day set aside for the national observance of Rockne Day, arranged by the Rockne Memorial Association. . . . Through one of those strange twists of fate, Charles Webb Murphy and Charley Comiskey, rivals in the ownership of the Chicago Cubs and White Sox for years, died within a week of each other. . . . "The Army Always Carries On," and the Cadets will be tough to beat in their games with Pitt and other opponents following the death of young Dick Sheridan as a result of injuries suffered in the meeting with Yale. . . . This fatal accident stresses once again the fact that football still is a very, very dangerous sport and hard played.

There is no truth in the report that the Pitt athletic authorities have decided upon a plan to remedy their ticket situation for the Army game whereby all of the yard lines will be marked "50" except the 50-yard line, which will be marked "goal" so no one will clamor for tickets at that point . . . Frankie Bojarski, the Erie southpaw, wants to fight Benny Bass here . . . If you don't believe it, ask his manager, Jack Barry. . . One of the upsets of ringdom was the decisive defeat of Steve Halaiko by Jack Portney in Philadelphia last Monday night. . . . Halaiko is touted as one of the best of the younger lightweights. . . . The Sharon district has a Battling Bozo all its own in the person of Kid Sal, who is on almost every boxing bill there.

Between Rounds

A letter awaits Tiger Joe West at this office.

Billy Flanagan, of Braddock, has been matched for a 10-round windup with Buddy McArthur at Fairmont, W. Va., next Wednesday night. Johnny Montebano of Braddock will box Frankie Reilly, of McKeesport, in the semi-final.

Jack Britton, Leach Cross, Young Fulton, Marty Cross, Joe Lynch and Artie O'Leary are among former boxing stars who will appear in exhibition bouts featuring a benefit show in New York, November 19.

Eddie Brannot was fined part of his purse but not suspended for fouling Lou Petrone in their bout in McKeesport last Thursday night at a meeting held in the boxing commission office yesterday and, as a result, will be able to go through with an eight-round bout with Kid Bliss of New York at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. Frankie Wallace will box Moe Butch and Sammy Dorfman will oppose Ray Collins in two 10-round feature events. Peter Johns has been matched with Jimmy Gilligan for a four-round opener and there also will be a six-round preliminary.

FANS AGAIN BOO LEONARD WIN

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Benny Leonard will have to show a great deal more ability than he did against Vittorio Livan at the Arena here last night before his comeback can be given any serious consideration, boxing fans held today.

True Leonard was credited with a knockout over Livan in three rounds but the former champion's victory was not impressive. Livan did not furnish serious opposition. He folded up like a tent after Leonard had scored with a few hefty belts to the body.

Livan appeared to be stampeded by Leonard's reputation.

In a mixup at close quarters in the third round Leonard dropped a short right hand punch to the jaw and Livan fell to the canvas. The crowd started to boo. Livan got up at nine and staggered around the ring. A right to the jaw dropped him again. He rolled over and the crowd booed loudly.

Livan was up at nine but soon was down again, another right to the jaw doing the damage. Livan rolled over on his face but got up at the count of nine, while the fans continued to boo. Livan stumbled and went to the canvas again but was up without taking the benefit of any of the count. A right-hand punch that landed on the head caused him to go down for the full count.

Boos mingled with cheers as Leonard was proclaimed the winner.

GRID DECLINE PREDICTED

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Dr. William G. Anderson, director of the Yale Gymnasium, foresees the decline of football and the growth of so-called minor sports to the point where they become self-supporting.

Football's popularity, in his opinion, has reached its peak, and a gradual decline in public interest may be expected.

"Football," he says, "has had its seven fat years, and usually seven lean years follow, you know. Like the Greeks and the Romans, the public likes spectacles. That's why football has grown so popular.

"We are on the threshold of a new era in athletics. The future will see less emphasis on organized sports and more attention paid to the physical training of the individual student."

ELECT LORD BURGHLEY

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Lord Burghley, noted British athlete who has competed frequently in American meets, was elected to Parliament yesterday as a conservative in Northampton and Peterborough. He defeated his labor opponent by 13,434 votes. His father, the Marquess of Exeter, sits in the House of Lords.

Steel Industry Earnings Drop Sharply

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE EFFECTS OF CONTINUED declines in steel mill activity were sharply reflected in the quarterly statements of four leading steel companies which published their figures late yesterday. Only one of these companies reported a profit for the third quarter if special income is excluded from the computations.

Operations were below 30 per cent of capacity during most of the third quarter. This was slightly lower than in the second quarter and was substantially below production of a year ago.

Reductions in salaries and other economies tended to lighten the effect of declining volume. Wage reductions of 10 per cent placed into effect on October 1 will not show their influence on income accounts until statements for the present quarter are published.

Inland Reports Profit

INLAND STEEL COMPANY with net profit of $90,166, or 7 cents a share, was the only one of the four which actually earned money in the third quarter. Its profit, however, was smaller than in the preceding three months, when net was $772,757, or 64 cents a share. It was also under the corresponding quarter of last year, when net was $778,352, or 64 cents a share.

Inland's net for the first nine months of the year was $1,496,796, or $1.24 a share, as compared with $6,119,970, or $5.09 a share, in the same 1930 period. The sharp decline in earnings was responsible for a reduction in the annual dividend rate from $2.50 a share to $2 a share.

Special Income Helps Steel

UNITED STATES STEEL earned $3,187,131 for the quarter, but this included $7,160,966 special profit derived from the sale of properties. The proceeds of this have been divided over several quarterly periods in making statements. Without this non-recurring profit, a loss would have been shown for the quarter instead of a profit equivalent to 88 cents a share on the preferred stock. Net for the third quarter was less than in the second quarter, when profit of $7,391,355, or 12 cents a share, was reported for the common. This also included special income equal to that of the third quarter. A year ago net profit was $24,195,162, or $2.06 a share, on the common stock. Special income in that period amounted to $2,412,857.

Dividend requirements on the 7 per cent preferred stock of the United States Steel Corporation were not fully earned in the first nine months of the year even after the inclusion of special income of $14,321,932. Net profit was $17,343,543, or $4.81 a share, against dividend requirements for the three quarters of $5.25 a share. In the corresponding period of 1930 net was $92,099,686, or $8.44 a share on the common stock.

Republic Deficit Greater

REPUBLIC STEEL CORPORATION went into the red for $2,728,077 in the third quarter. This company has been reporting losses during most of the depression period, but the last statement showed the largest drop. Net for the period compared with a loss of $1,092,305 in the second quarter and with a loss of $1,740,509 a year ago.

For the first nine months of the year Republic went into a hole for $5,512,975 as compared with only $97,268 in the corresponding period of last year.

Jones & Laughlin Steel lost $934,352 in the third quarter as compared with a profit of $391,823, or 66 cents a share, on the preferred stock in the previous quarter and a profit of $1,850,837, or $1.43 a share, on the common a year ago. This company was in the red for $733,511 in the first nine months against a profit of $8,809,533, or $9.93 a share on the common stock in 1930.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Wall street, primed for a mighty poor showing by the Steel Corporation, accepted the third quarter statement stoically and sought to convince itself that the September figures would probably mark the trough of Steel's earnings for this depression. Wage and salary cuts now in effect are expected to make for some improvement in the current quarter along with a little more active business. Actual net income of $3,187,131, including $7,160,966 special non-operating profit, was the smallest reported for any quarter since the final three months of 1914. Exclusive of non-operating profit, the showing was one of the poorest in its history, marking one of the very few periods when Steel has actually operated at a loss, the deficit from operations amounting to $2,611,743 and the loss after fixed charges $3,793,835.

Looking over the Steel figures, the street was moved to remark the debt retirement program put through in 1929 must now be viewed as assuming proportions of a "master stroke." In the last quarter of 1928 fixed charges on such debt absorbed $6,327,505, whereas in the September quarter this year, such interest charges called for only $1,362,092. In other words, had not the 1929 bond redemption been undertaken, the corporation's loss after charges for the last quarter would have been roughly $8,939,248 before taking into account the special non-operating profit, instead of $3,973,835 as shown in the report.

A survey of the monthly earnings record shows that the trend of such earnings has now been definitely downward over a period of 16 months, with the September figure of $2,559,000, the smallest reported for any month since January, 1915, when the previous low of $1,687,000 was registered. The trend has been downward since May of last year when earnings for that month were reported at $16,570,790. In the interval the down trend has been interrupted slightly on only two occasions, once in March this year when earnings of $3,995,330 were about $30,000 above the February figure and again in July when earnings of $3,661,751 were approximately $190,000 better than in June. The foregoing record might be taken as suggesting that consumer stocks are extremely thin and that any definite turn in the situation could reflect in a brisk rebound.

Leaders of the railroad industry are busily at work attempting to reach some compromise decision on the latitude for rate increases allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission. These plans may work out successfully at any time in the near future, and if so the groundwork for a vigorous market upturn will be laid. In the meantime, current prices of rail securities are discounting everything in the way of dire consequences to earnings and dividends. Too much adherence to technical factors may result in considerable sorrow for bearish forces one of these days.

Renewal of London selling is reported accountable in part for the fresh outburst of weakness in railroad shares. This selling is linked to the operations of a large London speculator who has reputedly been a heavy seller of American securities at frequent intervals over the last 18 months or more. There is no effort to deny that domestic selling in the rails has been the chief cause back of the decline, and similarly it is recognized that news bearing on the position of the carriers has been such as would ordinarily make for persistent liquidation from various directions. Renewal of foreign selling, which had been looked upon as about completed, has tended to aggravate the situation.

Resumption of selling in American stocks by London speculators has its basis in the belief that now the elections are out of the way support which has been maintained in sterling exchange will very likely be withdrawn. It is calculated that any appreciable decline in the pound would bring about a renewal of liquidation of American securities by British holders who would be seeking to secure dollars because of their stability in contrast with the possible constant fluctuations in sterling pending stabilization.

Freight Loadings Lower for Week

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The revenue freight loadings for the week ending October 17 were announced today by the American Railway Association as totaling 761,719 cars.

This was a decrease of 2,145 cars below the preceding week and a decline of 169,386 cars from the same week a year ago.

COTTON PRICES EASE OFF

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 5 to 8 points on a moderate demand from the trade, Liverpool and local sources which appeared to be influenced by the relatively higher Liverpool cables. A few minutes after the call the market eased off slightly.

December eased off to 6.65c and March to 6.88c with the market showing net losses of about 6 to 10 points by the end of the first half hour.

The early decline extended to 6.60 for December and 6.85 for March, making net losses of about 10 to 14 points on the active months, but at these figures the market stiffened on some covering and continued trade buying and part of the losses were recovered later in the morning. At midday December was ruling around 6.68 and March 6.92 or 4 to 7 points net lower.

Senator Demands Duty on Copper

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A 6 cents per pound duty on copper, now on the free list, was urged today by Senator Ashhurst.

Appearing before the Tariff Commission's Senate-ordered investigation of differences in cost of production of the red metal here and abroad, the Arizona Democrat said his state produces more copper than any other and that copper is the only metal not given protection by the Hawley-Smoot Tariff act.

CORPORATE

TRUST SHARES

ACCUMULATIVE SERIES and
SERIES AA—DISTRIBUTIVE TYPE

To the fundamental principle of diversification, the new series Corporate Trust Shares add many new and desirable protective features.

In order to maintain a stronger investment position, any stock may be eliminated, but only after the occurrence of certain definite fixed events.

To provide higher average return, all of the portfolio funds are invested in stocks; also interest on accumulation, compounded monthly, is paid to shareholders.

More definitely to assure continuity of the trust service, trustee's fees are paid in advance for the life of the trust.

Because they conform to the highest standards of fixed trust operation, the new series of Corporate Trust Shares are finding widespread approval among investors of all classes.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES TO DRIFT OFF

Shares Decline 1 to 6 in Morning, Rally Unevenly After Noon; Steels Lose

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Securities markets again drifted downward today, as Wall street was unable to make up its mind whether the news should be interpreted bullishly or bearishly.

While some banking quarters interpreted the overwhelming Conservative victory in England as distinctly constructive, the prospect of a high British tariff was less pleasing. Maintenance of the common dividend by United States Steel was counterbalanced by its extremely poor earnings statement.

Foreign bonds showed some strength, in response to the British election, but markets generally manifested a heavy undertone. Stocks lost about 1 to 6 points during the morning, but had a slight and uneven rally during the early afternoon. Pennsylvania declined 1¼ to a new low, then recovered partially, after the dividend announcement. Union Pacific lost 6 points, and New York Central, Illinois Central and Atlantic Coast Line declined 2 to 3 to new bottom prices.

Other shares declining about 2 to 3 points included United States Steel, American Telephone, North American, Bethlehem, International Harvester, American Can, Woolworth and others.

The ready absorption of profit-taking in the wheat market, on denials that France had made a substantial purchase of the American grain, was a somewhat encouraging development in the financial markets.

Announcement of a 50-cent quarterly dividend by Pennsylvania Railroad, in contrast to 75 cents previously paid, was about as expected, and prompted some short covering. The maintenance of the $1 common dividend by United States Steel had been too generally anticipated to provide a stimulus to the market. Some observers believe the substantial operating deficit of the Steel Corporation for the third quarter should represent the low of the depression.

Electric power consumption reported for last week showed a drop of 5.8 per cent, against 4.2 per cent in the previous week.

STOCKS HIGHER IN LONDON

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The Stock Exchange with a burst of strength born of the election results sent prices rising today, particularly those of the gilt-edge securities, home rails and industrials.

In the morning everybody wanted to buy, but in the afternoon there was profit-taking under which some of the industrials suffered.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Prices on the Paris Bourse were strengthened following the Conservative landslide in England, but trading was quiet, and after the initial buying had been absorbed prices eased off somewhat from their high.

Tardieu Denies U. S. Wheat Purchase

PARIS, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Minister of Agriculture Tardieu, former premier, said today that he had not considered France's wheat needs for 1931-32 and had not been approached regarding large purchases from the United States.

At the same time the Havas News Agency described purported negotiations between France and the United States for the purchase of American wheat as "absurd" and said principal importers were without knowledge of such an impending deal.

Embargo on Gold Denied by Japan

TOKIO, Oct. 28.—While Japanese authorities continue to insist there is no gold embargo at present nor one contemplated for the future, the fact remains that there is no free gold market here. Banks are working under a close agreement not to sell foreign currencies and it is impossible to buy dollars except in a small over-the-counter business. Bills arising from genuine trade, however, are being handled at rates fixed by Yokohama Specie Bank.

Central Loadings Higher for Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—New York Central Railroad for the week ended September 24 loaded 50,118 cars, against 49,230 in the week previous, and 64,326 in the same week of 1930.

More Unemployed Get France's Aid

Western Electric Sales Show Drop

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Sales of the Western Electric Company for the first nine months this year aggregated $171,536,000, compared with $282,545,000 in the corresponding period last year.

New York Pays 4½% On Short Term Loan

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The city of New York has borrowed $5,000,000 until February 1, 1932, at 4½ per cent from Chase National Bank.

LOCAL MARKET QUOTATIONS STEADY

List Here Maintains Firm Tone in Face of Decline Registered in New York

Prices on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange maintained a fairly steady tone in the face of the setback on the New York market today. Such business as there was here was scattered and there was no concentration of activity in any particular issue or groups.

Lone Star Gas showed no important change in its quotations and the others in the fuel group reflected the steadiness of the leader.

The industrial section was dull with odd-lot transactions comprising most of the business. Earnings of the Steel Corporation for the third quarter were poor but the statement had been anticipated in market circles. Railroad developments are influencing the market adversely at the moment, but there is considerable hope gathered from the sustained upturn in wheat and the reports that some of the strongest traders in the country are on the bull side of the grain market.

PENNSYLVANIA ON $2 BASIS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Railroad today cut its quarterly dividend to 50 cents a share from 75 cents a share.

This is the second cut the Pennsylvania has made this year. In June it reduced the quarterly dividend from $1 a share to 75 cents. Today's reduction places the dividend on a $2 basis, compared with $4 prior to last June.

The railroad has paid cash dividends every year since 1847.

The company's earning have declined sharply in common with the depression in general business activity.

Forbes

Lest We Forget; Ponder These U. S. Blessings

By B. C. FORBES

B. C. Forbes

LEST WE forget.

The health of this country never was better.

Adversity unquestionably has had a salutary effect upon our morale.

Our will to work hard honestly, conscientiously, has been quickened and strengthened.

War has not been waged on our soil in two-thirds of a century and today we are at peace with the world.

The infinity of our national resources becomes more clearly established year by year.

THE PRODUCTIVE capacity of the United States exceeds that of any other country on earth.

The science of management has been mastered more thoroughly here than in any other land. The inventive genius of America is unmatched.

The science of management has reached heights not approached by any other nation. Our industrial facilities and efficiency lead the world.

Our transportation and distributive equipment is unexcelled.

WE HAVE the greatest storehouses of gold ever accumulated by any nation. Our currency—the gold dollar—has become the world's supreme standard.

Our federal reserve bank system is impregnable. Currency and credit could be expanded by billions without impairing our banking stability and strength.

Our savings deposits overtop those of every other people, not excluding the proverbially thrifty French.

AMERICAN INVESTMENTS, once European and domestic hysteria has died out, will be recognized as the most desirable on the face of the globe.

We will attract investment funds and bank deposits from most corners of the earth. Our national credit, as well as our national wealth, is the greatest and best extant.

There are more security owners here than in any other two countries combined.

AMERICAN LABOR admittedly is the most capable and energetic of all.

Production per man in the United States is far ahead of that of any other nation. We are the undisputed leaders in mass production, the secret of modern industrial dominance.

American management is more responsive to new ideas, new inventions, new machinery, new appliances than management in any foreign land.

Despite the fact that America has been drawn into the vortex of world-wide business depression, creating widespread unemployment here as elsewhere, the American standard of living is the envy of every other people.

So are the loyal relations which rule here between employers and employed. No government is less threatened than ours by Socialistic or Communistic propaganda or tendencies.

NOWHERE ELSE can so large a percentage of the citizenry afford to give their sons and daughters a college education.

In no other country can so many individuals and families enjoy up-to-date personal transportation and the broadening benefits of home and foreign travel.

Under no other governmental and industrial system can or do so many men and women of humble birth rise to positions of responsibility, power and wealth.

AMERICAN PHILANTHROPY and generosity are the wonder and envy of mankind.

Slums are disappearing from this continent.

Nowhere else are such sums voluntarily contributed to ease the lot of the unfortunate. The abject poverty prevailing in so many parts of both the Old World and the New World is scarcely known here.

The masses here are better fed, better clothed, better housed, better entertained than the masses under any other flag. We come nearer being a self-contained, self-supporting, self-sufficient land than any other.

INSTEAD OF having reason for discouragement or despair, we have more profound reason than any other people for thankfulness, for confidence and for facing the future with buoyant courage and resolution.

Our greatest prosperity, our greatest achievements, our greatest power, our greatest progress lie, not behind us, but ahead.

Let us, therefore, cease whining and repining. Let us regain characteristic American faith and resume characteristic American energy and daring and iniative.

"Ye shall reap if ye faint not."

HOOVER, LAVAL STAND REPLY TO BORAH

Gold Standard Gives U. S. And France Yardstick to Gauge New Leadership

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Economically, perhaps the most significant phase of the Hoover-Laval joint statement is the serving of notice on the rest of the world that maintenance of the gold standard by these two countries will serve as a major influence in restoration of normal economic life.

Mr. Rukeyser

The gold standard gives the counters for measuring the new economic leadership of the United States and France. And it is fitting that these two countries should adhere to the prevailing system. The countries which have temporarily suspended gold payments on account of transient weakness cannot be expected to dictate the terms of a monetary readjustment.

The Hoover-Laval memorandum confirms the obvious. Nevertheless the expression is timely and important because it gives the rest of the world an assurance of an anchor to windward. It assures the world of dependable financial yardsticks at a time when other measuring rods have been failing.

REPLY TO BORAH

At home the pronouncement is an official reply to Senator Borah's demand for bimetalism on the basis of 14 to 1. The Senator's proposal was less realistic than the late William Jennings Bryan's free silver campaign. For at the recent low it took 80 times as much silver to buy the equivalent weight in gold. The recent spread in the value between silver and gold was unprecedentedly great, far too large for a continuance of existing economic relationships. Nevertheless, from a monetary standpoint Mr. Borah's proposed ratio of 14 to 1 was much further from the existing facts than Mr. Bryan's formula of 16 to 1.

When the history of the recent monetary drama comes to be written, an important role will be assigned to the MacMillan Commission report issued to the British Parliament late last spring. Although the report nominally recommended continuance of the gold standard, it foreshadowed suspension by its extended discussion of the subject. Some qualified observers think that the frank presentation of conditions in the London money market quickened foreign withdrawals, which recently precipitated the monetary crisis there and forced suspension of the gold standard.

AUTO CAMPAIGN

Indicative of the intention of leaders in the automotive industry here to do all they can to break the buyers' strike, L. A. Miller, president Willys Overland Company, told me:

"We intend to use every effort to stimulate sales and will probably have a larger advertising appropriation than we have had in the past few years."

In the retail field, merchants who were prompt to pass along price changes got the best results. Others had to follow along, but their tardiness in bowing to the inevitable slowed up their operations.

STEEL TRENDS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Reports from metal-consuming industries are a trifle more encouraging this week, but there are contrary trends in the demands for various forms of steel, the Weekly Iron Age summary, to be released tomorrow, points out. It is accordingly difficult to determine whether a uniformly upward movement in steel bookings and operations can be expected within the near future.

Moderate gains in orders for bars, sheets, wire products, tin plate, rails and track supplies are offset by declining requirements in structural steel, plates and pipe, with the net result slightly favorable for some mills and districts. The review goes on to say that steel operations have expanded a little at Pittsburgh, Youngstown and Birmingham, but are virtually stationary at Chicago, Cleveland and elsewhere. For the country as a whole, the ingot production rate may be measured at 29 per cent of capacity, compared with 28 per cent a week ago, the smallness of the gain reflecting the continued curb on buying.

The automobile industry has been going forward on its new production schedules more slowly than expected, and some steel orders looked for this month will not be placed until November.

New low levels for pig iron and steel scrap are recorded in the Iron Age composite prices, pig iron having declined to $15, the lowest level since October, 1915.

GRAINS TRAVEL DOWNGRADE

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Grain prices went downgrade today after an irregular start. Stock market weakness had a bearish influence, and so too did absence of confirmation of any actual large purchases of wheat from France. Opening at ⅜ cent off to ⅛ cent up, wheat afterward receded all around, corn started at ⅜ cent decline to ⅛ advance and subsequently underwent a general setback.

Results of the British election pointing to enactment of a protective tariff and interpreted as bullish at Liverpool, were regarded as bearish in relation to wheat exports from the United States. However, the market here showed a moderate rallying tendency at times, following early setbacks.

In Memoriam 1-B

In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, William Middlemiss, who passed away two years ago today, October 28, 1929.

Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and kind in heart and mind,
What a beautiful memory he left behind.

From his wife, daughter and grandchildren.

A messenger of love
Between our hearts and Thee.

Passed on one year ago today, October 28, 1930. From those who miss her. Oh, so much.

RAILS TO FILE I.C.C. ANSWER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28—(AP.)—The railroads are expected to place their proposals for modification of the surcharge-pooling plan informally before members of the Interstate Commerce Commission within the next two days.

The committee named by the Association of Railway Executives to discuss the matter with the commission met here today. The commission, in denying the carriers' plea for a general 15 per cent rate increase, proposed a surcharge on all freight bills except those for major agricultural products. This money was to be placed in one fund and used to pay interest on bonds of lines unable to earn fixed charges during the next 18 months.

Harvard Dean Hits At Anti-Trust Laws

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28—(AP.)—Modification of the anti-trust laws and creation of a national economic council were recommended to a Senate Manufactures sub-committee today by Dean W. B. Donham, of the Harvard School of Business Administration. He said:

"I feel that unrestrained and unrestrainable competition with men really forbidden to use their intelligence as they virtually are under the Sherman act, is a more critical danger to the people of this country than unregulated monopolies ever were."

THE LOVE TRAP -:- Story of a Girl's Struggle For Love and Happiness -:- By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

CHAPTER VI.

After Mary and Steve had finished dinner it was possible for them, with propriety, to linger several hours at their table. At Aladdin's Lamp it was expected that the guest should stay and enjoy dancing; there was a by-product profit to this arrangement in the sale of soft drinks and, to those above suspicion, of drinks not so soft.

It grew upon Mary with increasing clearness that she was more interested in Steve as a person than in his dancing. It was delightful to dance with him but she had a deeper urge to sit quietly at the table and learn more about him. Still he didn't sit quietly at all. With the quick adaptability of their youth it was as though tonight was the culmination of a long friendship.

"No, let's talk," she said when he invited her to dance again. "Wouldn't you rather?"

"You're the proprietor of all my desires tonight," he told her grandly. "I'll talk or sing—or even turn handsprings, if it pleases you. That's how open-minded I am."

"Aren't you ever serious?" she demanded, not in irritation, but out of curiosity.

"I'm the most serious guy on earth, but I don't show it. Know what I mean? The tear behind the smile — Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

"Now you are being silly!"

"But isn't all life a bit silly, Mary, my beautiful step-mother-to-be? When I look at you you're so charming to me that it is practically tragic. I wonder I don't break down and weep. I mean it's silly for me to get such a kick out of you when you're all sewed up with my benefactor."

TO WORK FOR BUCK

The happy stimulation vanished from her blue eyes, and, for an instant, she looked tired, overwrought. Steve's expression changed and he became serious.

"Forgive me. I shouldn't have said that," he said swiftly, apologetic.

"I wasn't thinking about myself," Mary returned. "What are you going to do here in New York?"

"I'm going to work for Mr. Landers—for Buck."

"What's the matter with that?" Steve inquired. "He wants to make me his right-hand man. If I make good I may take his place later on, I think."

"Is it a good idea, Steve?"

"I don't know where else a young fellow could step into such a good opportunity. Of course I don't know anything at all right now about all these sporting enterprises, but I'll learn, if I'm smart enough."

"When did you graduate from college?"

"The past June. I don't know exactly what good a college education is going to do me among men like I met with Buck this afternoon, but it ought to have some advantage."

"I suppose it is a good opportunity for you, Steve, but those men with Mr. Landers this afternoon—I hate to think of you getting to be like them. I see their type around the hotel all the time. Of course, they do seem to have lots of money, and they're always well dressed and everything, but—well, you're not like they are—You're different."

MARY DISAPPROVES

He looked at her with steady eyes that tried to see through something which apparently baffled him.

"Yet Buck Landers is like those men—he's their model, their idol. You care enough about him to marry him. What's wrong with me being that kind of man? Why wouldn't you like to see me a man like—Buck?"

"I can't explain it," Mary hesitated.

"You don't think I ought to take on this job with Buck?"

She was silent for a space, and then, "No, I don't, Steve. There's something tough about it. I don't quite understand what it is, but it's all right for Mr. Landers. He's that way—but you're not. You oughtn't get hard and tough like the rest of them."

Steve crushed a cigaret thoughtfully into a tray. His eyes, still mystified, kept searching Mary's face, seeking an answer to something which apparently eluded him.

"It's funny," he said, "about you marrying Buck when you do not approve of so many important things about him."

Her secret self found voice unexpectedly. "Yes, it is funny about me marrying him!"

Gone now was the humorous expression around his mouth; his clear gray eyes were deadly in earnest.

"Mary," he said, "I don't know that I ought to talk this way to you—or let you talk this way to me."

She had become equally serious. It was the first time she had discussed her theoretical romance with anyone.

"I can't help wondering what impression this affair makes on people," she said. "What do you think about it? What's your idea about me marrying Buck Landers?"

RELUCTANCE GIVES WAY

Her direct frankness was a challenge and he was slow to answer. He paused to light another cigaret.

"If I answer you straight out, it might sound like I was saying something against Buck," he stated carefully. "I can't do that and I won't. Why, he's done everything for me! When I was an orphan kid he had me taken care of and he sent me through school and college. If he was that good to me, I can't help but think he would make a fine husband to the right girl."

"But didn't your father save his life once?"

"I believe so."

"Then it seems to me Mr. Landers was only paying a just debt," Mary added quietly. "If your father hadn't saved his life, Mr. Landers wouldn't be alive today to enjoy his money—he wouldn't have any money at all. Don't think I am knocking him—I'm not. But, after all, he owed you, at least all he has given you. Haven't you ever thought of that?"

Through a wreath of cigaret smoke Steve Moore nodded his head slowly.

"But Buck Landers shot square with me, when all is said and done," he told Mary.

"But that isn't any reason why you can't talk to me about him, is it—as a friend?"

He made a hopeless gesture, an acknowledgment of some mental strain, but his reluctance gave way.

"It's hard for me to talk to you about Buck without feeling that I'm disloyal to him. But I don't know if the truth is ever disloyal to anybody. Mary, I tell you the truth—I simply can't understand it. You're—well, you're just not the type. You're just a darned sweet, simple kid—"

A STONE WALL

She looked away from him for a moment. Her face had lost some of its color. Her young mouth, despite its freshness, was a little drawn. Then suddenly, with a surge of emotion, she faced Steve straight across the table.

"Steve, I don't want to marry him! I don't—I don't—I don't! What am I going to do? Steve—you've got to tell me what I'm going to do!"

A strange blinding excitement—something akin to fear—paralyzed speech between them for a matter of seconds. Tension, conflict united them. They were both pushing hard against a stone wall and the stone wall was Life.

"I don't think I'm exactly the person to tell you what to do," Steve said, his voice tight.

A film of tears threatened in the flower-blue of Mary's eyes. "I know how you feel, Steve—but—but—"

"Mary, you poor kid . . ."

SYMBOL OF SUPERIORITY

A queer, distressed smile wreathed her lips. "I suppose you had better take me home now," she said illogically.

"You're not going home yet," he returned sharply. "If you're in wrong I'm not going to throw you down. But aren't you making too much of all this? If you don't want to marry Buck—why, you don't have to."

"It's hard for me to throw him flat," she said painfully.

It grew upon Mary with increasing clearness that she was more interested in Steve as a person than as a dancer.

Then suddenly with a surge of emotion, she faced Steve straight across the table. "Steve, I don't want to marry him."

An inward struggle was darkening Steve's clear gray eyes.

"It would be an awful crash for a man like Buck. It would just about wreck his ego, Mary. He's proud as Lucifer—if he was a cheaper man people would call it vanity. If you pilled him his gang wouldn't dare horse him about it, but they'd snicker behind his back and he'd know it. I think I know why he wants to marry you. You're young and beautiful and you're straight. I'm wise to enough of this sporting racket to know that those fellows play with wild women. You're different—you're Buck's symbol of superiority—you're the badge of his final success. He's getting ready to drop all the other stuff."

"If I loved him it wouldn't matter," she said.

"I'm knocking Buck to you and I've no right to do it," Steve said, suddenly severe with himself. "I can't work against a man who's done as much for me as Buck has. My support and my education came from him. I'm living on his bounty right now. I'm staying in his quarters at the hotel."

With a start, Mary recognized that she, too, was a creature of Buck Lander's bounty. He was responsible for her position at the hotel at a much better salary than she could have earned elsewhere. She was living on the money that he had thus provided. He had given her a diamond ring worth a year's salary. Was that the secret of his success? Did he bind people to him this way, and then command their lives like a czar? But that was too harsh; he was generous, he took nothing without giving liberally in return.

"Why did you engage yourself to Buck if you don't love him?" Steve's gray eyes were distressed.

TELLS WHOLE STORY

They had both forgotten that they were in a popular and somewhat noisy restaurant. The music and the dancing filled the place, yet they were unaware of either within their electric circle of self-interest. The interchange of magnetism between them was suppressed and they both struggled against it, but it dissolved all formality; began seriously to threaten their ultimate reticence one with the other. To talk of her engagement to Steve brought something of the release of the confessional to Mary. It was easy now for her to pour out the whole story of her connection with Landers. It was a simple tale, devoid of discernible evil, but it was potent enough to snarl all of her emotions, to change the whole current of her life. Steve's face whitened a little when she told him of Lander's kisses and embraces.

"That's how it happened," she concluded. "You're the only soul I've told."

The pupils of Steve's eyes were a little dilated; there was an unfamiliar set about his mouth. "I'd like to tell you a lot of things, Mary," he hesitated. "Really . . . but, no, I've simply got no right to talk." He looked away from her.

She managed to smile. They were both becoming, she thought, a bit ridiculous.

"I'm sorry I bothered you with all my gloom," she said. "Shall we dance some more?"

He smiled, but there was more desperation than humor in the grimace.

"I don't care about dancing right now," he said. "I was never drunk in my life, but I've got a notion to get good and drunk tonight."

"But why, Steve?"

"It might be useful—and appropriate. It would be different, anyway."

"I shouldn't think it would be much fun to get drunk alone," Mary told him, "but I think I know how you feel. Maybe I feel a little bit that way myself tonight. Funny, isn't it?"

VAGUE UNHAPPINESS

His face, for an instant, became shrewd and expectant, then the expression faded. "You don't do things like that—or do you?"

"I never have yet. Would it be fun, Steve? I mean, would it make me feel a lot happy and everything—tonight?"

"Well, you darned little fool," he thrust at her sternly. "You're not only the sweetest kid on earth, but you're at least three-quarters cuckoo. Do you think I'm going to get you tight the way you're feeling—and the way I'm feeling?"

"But if you want to, Steve, I want to, too," she said, her voice nervous. "Honestly, this whole business has put my nerves on edge—and I want to get away from it, Steve. I want to . . . forget it."

"You don't know what you're talking about!"

He was right. There was a strange new hunger in her heart, mingled with a vague unhappiness. At the moment there were no petty cautions, no inhibitions under guard. She looked straight at Steve; there was nothing about him to fear. With any other man it would have been different. At most she merely contemplated now a joyous relief from her uncertainty about life, the acid drop of fear that was in her heart. And there was another element which she did not name even in her own mind—a swaying, a yearning of her heart towards Steve Moore. There was something about him . . .

"Oh, Steve, I feel so sunk tonight—and I'm kind of happy, too," she said in a gust of honesty. "Tomorrow I'll be back in harness and worrying all by myself—but tonight it's wonderful to have you to talk to—"

Somehow he had grown stern. Yet, she sensed, he wasn't cold. There was a force within him, rigorously held under pressure.

"I'll tell you what you're going to do, Mary," he said levelly. "You're going straight home. Maybe you don't know it, but you're fooling with dynamite. We both are. And it might be a good idea for us not to see each other alone again until Buck Landers gets back. Do you know what I mean?"

She could feel a tide of color rising in her face, but Steve was wrong. He thought he was making a vast decision, but in her feminine heart she knew that it was all up to her . . .

If you are a regular reader of the fiction in the Sun-Telegraph you are well aware that this newspaper gives careful attention to the selection of the serial stories that appear in this section. In fact, the Sun-Telegraph has really become famous for fine fiction. Many congratulatory letters have already been received on the publication of "The Love Trap." If you are reading and enjoying this story, you will do your friends a favor by telling them about it. Reprints of the first four chapters are available from your nearest newsdealer or your friends can read the daily synopsis and then go on with the story.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Shortly after her mother's death, Mary Kennedy, young and pretty stenographer, decided to live her own life and avoid the poverty she has always known. She rents a small room and then seeks a position. Mary meets Buck Landers, elderly sports promoter, who proposes to her. She does not love Landers, but his wealth attracts her. Without waiting for Mary's decision, Landers presents her with a diamond ring. He threatens anyone who comes between them. Mary meets Landers' ward, Steve Moore, young college graduate. Steve and Mary are attracted to each other. Landers leaves on a business trip and asks Steve to look after Mary.

SOME ODD FACTS

According to a recent decision of the full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, women cannot serve on juries in that state.

Bandits who held up a confectionery store at Urbana, Ill., took all the money from the cash registers except several $2 bills.

A shipment of 4,270 tons of sunflower seed oil from Odessa, Ukraine, has been received at New Orleans. It will be used in making food products and soap.

An astronomer at Vatican City says that if a man could count 25 stars per second it would take him 700 years to count all in sight.

"Burial" of the traditionally worn cahdur, or cloak, and veil, was performed by 200 women of Teheran, Persia, recently. A grave was dug and the cloaks were placed in it, under the epitaph: "Here lies the cloak, the emblem of women's servitude. God's curse be upon it."

A well in Los Angeles County came in with a 7,500-barrel output of water instead of oil. The water was claimed to have medicinal properties that made it worth more a gallon than oil is a barrel.

The steam yacht Savarona, owned by Mrs. Richard M. Cadwalader, Jr., of Philadelphia, is the world's largest and most luxurious pleasure boat. It was built in Germany at a cost of $5,000,000.

Some of the women divers in Japan who dive into the sea for shellfish, can remain at a depth of 100 feet for two and a half minutes without the aid of oxygen or diving suits.

LOVE COMES BUT ONCE

(Or, the Great Train Robbery)

It was the day of the Big Game.

"Freemantle must win this game," thought Lucy, as she nervously munched her chrysanthemum.

Thousands of excited people were running up and down the stadium steps searching for their seats, or reaching for things their wives had dropped.

Coach "Dimples" Gifford, in the dressing room, took one last look into the mirror, tucked his kerchief up his sleeve, and trotted out to the field. He fully expected his team to follow him. But a glance backward proved otherwise. Not a player in sight—and it was too late to drill another team in the intricate system of deception and power that made "Dimples" so darned popular.

Oh, well—

Business Is Reviving

With Consumption in Excess of Production Greater Industrial Activity Is Inevitable.

It has always been possible during the course of the industrial depression to pick out isolated examples here and there of manufacturing and commercial activity.

But the reports of business improvement that have just been issued by the Chamber of Commerce cover so wide a range of local industries that it is difficult to escape the conclusion that they are symptomatic and that a business revival is really under way at last. Good news comes from steel, glass, building construction and food product companies, and some of the retail stores also report improvement.

The Citizens Can Aid

Co-Operation of the Public Will Help to Reduce City Taxes.

The movement to reduce the expense of running the city government, and thereby the tax rate, has assumed impressive proportions.

All city employes during the next two months are to take two weeks off without pay.

The promise is made that the payroll will be pruned and "dead timber" removed. The promise would carry more weight if it were more specific—if there were assurance, for instance, that some of the ward chairmen are to be lopped off. But let that pass and credit the Kline administration, provisionally at least, with good intentions.

There are indications that Mayor Kline, his department heads and the Councilmen will also voluntarily remit two weeks' pay in the interest of economy.

But even that will not make it unanimous. The public must help, too, if there is to be complete co-operation in curtailing municipal expenses.

How can the public help?

Dr. C. B. Maits, director of public health, suggests one way, and his fellow department heads probably can suggest others.

Dr. Maits calls on the citizens to burn combustible rubbish in their own furnaces instead of having it collected at the expense of the city. He points out that the disposal each day of one pound of trash through incineration in furnaces in each of the 140,000 homes in the city would effect a monthly saving of more than $10,000.

If the administration and the citizens would pull together whole-heartedly, taxes could not only be cut but Pittsburgh made a more attractive city.

Firearms Accidents

There Are Many Ways in Which Careless Persons May Injure Themselves.

The hunting season for rabbits and various other kinds of small game will open next week. An army of local sportsmen will be busy this week getting their guns ready. Take care!

The State Department of Health has just issued an analysis of the 161 fatalities that resulted from accidental discharge of firearms in Pennsylvania last year. There are some things in the report that it is worth every hunter's while to know.

In the first place more than one-fourth of the fatalities occurred in November in connection with hunting activities. We find in the record cases in which guns were fired by the motion of the automobiles in which they were being carried, by dogs jumping upon them, and in other ways that one would not expect.

Hunters and others who handle firearms would do well to think about these things.

Remember the Ohio

Kiskiminetas Valley People Should Not Let Unfavorable Report Discourage Them.

The War Department, in issuing a permit for a new bridge over the Kiskiminetas River at Vandergrift, has commented that the improvement of the stream seems improbable.

This is a disappointment to the people of the Kiskiminetas Valley who have sought to have the river made navigable from Vandergrift to its mouth, 11 miles below, where it flows into the Allegheny. As the Allegheny has slack water at that point the proposed improvement would furnish water transportation all the way to the Gulf of Mexico for many of the mills of the Kiskiminetas Valley.

The people should not let this rebuff discourage them. The War Department's judgments are not always final, and waterway improvements are notoriously slow in coming. It took 50 years to get a nine-foot stage in the Ohio from Pittsburgh to the Mississippi.

Acid in the Allegheny

The High Cost of Impure Water Should Strengthen the Fight Against Stream Pollution.

The Pittsburgh office of the United States Engineers investigated in 1915 the effect of stream pollution on local industries. Some 70 persons testified. It was estimated that acid in the rivers, by corroding boiler tubes and other metal objects, cost Pittsburgh manufacturers from $10,000,000 to $14,000,000 a year.

Plumbers and launderers testified that when used for domestic purposes the acid-laden water did millions of dollars of damage annually by injuring bathroom fixtures and by destroying the cellulose fibers in cotton and linen garments.

Notwithstanding this testimony of 16 years ago, stream pollution has continued, and apparently has become worse, for the Bureau of Water now reports it has to spend as much as $1,000 a day for chemicals with which to combat the acid.

The disclosure should strengthen the movement for stream purification.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Traffic Lights on the Love Route

The soft-boiled virgin will find the Road to Love and Marriage far smoother and less skiddy, if she will heed these traffic lights. They are as good today, as they were when Solomon and King Tut went a-petting—and as they will be a thousand years hence.

* * *

Don't crowd yourself into a man's heart, when it already shows signs of a traffic-jam. There is always "room for one more" in the masculine imagination, of course. But why get into the crush—and get smashed?

* * *

Never take a man's signals (or his love-making) seriously, after he has swallowed the third cocktail. He knows only that 'something' is making the world go 'round; but, in the morning, he'll remember nothing but the headache.

* * *

Never conclude that your heart is so badly "broken" that it can't be mended. Likely as not, it is only a sprained vanity; and even a shattered illusion can always be mended by time—and "a little of the same."

* * *

Don't try to turn back. The "Road to Yesterday" is a lost trail. Keep your sweet memories of a dead love with the pressed flowers and immortelles. Autopsies on a defunct romance are always disillusioning.

Never try to rush a man into a proposal or a promise. A woman's love may blossom like the rose or the violet; but a man's love grows by the slow process of geological formation. It simply sneaks up on him.

Don't kid yourself that the man who is fooling another woman for your sake, will never fool YOU for another woman's sake. Men run true to type.

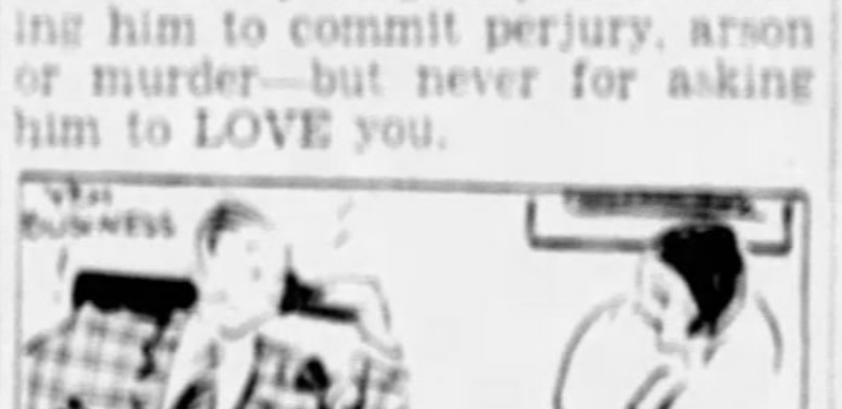
Never ask a man if he loves you. A man may forgive you for asking him to commit perjury, arson or murder—but never for asking him to LOVE you.



Always repress that impulse to "call him up," at odd moments. Remember that the telephone may be a married man's best friend, but it is a weak woman's worst temptation. The voice of the girl of "the night before" is like stale champagne on "the morning after."

Don't deceive yourself with the fond delusion that it is "something of vital importance" which is keeping him away from you. To a man in love, there is NOTHING important, except the WOMAN. And nothing can keep him from her—except another woman.

* * *

Remember that the woman who is as hard to make as a fortune in Wall street and as easy to lose as a good reputation, is the one whose kisses a man prizes most—and never forgets.

* * *

Times, morals and manners may change—but biology and the masculine nature are the same today, as they were when Aeneas alibied himself and chucked the clinging Dido. Or when the last Napoleon pursued the coy and elusive Eugenie.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

—By O. O. McIntyre—

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Irene Castle has lost none of the piquant dash that drew her out of the comparative obscurity of New Rochelle to become the most talked about woman in the world. On her recent visit to Saratoga Springs she became the sartorial sensation of that somewhat jaded spa.

Wherever she appeared pleasure-loving throngs pivoted in admiration. No other individual in America has set so many fashion paces. It was Miss Castle, during a fever convalescence, who started the hair bob, a wind-blown version of which she still affects.

She and her husband, Vernon, touched off the ball-room dance furore and followed it with that stiff-legged swagger called The Castle Walk. Incidentally, it was in Chicago that Miss Castle wore the first Empress Eugenie hat and started a juicy millinery novelty.

No Paris mannikin sets off costumes to such an advantage. She is the type who can "buy clothes off the hook" and give them the flair of the most expert couturiere's handiwork. She has spurned innumerable offers of dressmaking establishments to launch styles.

As the wife of Fred McLaughlin, millionaire sportsman, she has recently retired to the domesticity of the fashionable Lake Forest suburb of Chicago. Mr. McLaughlin is, in appearance, a thin edition of Andrew Toombes. And deservedly proud of his wife's popularity.

Miss Castle, a passionate dog fancier, founded her charity home, Orphans-in-the-Storm, a refuge for stray and friendless dogs picked up on streets of Chicago. It is considered a model institution for a big city's canine waifs.

The most spontaneous burst of applause I ever heard in a New York theater was accorded Miss Castle one opening night at the old Century. When she floated before the footlights there was the thunder of a deeply booming explosion. It lasted 11 minutes.

From a mildewed trunk I salvaged a mid-Victorian stereopticon with views—relics of the front parlor back yonder. And as a result work is not going on as usual. Through magic glasses I have been transported to the Sphinx at Gizeh, Egypt. I beheld Prospectors Returning to Camp in Alaska; Goat Milking at Hardanger Fjord, Norway; Rome the Eternal City from St. Peter's; The Valley of Tay, Scotland; Looking Toward the Strand from Trafalgar; Cliff House and Seal Rocks, San Francisco; The Prince's Castle, Monaco, and The Approach to Westminster Bridge, London. In short, I've had myself a time. The good old days were not so impossible.

Somehow simplicities of the stereopticon are symbolical of a return, for a few months anyway, to saner diversions. Much of life the past ten years has been totally irrelevant. Whatever the causes, today has a profounder humility. I see groups on park benches enjoying the splendor of sundowns I never saw before.

Nor do I believe it is imagination that there is greater tenderness in human contact. A clinging savor of friendliness, expressed in little kindnesses, is in the air. More so than I have ever known.

Christopher Morley once beautifully wrote of a humble Friends' meeting house in Oxford that might, to a degree, be applicable to the metropolitan moment. A shy, homely girl suddenly broke the long silence with a voice trembling with terror and exclaimed: "I'm thinking of the sky, the trees and the shadows of trees, and the swift wind, and the smell of everything." And then, wrote Morley, she sat down, subsiding into the shaken privacy of tears.

* * *

Richy Craig, Jr., is the latest harlequin to capture the Broadway favor. A personable, sprucely dressed youth he came out of small time vaudeville for a several weeks' run at the Palace. Despite a quick fluency, shifting from grave to gay, he affects a naivete that heightens his charm. On his first big time appearance he was rolled in seated in an invalid's chair, explaining: "I'm too nervous to walk."

* * *

LISTEN, WORLD

—By Elsie Robinson—

I don't know whether they ever give judges medals for acts of conspicuous valour performed behind the bar, but if they do I vote that one of the biggest, shiniest ones goes to Judge Frank H. Dunne, of San Francisco.

Gentlemen have braved fire, flood, and pestilence—faced wolves, rattlers and man-eating tigers—but for sheer, reckless courage, Judge Dunne has 'em all skinned.

HE HAS DARED TO TEAR A CHILD—TWO OF THEM, IN FACT—FROM A WEEPING MOTHER'S ARMS, AND PLACE THEM IN THE CUSTODY OF THEIR FATHER.

And if you don't think that takes nerve, then you don't know ladies . . . particularly ladies with votes.

Here's the story. Three years ago Judge Dunne divorced the mother and father in question. At that time, he made a thorough investigation and became convinced that the lady was an unfit mother and only permitted to obtain the divorce to avoid scandal. He had hoped that th. chance might come to give the two little girls involved a better break.

It came. The mother sued the father for delinquent alimony. The father replied by asking the court to set aside the motion and grant him the custody of the two children.

Now it is a well known fact that a father asking this of any American court has about as much chance as the proverbial snowball. 'Cause why? Because American citizens are soggy with sentiment and American ladies are snooty with votes. And any judge who offends American womanhood—particularly when American womanhood happens to be a mamma—practically commits official suicide.

For, according to our credo, nobody must question mammas.

Just why and how mammas have come to enjoy such conspicuous immunity, is rather mysterious. For mammas are only women. There is nothing in the birth act which renders them divine . . . nor automatically endows them with superhuman knowledge. And, as a matter of grim psychological and sociological record, mothers en masse know less about their jobs and make more tragic and costly mistakes, than any other class of workers. But just try and tell them that and see what happens to you—particularly if you happen to be a husband or a judge.

As a consequence, as before stated, Nobody Questions Mamma. Mamma may be, and frequently is, stupid, incompetent, malicious, hysterical, dishonest and lazy, yet she is supposed to be not only fit, but also divinely appointed to rear the human young. And Mother's Tears outweigh every argument on earth.

That's why I'm recommending medals — big, shiny ones — for Judge Frank Dunne. It would have been far safer for him to have tackled his weight in wild-cats than to have wrested a child from a sobbing mamma. As well he knew!

Of course he will. Which is why the allusion to wild-cats. Not, I hasten to add, that club women are necessarily wild-cats. They can be, and, unless emotionally aroused, usually are intelligent, capable and well controlled human beings. Give them time and they'll set this very untidy world in order. But—

It is undeniable that women are new at the game of citizenship. They are still harem-minded. Which means that, in an emergency, they are apt to go Completely Femme, park their brains and resort to mob violences. And, since anything that menaces the sacred prerogatives of mamma is invariably regarded as an emergency, Twain Michaelson certainly knew his chilis when he threatened to capitalize his client's tears by calling in the Women's Clubs.

Just why, I wonder, should Mother's Tears be considered so much more sacred than Father's Swear Words? And why summon the female militia just because some mamma has tangled with the law? Though I am a mother myself, it seems to me as silly—and as subversive of justice—to call in the Women's Clubs to defend mammas as it would be to call in the Stevedores, Plumbers and Garment Makers Unions to defend papas.

Both mammas and papas, should stand—or fall—on their own, individual merits.

So whoops . . . but maybe also lilies! . . . for nervey Judge Frank Dunne for insisting upon it.

The Rhyming Optimist

Return

Someone is coming back today,
Someone who went so far away
That even the sun in coat of flame
Unto her casement earlier came
And there stood at meridian
While this land waited for the sun.

"Someone is coming back again!"
My happy heart sings glad refrain,
While all my tasks neglected wait
As I run out to porch or gate
To peer along the dusty street
And murmur at time's laggard feet.

Someone is coming back and so
The roses take on a lovelier glow,
The linnet sings a clearer tune
And autumn wears the look of June.
Someone who went by land, by sea
Returns again today to me;
Yet all the time (she is so dear)
I felt her presence with me here.

In Justice to Senator Borah

—By Claude G. Bowers—

M. Laval has appealed to the American imagination to a considerable degree, and every one in America is delighted with his daughter. He is a man of the people, who has risen over obstacles; and, more than many European statesmen owing their position to heredity and class, he is comprehensible to the average American. He is forthright in his manner and method and does not rely on the finesse of that cunning diplomacy which so often has wrecked the peace of the world.

His recent epochal visit to Berlin, followed by his journey here, is in accord with the present-day demands on diplomacy; and it is something finer and safer than the old sort.

Borah Blackguarded For 'Speaking Out'

Senator Borah, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and, as such, an integral and vital part of the governmental machinery which turns out the finished product of foreign policy, is being blackguarded with all the cultural elegance of the "wise and the good."

Some of the administration organs are so beside themselves with rage because, in popular interest, he has overshadowed Mr. Hoover and Secretary Stimson, that they find themselves forgetting their manners and spluttering like veritable ragamuffins in language scarcely fit for the company of gentlemen. And all because the Senator was courteous enough to accede to the desire of the French press correspondents for an interview instead of being sought.

He bears a responsibility in the determination of our foreign policies that is quite as heavy as that of the President or Secretary of State. The French know that better, perhaps, than we do. They have a distinct recollection of Henry Cabot Lodge on another occasion; and from that they have learned that the last word is with the Senate. So thoroughly was this idea impressed upon Sir Edward Grey when he was here that he hobnobbed and drank tea almost exclusively with Mr. Lodge, to the indignation of the then President and Secretary of State.

These French correspondents knew what they were about when they bearded Borah in his den. They knew him to be a forthright man who speaks right out, and could hardly have thought it possible that he would be in entire agreement with the French policies in all respects.

Respect Senator's Honesty, Frankness

Thus, Borah, disclaiming, modestly enough, any right to speak for anyone but himself, answered questions. He did not formulate the questions. When some were asked he thought could not be answered by him in a fashion entirely pleasing to the interviewers, he asked them whether they really wished his opinion. They said they did, and so he answered frankly. We are far from being in complete accord with everything that Borah thinks, but we respect him for his honesty and frankness.

Nor is it probable that the French correspondents, accompanying M. Laval, sought this interview entirely without knowledge or consent of the Prime Minister.

One gathers from the gnashing of teeth by administration organs that the rage against Borah is due to the fact that he "stole the show from the President." That is unfair to the President, and it illustrates the danger of writing in anger and without some meditation. For it implies that, after all, this meeting in Washington was nothing more than a "show," put on with the sole view to throwing a white light on the President in a stellar role. That, of course, is impossible. The fact that it turns out that the average American is discussing M. Laval and Borah, instead of Laval and Hoover, or Laval and Stimson, is not the fault of Borah. He has an interesting and colorful personality, and when the French correspondents pushed him upon the stage the effect was inevitable.

The complaint that France may conclude that the administration selected Borah as the spokesman of its unutterable thoughts is far-fetched. It is universally known that Borah plows his own furrow, and is not in complete harmony with the administration on all things. The French correspondents must have found in the "inadvertence," which almost excluded the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee from White House dinner, some evidence that he is not always foremost in the minds of those in control there. Something is made of the fact that the request for the interview with Borah was conveyed through Mr. Stimson, but Mr. Stimson acted, we understand, on the request of the correspondents which he could hardly refuse, and not on his own volition.

And, though the ideas of Borah were not in some important particulars in harmony with the views of the correspondents, most of them appear to have been favorably impressed by his frankness, honesty and ability. They knew that they were in the presence of a personality, an individual.

Frankness Surest Path to Understanding

In the long run it was advantageous to have Borah speak, even though he did "steal the show from the President." The surest path to understandings between nations is that of frankness and perhaps a little blunt frankness is not out of place. The Senator had some views with which we cannot agree and some that are unassailably sound in their interpretation of the average American's point of view. We ought to know exactly how France feels about all matters under discussion and France should have the same complete knowledge of how we feel; for we cannot even try to reconcile differences until we know what they are.

Being a typical westerner, with his feet on the ground, Borah gave expression to some disturbing truths that must be uttered from some high quarter. The purport of his statement is that wrongs were inflicted in the making of the peace, in an atmosphere of war feelings, that must be righted and there is nothing of novelty in that idea. There are some questions involving the vital interests and the deepest feelings of people that must be reopened and settled right.

Instead of being assailed in intemperate language for acceding to the request of the French press representatives for an interview expressive of his solicited opinion, he ought to be thanked for contributing something to the clarification of the American point of view.

Laval Leaves Behind Pleasant Impression

Whether anything of real consequence in the way of definite decisions comes from M. Laval's visit or not, it has had a good effect. He now understands that there is not the slightest possibility of America entering into a special security pact to defend any other nation against an attack. He has made a favorable impression upon the American people, and leaves behind him a very pleasant impression of his personality and the friendly spirit that inspired his visit.

ONCE OVERS

—By J. J. Mundy—

Are you a human sponge?

Do you absorb everything that comes your way, apparently forgetting to repay your debts of a social nature?

Society has a code which establishes a rule of returning as good as your receive.

If you are unwilling to do this you should not accept any favors.

There are instances where friends are so good and truly kind that, irrespective of the fact that you cannot disburse social favors, they desire your presence at their affairs.

In such a case you should not hesitate in accepting for there are not many such invitations extended to you.

But in the majority of cases you are expected to do as others do.

You may think such a spirit is contrary to true hospitality, and that entertaining should not be done with an idea of return.

Your idea of the spirit of hospitality may be right, but it does not absolve you from assuming obligations in proportion to your acceptance.

They have no thought or desire to pay social debts and if you fall into this class you deserve all the censure you will get.
